Father Noonan Will Lecture On Government

Talk Sunday Will Open Symposium Sponsored by President

TO BENEFIT CITIZENS

Faculty Members in Four Departments Will Participate

The Rev. Herbert C. Noonan, S.J., professor of philosophy, will open a series of 14 lectures in a symposium on government by talking on "The Philosophy of Government" in the moot court of the law school Sunday afternoon. The lecture, which will start at 4 p. m. and continue for one hour, will be under the direction of the Rev. Patrick J. Mahan, S.J., president of the university, who will introduce the speaker and preside over the talk and discussion that will follow.

To Classify Ideas

"This symposium is part of Creighton's contribution towards the creation of an enlightened electorate," Father Mahan said, "It is designed to clarify the ideas of the citizens of Omaha with regard to the problems of social life and government as it exists so that the people of Omaha may be able to sustain these in public life who are working for the true social and economic welfare of the people as a whole as opposed to the selfishness of individual and especial groups."

It is during the series of lectures that problems of the city and its government will be discussed in detail by members of the faculty staff of the school of law, college of arts and sciences, college of commerce and school of medicine.

The philosophic, financial, economic and legal aspects of government will be advanced by the speakers who will submit practical cases as examples in proving their points.

The university girls' rifle team captained by Anna Fitzpatrick, will go to Lincoln to fire a shoulder-to-shoulder match with the University of Nebraska's girls' rifle team March 31. The match will be fired in the prone position only, although our girls' rifle team is prepared to fire in both the prone and the sitting positions. Arrangements for the match were made by Adela Tombrink, captain of the University of Nebraska girls' rifle team and Anna Fitzpatrick. Ten girls will fire for each school of which the five highest will count.

The members of the Creighton team are: Anna Fitzpatrick, Eleanor Lynch, Bessie Goldware, Nina Rossito, Patricia Harrabill, Virginia Mancuso, Mary Kohler, Mary Kull, Mary Brennan, Mary E. Martain, Sarah Campagna, Tina Campagna, Martha Lippett, Martha Green, Eileen Duffy, Patricia Duffy, Marjorie Joye and Regina Smith.

This will be the first time that the rifle team has competed with another school.

Dr. Levine Heads Lunch Committee

Dr. Victor E. Levine, head of the department of bio-chemistry and nutrition, has been selected January chairman of the good fellowship committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

The Goodfellowship committee consists of 100 members of the Chamber of Commerce who meet every Monday for luncheon and to hear some prominent speaker.

Father Leo Mullaney, S. J., professor of English, spoke on "Humor" and Dr. Augustus Pohlman, head of the department of anatomy, spoke on "Heredity and Environment" before the committee during the month.

Gershwin Says Music Should Be A Major Campus Activity

By Mary Ellen Leavy

A university orchestra is the most effective means of arousing student interest in music, according to George Gershwin, modern composer and pianist who gave a concert here Saturday evening. He said that since Creighton has taken this first step, they should go on forming new musical groups and glee clubs.

"As a necessary phase of education, it should become one of the major activities on a campus," he said. "Students should show their appreciation of student talent by attending all concerts and recitals that are given by school departments."

Particularly interested in the jazz that his compositions have helped to make so popular, Mr. Gershwin explained the difference between this modern form and classical music. Classical music is based primarily upon melody and harmony, he believes, while jazz grows out of rhythm.

Some Music Brings Sleep

Selection of the pieces to be played by college orchestras is most important in arousing student enthusiasm.

"Some pieces just naturally put you to sleep," he said. "There is some classical music—like parts of Beethoven—that will send the greatest music enthusiast into dreamland. Even modern music can be boring," he added. "If your orchestra plays only the best the school will like it."

Referring to his own compositions, Mr. Gershwin said that in writing music he was interested principally in design. He has no story in mind when he is composing, but only a pattern that he is trying to weave with music.

