First Month Is Completed For April Session; Vets Comment

Textbook Shortage Is Vet's Main Issue

Mid-termers completing their first month at Creighton had some pretty definite praise and criticism to hand out in a survey taken this week. April sessioners in general expressed satisfaction with a well organized curriculum and with the efforts made to readjust them to school life.

April first session . . . enjoying the spring weather on the campus.

Some aspects were not so pleasing. The textbook shortage came under heavy fire as making study much more difficult. In some courses, texts were almost entirely lacking. The students also commented on the lack of a broader sports program and the lax attitude toward social activities.

Del Klein, A 1: "The courses are well organized, the teachers are pretty good, and the textbooks pretty good except for the Oxford dictionary, which is not complete enough. In general, I like Creighton."

No Classes, No Cuts, No Books; Nuthin' But Fun

No one knows when or where; if they do, they won't talk, but it's bound to come out sooner or later. There comes a day in every school year when students, in a body, must assert their independence, and faculty members must reconnoiter and plan the strategy of final exams.

Robert Brennan, A 1: "Creighton is okay with me. I was lucky to get all my textbooks. Taking such a concentrated course is sort of monotonous and takes a lot of study but the courses are interesting just the same."

and with a last attempt to refill his lungs with air, grew limp and ceased to struggle. The doctor said, "Slow down, driver. Speed won't do this fellow any good." That night, 20 minutes after the ambulance pulled up to the morgue door, a young woman gave birth to twins. The children never saw their father. This was one of many tragedies brought about by the combination of too much liquor and a speeding automobile. By the great number of such incidents, one would judge that these conditions are exceptions to the rule that: "Experience is a great teacher."—J.F.

The Ceiling Story

The gloomiest picture of the week is the battered and broken OPA on its deathbed. Unless the Senate counteracts the work of the House on the bill extending the OPA, any semblance of price control will be ended.

The end of price control in Omaha should not cause any drastic change; price ceilings seem to be merely a name here anyway.

The automobile situation is a good example of this. The ceiling on a 1941 Pontiac sedanette is around $1,300. Saturday, a used car dealer on Harney street asked $1,700 for just such a car. And he didn't smile when he asked this price.

On Dodge, the situation seems to be worse. For a 1941 Chevrolet coupe, ceiling about $1,000, a dealer asked $1,550. "I have to do some body work on it," he explained.

Private owners work this way too. The usual method is to advertise a car in the paper at ceiling, then when the prospective buyer shows up, the owner announces he will take the highest bid. The highest bid is generally well over ceiling.

This auction system has developed into a vicious circle. The dealer can't buy a car for ceiling so of course he doesn't sell for ceiling. It would be impossible to discover who started this practice, even more impossible to stop it.

The same situation exists in any other industry where price ceilings exist. Why keep the OPA? It seems to be little more than a name.—W.H.G.

Movie Morals

At least once a week, America lines up at the box office to see the current comedy, musical or drama. Plain to see, no other means of communication presents ideas more graphically and forcefully than the motion picture.

Johnny Jones runs home from a Dr. Gillespie epic, vowing that he will be a doctor. Chances are that he might be. Mr. Jones, comes away from a travelogue with a better understanding of how other people live. Mrs. Jones keeps abreast of the fashions at the latest drawing-room comedy. All well and good.

But, the impression received may not always be of the proper moral tone. For example, it is easy to note a lax attitude toward marriage in any number of recent pictures. It is mocked, satirized and made light of, while conversely, divorce has become the normal thing. This has no small connection with our rising divorce rate.

Such is the influence, good and bad, of the movie. Its morals reflect the morals of the nation. That puts it up to the average, church-going, clean-living American to see that the movies maintain a high moral standard. He can do it because he holds the purse-strings of the movie industry.—J.V.Q.

Student Counselor Says

By F. G. Degelman, S. J.

