2. REFORMATION IN THE CITIES

- Steven Ozment, The Reformation in the Cities: The Appeal of Protestantism to Sixteenth-Century Germany and Switzerland (New Haven: Yale University Press, 1975). The Reformation quickly took root in most of the imperial cities of the Empire. Ozment studies how so many came over to the Protestant side: the mix of polemical preaching, humorous pamphlets, decrees from city magistrates. This provides important perspectives on the Reformation as a grass-roots movement—how the great theological debates fueled and were fueled by popular sentiment