Music Fascinating

"It is a line that fascinates me," he explained. "Music is too abstract to tell a particular story; it can only give impressions, and shadings of lines. I choose some pattern, and then work it into variations. It is not an idea of emotion but simply an intricate line that I am showing in my compositions."

James Melton, radio's most popular tenor co-soloist on the same program, said laughingly that he had but one word to describe the press. "Marvelous!"

Asked which he believed was more typical of America, the negro spiritual or cowboy songs, he said, "Both."

"America is too large, and has too many distinct sections for any one type of music to be representative of it entirely. There is no other country in the world that has music that could be more truly called its folk music than we have in both negro and cowboy songs."

Three New Authors in Winter Shadows

Kuncel, Weitzman and Gerhardt Contribute to Issue

EDITORS HONORED

Among the names in this month's issue of "Shadows" are three new contributors whose literary work has won previous recognition.

Edward Kuncel, A. 3, although blind, has been an honor student every year at Creighton, and before that at South High, where he was graduated with high honors. He is interested in everything from articles to philosophy and has, according to his fellow students, keen powers of concentration. He has written the lead article of the winter "Shadows," a comparison of the NRA with the medieval guild system.

The New York Herald-Tribune, as well as the Omaha World-Herald, recently reprinted the poem "Winter" written by Virginia Gerhardt, DU 3. It was originally published in the "Commonweal." This "Shadows" contains a new poem by Miss Gerhardt.

One of this month's short stories was written by Ellis Weitzman, a graduate student, who comes from a Georgia university where his literary work won recognition.

New contributors are welcomed into the pages of "Shadows," according to the editors, who urge those who have not yet tried, to submit manuscripts to the university literary magazine.

Two members of the "Shadows" board of editors were recently honored, when it was announced that Leo Welch and John Rebeck, both A. 3, won first and second place, respectively, in the Bishop McGovern essay contest.

Dr. Russum Addresses Medical Students at Bi- Weekly Seminar Tuesday

The difficulties encountered in any attempt at a logical classification of the diseases of the kidneys were discussed in an address by Dr. Carl B. Russum, head of the department of pathology, before students of the schools of medicine of Creighton university and Nebraska university at the chapter house of Phi Delta Epsilon, Tuesday.

The address was one in a series of bi-weekly seminars being sponsored by the fraternity. Dr. Russum spoke on the general subject of "Nephritis" and illustrated the lecture with lantern slides.

Abraham Appelsis, M. 4, chairman for the evening, was head of the committee in charge of arrangements and was assisted by Abraham Riemer, M. 3.

Union Board to Set Precedent at Annual Prom

Governors Will Participate in Coronation Ceremonies

PROHIBIT CORSAGES

Ticket Sale Started Monday; Expect a Big Crowd

A 12-year-old precedent will be broken February 9 at the Fontenelle hotel when members of the local society set meet with upperclassmen in the major units of the university to witness the crowning of King Creighton XII and his consort.

It will be the first time that members of the Students Union board of governors, the group sponsoring this outstanding event on the social calendar of the collegiate school year, will participate in the coronation ceremonies.

Governors Take Part

In the past the governors have been distinguished through a ribbon worn across their shirt front. A proposal presented by one of the board members and passed by the board authorizes the breaking of this precedent which has prevailed since the spirit of Count John A. Creighton was crowned King Creighton I in 1922.

A new ruling passed by the board of governors restricts the wearing of corsages. The princesses of the court, however, will have specially made-up bouquets as a means of distinguishing them as members of the court.

Ticket Sales Started

The ticket sales which started Monday in the seven major units of the university are progressing at the expected speed and it is evident that the attendance this year will at least equal that of the past.

Rehearsals for the ceremonies will be held Sunday in the university gymnasium and Thursday in the Fontenelle hotel.

Men's Rifle Team Competes in Iowa

Match Will Be Fired Sitting and Prone Positions; First Out-of-Town Match.