Wednesday opened the month of May, the month of the Blessed Mother. In the sad grief of Good Friday, the world may have forgotten the greatness of another gift given on that hallowed day of redemption when the Saviour bequeathed unto us His Mother. She is His dying gift.

A gift, indeed. The Fathers of the early Church call Mary the channel of all graces, to show the intimate position of the Blessed Mother in the work of redemption. Throughout the ages, Mary has been held in veneration by the Christian world. Sculptors and painters and poets drew their inspiration from the Virgin Mother of God. Saints and sinners have found in her joy and consolation.

The Saviour gave her to mankind. All may honor her by loving her. Love is a mighty force that urges to serve the beloved. It is a constant inspiration to deeds of valor and sacrifice. It urges the close imitation of the ideals and virtues of the beloved one.

The month of May must therefore be a month of renewed Christian and Catholic life.

Salesman Puls Uses Subtle Method Of Publicity For McShane Contest

If anyone is interested in learning how to become a high-pressure salesman, see Edwin Puls, assistant instructor of speech. The large turnout at the McShane speech contest was due largely to the efforts of Mr. Puls.

Here is one reason why the contest held last night was a success. Mr. Puls told his speech classes that it would be "A" fine thing if each student brought a dozen guests. If they came along, that would "B" all right, and if they had a legitimate excuse for not coming, but invited a guest, he would "C." He was very subtle about the whole thing in a foxy sort of way.

Hilltop Actors May Be Stars Of Tomorrow

'Mid the smell of paint and the noise of hammers and saws coming from the Hilltop auditorium, a curious visitor can, on close inspection, see eager, hard-working performers "sweating it out" on the ladder and paint-laden stage.

A passerby would think these were professional troupers, because they do so well under such adverse conditions. We on the Hill, however, know them as our friends and classmates. So we are even more amazed to see how professional they are.

Who knows but that some day in the not too distant future, these campus troupers may be idols of the "great white way" or the 1950 winner of the coveted "Oscar." On that day you are going to be mighty proud to say, "I knew him well. We went to college together," only to have people stare in wide-eyed envy.

This show is going to be a great opportunity for all of us. For those hard-working actors, it opens the way to a bright future, as the swoon king of the bobby-soxers or the pin-up girl of the nation. For the rest of us, on the other side of the footlights, it gives us a chance to see first hand the big names of tomorrow.

University of Akron For the first time since 1942, the college of engineering staged its traditional Engineering Day celebration. Some of the contests were a beard growing competition, a beer quaffing contest, a tobacco spittin' match, and other more prosaic things like baseball, tug-of-war, and basketball. This year four girls are enrolled in the college of engineering, which heretofore was strictly a masculine field of endeavor.

Devotions Held

Devotions to the Blessed Virgin will be held during the month of May at 11:55 each day at the shrine in back of the Administration building. In case of rain, the devotions will be held in the church. They will be continued until semester examinations begin. The Litany of Loretto will be recited.

SEMI-SHADOWS

THE CORRUPT RIVER

By Gerald McNichols The black, eerie, bottomless river stretched out below me as I peered down from my perch on the bridge railing. So quiet... so still... so unobtrusive... like the passive destruction it was. Waiting... always waiting, never asserting its obviously omnipotent, evil character on the world. It was simply occupying space defamously, serving as a "never-never" land where people might go when tired of the rest of the places available to their meager capabilities.

Yes, it could be that, or perhaps... unexpressed corrupt power, materially only below, or on the sides. Actually, all about us, breathing its evil, incensed, taunting challenge into the ring to subdue our champion's earnest quest for "light." Oh! that we could overcome it! Less, even serve to conceive the structure of this "power of the elements," so we might fashion the tools with which to combat it, defeat it... and free ourselves from oppression.

Yes, some day I expect we will do just that. Wipe out the corrupt political factions that somehow float along much the same as this black river, powerful and dangerous, yet so unobtrusive.