PLAN RETURN MATCHES

The university's men rifle team will leave for Iowa City March 2, to fire a shoulder to shoulder match with the men's rifle team of the University of Iowa. It will be a seven team match with the five highest scores being counted. The match will be fired in the prone and sitting positions. The team will be under the supervision of Captain W. R. Higgins, Captain F. V. M. Dyer and Sergeant Lawrence Dempsey, U. S. A.

Members of the team will be entertained at dinner and will stay over night at the fraternity houses.

On the following morning the team will leave for Ames where they will fire a match with the team of the Iowa State college on the same afternoon.

Return matches will be with both of these schools in the near future. Creighton has already had one match with the Iowa State rifle squad and were defeated by the narrow margin of 16 points. This will be the first time that the rifle squad has ever competed out of town.

Dentistry Faculty Forms Rifle Team

The dentistry faculty has organized a rifle team under the direction of Captain W. R. Higgins, U. S. A. Members are: Dr. Leo Hughes; Dr. S. J. Honsa; Dr. E. J. LaPorte; Dr. F. D. Carman; Dr. F. J. Viner.

The team expects to compete with the rifle team of the Iowa State college faculty in the spring.

Dean to Speak

The Rev. Thomas S. Bowden, S. J., dean of the university college, will address students of the school of dentistry February 5 at 1 o'clock. His subject will be "What to Read and How."

No Bells? Prop Man Has Only the Curtain To Ring Down Now

What no telephones? It seems almost impossible that a play has been written in which the script calls for no telephone ringing on or off stage, but that is exactly what has happened. "The Bad Man," the next production of the Creighton Players, has this outstanding characteristic and the property man feels rather "out of it" now that he does not have to dash around and ring bells.

It is rather a relief, too, because that was always one of Bob Gilmore's chief worries to be sure that the buzz of the phone was heard before someone on stage walked over to answer it.

Four will be selected from each sodality to run for the office of prefect of their sodality. The election will be held at the chapel assembly on February 15.

"As prefect," said the Rev. Francis G. Degelman, S. J., student counselor, "the duties will be to assist the Father director in the government and conduct of the sodality."

Even the Trees Shall Move When a Basic Student Gives Orders

"You are in command of a point in an advance guard, you look ahead and see a large tree that has been placed across the road by the enemy, what do you do?" asked Captain F. V. M. Dyer, USA, of a student in his second basic military class.

"I order it to move," was the reply after deep thought and consideration.

The Whole and Its Parts

No university can exist as a healthy functioning organization without active relationship between all its departments. That the whole is more important than its parts should be demonstrated daily on a campus where several colleges have joined together. It is for the advancement of the whole that each college should put forth its best efforts.

This is another instance of a social group where pronounced individuality is an evil. A policy of exclusiveness has been proven unsound economically and socially in the government of nations. The conclusion applies equally to a university.

We have decried the lack of school spirit at Creighton. As a suggestion we recommend the elimination of any attitude of superiority that one school may feel toward another. A spirit of friendly rivalry is constructive; snobbishness is destructive.

PROM ROYALTY AND POLITICS

The annual rumors concerning the king and queen of the Junior-Senior prom, not yet chosen, are making the rounds in a desperate effort to keep the identity of the prom royalty a secret even to themselves, the Student Union governors decided a year ago upon a plan of casting separate ballots.

Each member, according to the plan, selects a first and second choice for king and queen, and the ballots are handed to the dean of men. Their names will be known only to the dean of men, the Students Union manager and the king and queen.

As a means of preventing discovery of the prom royalty the plan has merit but it lays itself open to criticism on the ground that it promotes rather than discourage political trading on the board of governors.

As the membership of the board stands now, eight members can determine who shall be king and queen of the prom. Lest we be accused of pawing the air and discussing remote possibilities we are forced to remind our readers that previous boards have stooped to such action.

In fact, within the memory of all upperclassmen the Union board has elected unpopular prom royalty. As long as there are honors such as offices on the board, which may be obtained by shrewd trading, the choice of the prom king and queen will be a political football.

The student body is forced to accept the choice of the board. It can only hope that the board will be honest in its selection.

CRIBBING AND THE HONOR SYSTEM

Hours of hard work, long technical expressions abbreviated and condensed, codes discernable only to the writer, words written on the wall, words written on shoe leather and words on starched cuffs and for what? To make the home life of students bearable during the next few weeks and because the tension of the exams has caused many of us to lose confidence in ourselves and forget what we have reviewed innumerable times.

"Cribnotes" have been in existence since the day the first exam was given and if students were to delve into the "History of Cribbing" they would probably find some tactics our forefathers used which would make us ashamed of our almost too obvious methods; however, no one can say that we haven't tried.

Paper on two very "petit" rollers with every history question of the past semester answered passed a certain freshman with flying colors. One of the members of the "intelligentsia" from the sophomore class calmly sat and wrote the first semester course of "Beowulf to Thomas Hardy" exam, almost defying the professor to call him down.

Oddly enough, the most vicious cribbing is to be found in the classes of those instructors who constantly remind their students that they do not trust them. The instructors at Creighton who use the honor system, and several of them do, report almost uniform success and students in their classes will testify that cribbing is unknown in these classes.

ANOTHER FORMULA FOR SUCCESS

The campus spotlight column of a week ago tells of a professor who has decided that success ality. Someone decided that the professor's remark was clever and probably it was—clever publicity. A college publicity director will assure you that a great many professors do not shun the front page. But the remark in itself will not stand the test of analysis. What is personality and what is intelligence and what is the essential difference? A psychologist will tell you that intelligence is one of the elements of personality.

However, it is obvious that the professor did not intend to have his harmless remark questioned. It was not intended to be anything but clever. And like so many clever things it happens to be meaningless.

Creighton and Creightonians

By F. G. Degiman, S. J. Student Counsellor

February 2nd is the feast of the Purification of Our Lady, a day held in special devotion by sodalists throughout the world. The day is sometimes called Candlemas because on that day candles to be used in the church and in the homes are blessed with a special ceremony.

This year, February 2 coincides with the first Friday of the month. To answer the question put by a number of inquirers concerning the First Friday communions, it may be well to recall the promise made by Our Lord to St. Margaret Mary. He revealed to her in connection with the Sacred Heart Devotions: "I promise thee in the excessive mercy of My heart that My all-powerful love will grant to all those who communicate on the First Friday in nine consecutive months the grace of filial piety; they shall not die in My disgrace nor without receiving the Sacraments; My divine heart shall be their refuge in this last moment." This promise gave rise to the widespread devotion on the First Friday.

On February 3rd after the closing mass of the retreat the papal blessing will be given and after benediction the throats will be blessed. All are requested to receive this sacramental of the Church.

Snowed Under Facts Daily Northwestern

That American colleges lack creativeness and contribute nothing especially to social problems has long been the cry of the college critics. And that charge is justified.

In answer the faculty innocently "passes the buck" by pleading "It's not our fault; the students don't want to learn." And so the great public brands students as either social-lizzards, "football-maniacs" or "intoxicated imbeciles."

But an intelligent observer of the situation must realize that the trouble with American colleges lies in the ignorance of the faculty, not the students.

"Be creative" admonish the social science professors, mimicking the words of the nation. In the next breath he assigns an examination on specific factual material from his lectures or the text books. The embryonic economist is not encouraged to think creatively about economic conditions; he is stifled by the order to memorize the various divisions of labor. The budding historian is thrown against a mass of facts and dates; the expectant sociologist is crushed by definitions.

And these requirements aren't incidental in the courses; they aren't merely to supply the basis for intelligent study; they are made the purpose and end of the course. In every third lecture, of course, the professor halts the encyclopedic dissertation long enough to remind the class that they aren't thinking creatively.