"Strong Man Fromkin" Is Threat To Supremacy Of Champ Atlas

Don't let it be known to too many people, but Creighton has the challenger to the title held by the well-known Charles Atlas. No, he isn't to be seen carting the world around on his shoulders but he is known by the name of Bob Fromkin and is a sophomore in the college of arts and sciences.

Bob acquired this distinction while in training at the bombardier school at Carlisle, N. M., in 1944. In cadet competition in the physical fitness reports, Bob scored 98 out of a possible 100. This broke the previous Army Air Forces record of 95 set by a cadet at Marfa, Tex., and made Fromkin the pace-setter for over two million men in the air forces.

As a reward for his record, Bob received two bottles of bourbon (good bourbon, according to Bob) from the commanding officer of his base, the famous Col. Patrick J. "Patty" Ryan, father of the school of modern bombardiering. For the two bottles, Bob did 114 sit-ups, the maximum number of chin-ups, 32, and ran the 300-yard shuttle run in four seconds over the minimum time of 40 seconds.

Reconversion Has Strangest Effect On Logic Student

Nervous Breakdowns In Class Cause Wanderings

By Bill Fogarty

After having had four nervous breakdowns at one time in logic class, I was sent on a two-hour vacation by the faculty. In the course of my wanderings, I came upon what appeared to be two yellow doors.

No Mirages! Shaking my head, I looked again and to my utter consternation I found they were not a mirage. "This indeed is total peace," I muttered and resigned myself to the fact that reconversion had set in. Weaving badly, I stumbled through them and slumped down in a seat. Leaning back, I gazed up into the soft blue sky and watched the clouds move slowly across it.

Suddenly I was jarred from my reverie by a rough hand which tugged at my coat. A rasping voice said, "I beg your pardon, sir, but the mixture of pigment and drying oil which forms the adherent covering of that seat is still in its liquid state. Remove yourself with all dexterity." Getting out my pocket dictionary, I translated that into, "Move it, jerk, it's wet paint."

Apply Freely After several applications of turpentine, I attained an almost presentable appearance and looked around. With a choked cry, I realized that I was in the auditorium. "Hey, who stole the Creighton boys?" I shouted at the leering painters.

"Three guesses," they said, smiling proudly. This was too much for me and I sat down in the aisle and sobbed. I thought of the many times I had survived speeches and plays by sitting and wondering what the Count would look like with just a mustache.

Gripping Survey Getting a grip on myself, I surveyed the surroundings. The sky I had gazed at was only paint; the clouds were painted, too. As a matter of fact, I was pretty well painted myself. Nothing was the same any more and after such an experience I doubt if I will be, either.

And so, deciding that I would rather have my mind broken than my heart, I headed back to the Administration building to turn in my two-hour pass and again give battle to complex dilemmas.

Library Popular With Studious Omaha Vets; Prefer It To Beany

The library on the second floor of the Administration building has suddenly become very popular. With the many vets who enrolled at the beginning of the second semester or for the April term, it has become even more popular than the Beanyery. Many of these vets live in Omaha and so do not have time to run home between classes to do a little extra studying.

As one vet remarked: "Because of the war, I was forced to leave school; now that I have had the chance to return to my studies, I want to do as much studying as possible and see if I can't receive better grades than I did in '42."

Big Boy Boomed in Boston

Remember the time in Yankee stadium when the fans were booing with vengeance the one and only Joe "Giuseppe" DiMaggio? Joe, being a Yankee, made matters a little confusing. It seems that Joe had been a holdout and the fans were giving him a bad time. . . Right now another star is getting the old Bronx cheer, only this time it has a Boston accent. Big Boy Ted Williams, that lanky bunch of baseball powerhouse, is the receiver. "Fireman" Ted has been booed before, but not in Boston. It seems that Ted isn't hitting like he said he was. But wait 'til those booes get on his nerves. . . that right field wall in the Red Sox park will soon acquire some new dents.