Can a man or woman think creatively, or think at all on the social sciences when submerged under a mass of data? Unfortunately thinking and memorizing are distinct processes and usually mutually exclusive.

Notice the examinations. Are the questions phrased to demand originality and thought or memory and "crib sheets"? Any professor of a social science who must forbid notes and books at an examination is either too lazy to write an intelligent set of questions or too dumb to realize the difference between creative thinking and parrot-like memorizing.

American students are so busy learning or evading the heaps of factual information thrown at them that they can't intelligently comprehend the course of events.

Jays Keep at Least One Record... They Have Yet to Be Beaten on Home Floor... Big George Comes Back to Notre Dame... One Spittballer Left... Old Man Petrolle.

By TED HIGGINS

When the Butler Bulldogs and the Washington Bears defeated the Creighton Bluejays on their last road trip they spoiled the Jays' previously undefeated record, but this did not greatly hinder the Blues who are determined to have a record to which they can point with pride. By defeating the Drake Bulldogs on the Hilltop court last Saturday night the Jays ran their season's count to seven wins and two losses, presenting a perfect record of wins over opponents who have invaded the Jay court.

Four of Creighton's nine games have been played on the Omaha court with the Bluejays coming out victorious in all of these contests. With the Drake game the Jays started a home stay that will include some of the major Valley opponents, as well as outstanding non-conference rivals, giving local fans a chance to see their team in action in seven straight encounters.

In their home games, the Jays have averaged 47 points as against 23 for their opponents making 111 in two games. With half of the schedule history, the Jays present the following as their half-time record: Nine games played, seven wins and two dropped, 340 points while their opponents have made but 235, outscoring the opposition by 105 points for a game average of 37 points while the opponents have averaged 26 points a game.

Another feature in favor of the Bluejays is the fact that only one team, Butler, has been able to score more than 26 points on the Hilltoppers. And with their win over the Bulldogs from Des Moines, Creighton has still a chance to share in the Valley title, and with a record in the last half of their schedule as they have maintained for their first nine games Creighton will push Butler for Valley honors.

Coach Eddie Hickey's young Bluejays still rate as the outstanding prep school quintet in the state, leading both the interstate and intercity leagues with perfect records, having a victory string of 24 consecutive wins with Thomas Jefferson of Council Bluffs listed as the latest victim. The Junior Jays are rated as the best team in the state.

Is Elmer Layden getting the breaks? Well, I'd say that he is. Why? Do you guys remember big George Melinkovich who roamed the football gridiron with the Irish as a fullback in the 1931-32 season, one of those sick invalids who were wheeled out onto Soldier field and hung up their crutches long enough to defeat the West Point cadets by a score of 28 to 0? Well, it was this same George Melinkovich who scored the first touchdown in this game, and by his excellent blocking, paved the way for the rest. George has declared his intention of enrolling for the spring semester at Notre Dame, making himself eligible for the fall football season. Suffering with sinus trouble for the past year, Melinkovich was forced to drop out of school but is sufficiently recovered to report to Layden as a candidate for the 1934 Notre Dame varsity eleven.

Fourteen years after the spittball was banned by the major leagues, the moist delivery is making its last stand in the two big time circuits. Burleigh Grimes, the fighting old war horse, and Red Faber, even older in point of years, are preparing to carry the banner of the spitters in 1934 fast company. These veterans—Grimes is 41 and Faber 45—are the sole survivors of eighteen hurlers allowed to continue the spittball delivery which was barred in 1920. Grimes has spent weeks of preparation for his hoped-for comeback with the St. Louis Cardinals and the Cards' management recently announced he would be given another chance. Faber hopes to continue with the Chicago White Sox.

Uncle Willie Petrolle, private citizen, peers through puffed eyes down the long road back to his start in the fight business just ten years ago. He is content because his fighting career is over, closed by his own decision, instead of the knockout punches of some fellow who couldn't have carried his water bucket a couple of years ago. He is lonesome, because he lost his final fight last week to Barney Ross, lightweight champion, in the Bronx coliseum and realizing the crowd trails only the winners, Billy made his decision to hang up his gloves.

Grad of 1920 Visits Wareham Hall to Find Place Modernized

A 1920 Creighton graduate dropped into Wareham Hall the other day on his first visit since graduation. He paused at the impressive front entrance of heavy oak and glass doors above semi-circular mullioned windows, recalling the old days when Wareham Hall was St. John's Hall. On entering he was momentarily surprised to find that the lobby is ultra modern in design, colored in various shades of blue, beige, and coral beige. The chairs are the most attractive feature, dull blue leather with angular chromium plated legs and arms. The old grad sank into one of the air cushioned seats, arrested by the calm atmosphere of the place. Above the doorway, the faces of the Wareham sisters inspired him with sentiment as he realized that their generosity made this building possible. There were but two paintings, one of the Swiss Alps, and the other a lake scene. On each side of the French doors leading to the court were silver-tinted wicker gardeners. The visitor noticed a large modernistic ash tray which seemed to be an invitation to smoke. He lit up and sat back, at peace with the world. But not for long, as the muted sound of a violin in the distance was heard. The violinist was evidently practicing finger exercises. The front door was hung open and Ray Fox appeared on

Jays Scrimmage in Preparation for Butler Tilt

Will Return to Court After Layoff of Two Days; Out To Take Revenge for Set-Back Suffered Last Week

BULLDOGS HOLD LEAD

The Bluejay basketballers return to the court this afternoon following a two-day respite given them by Head Mentor Arthur A. Schabinger after they recorded their seventh victory of the current season against the Drake Bulldogs in the Hilltop gymnasium Saturday evening.

Thoughts of the cagemen will turn from the final examinations to the court this afternoon following the past week to the crucial tilt with the Butler Bulldogs on their home rink Monday evening.

Bulldogs at Helm
Coach Tony Hinkle's Bulldogs now hold the lead in the Missouri Valley standing and expect to return to Indianapolis after their four-game trip with the second straight valley crown tucked away.

In conference games, the Bulldogs have recorded two victories in as many starts, one being against the Washington Bears and the other against the Bluejays whom they turned back to the tune of 48 to 30 last week.

Schmidt to Avenge
In the encounter on the Indianapolis court Willard "Willow" Schmidt, the Bluejay six-foot-eight pivot man, was held to a lone field goal before being ousted on account of four personal fouls and he will be out to make up for lost time.

Probable starting lineups:
Creighton Pos. Butler
Engelbretson .. F. Davis
Lomax .. F. Batts
Schmidt .. C. Demmay
Miller .. G. Baird
Kockrow .. G. Parish

With the half-way mark reached in the Creighton schedule, Emil "Box" Engelbretson, sophomore forward, continues to hold his place as individual scoring leader of the blue quintet. Jack Lomax, with 72 points, holds second place with Smith, Miller in order named. Engelbretson has an average of 11 points a game for the nine contests played.

The scorers:

Playing of Both Quintets Is Erratic as Set-Up Shots Missed; Pivotmen Rivalry Fails to Materialize

LOMAX HIGH SCORER

Dr. Arthur A. Schabinger's Bluejay basketballers returned to their home court Saturday evening after suffering losses at the hands of Butler and Washington earlier in the week and handed Coach Bill Williams' Drake Bulldogs a 31 to 21 beating in a game that was witnessed by 2,400 fans. The game was marked with ragged play on the part of both the local and invading cagemen and it was not until the Bluejays changed their offensive tactics in the final stanza of the game that there were signs of the up-to-par style of play that the Bluejays displayed in registering six consecutive victories.

Only One Long

Time after time the ball lined the hoop, only to fall off into the waiting hands of the barricaders who joined in the basket tossing free-for-all. The rings were apparently greased for only one long shot was registered during the evening's play.

The proposed and much discussed duel between the lank pivot men, Willard "Willow" Schmidt and Leonard Cole, did not materialize to the heights expected and it was "Cracker" Jack Lomax and Bill McCloud that furnished the show.

Drake Leads, 5 to 4

At the end of the first 15 minutes of play the Bulldogs were enjoying a 5 to 4 lead. After that the lead saw-sawed and not until the gun barked finish could the game be tucked away among the victories of either team.

The Bluejays were leading, 14 to 9, at half time and maintained at least the five-point margin until the game ended. It was not

Aggies Defeat Pioneers to Win First Victory After Eight Losses

Game Is Won in Closing Seconds by Margin of One Point; Mason Makes Shot

The Oklahoma Aggies broke a losing streak of eight games by defeating the Grinnell Pioneers in a Missouri Valley basketball contest Saturday by the score of 29 to 28.

With only seconds of the game remaining, Mason, Grinnell forward, caged a field shot to put the Pioneers in front, 28 to 27, but Shirk, Aggie guard, followed with the victory flip from mid-court as the final gun sounded.

The Aggies led 16 to 10 at the half and maintained their lead until Santi and Mason began clicking for the visitors midway of the second period. Oliphant's basket gave Grinnell its first advantage, 20 to 19, and from then on the lead changed hands six times.

Mason took individual scoring honors with 13 points, with Wade of the Aggies second, with 10.

Five of Seven Mardi Gras Princesses Saw First Affair in 1928

The Princesses who will walk in his year's Mardi Gras procession at Duchesne are members of the first class to have spent its four years in the new college building. Five of these 7 girls attended the academy and witnessed the first Mardi Gras ceremony held at Duchesne.

Six springs ago the athletic department of Duchesne first sponsored the event which since then has become a traditional one at the college. Mildred Guggenmos physical education instructor, had charge of the first affair, and has attended every year since, watching it grow into the most important social event at Duchesne.

Catherine Tobin, the first Mardi Gras queen, has since entered the Holy Cross order of religious at South Bend.

Except for the growing importance and honor attached to the event, there have been no changes in the ceremony, from that first ball of 6 years ago. The same crown and scepter is used each year in the coronation, and the same royal train of blue velvet edged with ermine, worn over the white dress of the Queen.

The pages have always worn white, and as a rule the gowns of the Princesses have been in pastel shades. Last year the school colors were used in the decorating scheme and in the dresses of the princesses.

Phoebe McCarthy, queen of last year's ball, was also president of the senior class. The gathering that witnessed the ceremony last February was twice that of any previous year, and a large increase is expected this year.

To Work in Pantomime

Work in the class, which is a two-hour course, will begin with wordless pantomime which Miss Peterson believes is the fundamental step in acting. Later in the semester the students will improvise plays.

"Pantomime brings all the imaginative powers of the student into play," said Miss Peterson, recounting the values of this primary work. "Through it they gain body control and secure grace and ease on the stage. It shows their

Pantomime Acting to be Stressed By Duchesne Dramatic Director

Pantomime, improvising, interpretation, and voice work will all be included in the class of acting to begin at Duchesne this second semester under Miss Ellen Peterson.

Miss Peterson will teach at Duchesne during the absence of Miss Lucille McGrath, head of the dramatic department. She graduated from the speech department of Northwestern in 1931, and formerly attended Duchesne academy. At Northwestern she was especially interested in play-directing and interpretation.

"Integration of voice and body into a fine interpretation of character is what we hope to achieve through this new course," said Miss Peterson.

Later in the semester, the students will improvise plays and give spontaneous dialogue. Only towards the end of the course will they study plays already written.

"A course in acting is really essential before students attempt to produce plays," said Miss Peterson. "Only in that way can they arrive at an understanding of what plays should represent."

"Perfect mastery of voice and body is the ultimate aim of the course," added Miss Peterson.

Her enthusiasm about the work matches that of the students who have registered for it. Last year Miss Peterson directed plays given for the benefit of the Community Chest fund.