English Proves Reputation

The Field Club's fairways are still a little scorched from Monday's Jim English-Irv Ziegman intramural golf match. English wasted no time in proving why he was pre-tourney favorite. After 18 holes, Jim's card showed a sensational 70 (two under regulation figures for the tough Field Club layout). He was also 10 strokes up on Ziegman.

Friday night's dance, sponsored by the "C" club, was a special tribute to the basketball letter man and student body alike to their coach, J. V. "Duce" Belford. The inscription was followed by the names of last year's cage letter men. With the trophy in hand, Nick Padgen explained that "Duce" was attending the Drake Relays and was unable to attend. He went on to say that the basketball team showed great spirit in honoring its coach.

Nick added: "Duce" was a grand guy in 1935 when I was playing here. There was nothing too little or too much that 'Duce' could do for his boys, even though at the time he wasn't head coach. This is an unusual and great tribute to a coach."

Here at Creighton for almost 20 years, "Duce's" first time as head coach was a very hard time to assume the duties of coaching a basketball team. With no letter men whatsoever "Duce" led his "play for fun" lads to a very good season. The victory over St. Louis university will be remembered as the crowning point of last season's record.

Preliminaries will be run off on May 6 and the finals will be May 8. All those who are interested in the swimming meet have until May 6 to enter.

Softball Meet Delayed For Team Entries

The intramural softball tournament is still nothing but a sheet of paper filed in the athletic department. The deadline on entries has been set back to Monday, May 6. The date has been changed because only three teams submitted entries before the original deadline. "Duce" Belford, who is in charge of the meet, said that there will have to be at least three more teams before they can start play.

If "Duce" has the minimum number of entries next Monday, the teams will be playing by the middle of the week. The schedule will have to be accelerated to enable a champion to be named by the end of the semester.

If possible, the games will be played at the convenience of participants, probably in the late afternoon or on week-ends. Diamonds will be laid out in the stadium.

Umpires have not been selected but it is probable that Don Fleming and Nick Padgen, who handled the recent basketball tourney, will do the honors behind the plate.

Teams entered in the tournament so far are Joe Loisel's Eight Ball club, McGowan's Ramblers, and Paul Sorrentino's Bums.

Jim English . . . university golf champ.

Jim Defeats Irv Ziegman For Crown

In the finals of the long drawn out golf tourney, Jim English proved without a doubt his pre-tournament reputation.

In the scheduled 36-hole final match with Irv Ziegman, A. 2, who is not an easy mark on any golf course, English really got hot. He went out on the first nine at the Field Club and came in with an even par 36, 5-up on Ziegman, who had a 41.

After the twelfth hole, English was 7-up with six holes to go. Thus ended the first half of the match. But, in order to qualify in the low score medal play tourney, English and Ziegman completed the 18 holes. English's total was a sizzling two under par 70. Ziegman had 41-39, for an 80 total.

In the second half of the 36-hole match, only nine holes were needed to decide the university golf champion. At the end of the nine holes the two finalists were even. English was 9-up at the end of 27 holes of excellent golf.

In the original plans to choose the varsity golf team, it was decided by Duce Belford, golf mentor, that in order to decide more accurately and more fairly the team, a low score medal round would be played besides the match tourney.

Last Monday Duce held the first medal round at the Field Club. Links King English led the competition with a 70. Bill Schmitz, A. 3, an apparent dark horse in Creighton golf circles, followed English with a sparkling 78.

Ex-Navy Pilot Dale Lee, J. 1, who used to do a lot of fine golfing at Benson High, came in with a nice 79.

Match Finalist Irv Ziegman had an 80, which is a little over Irv's average score.

Al Kelly, C. 1, who does much with a set of clubs, toured the difficult Field Club in 83 strokes.

Jim Eastman, C. 1, one of the pre-tourney favorites, had an 85, and Tommy'Brien, C. 1, whose scores usually correspond with his size, slipped to an 89.

With the intramural match and the round robin medal tourneys over, Coach Belford had ample material from which to choose his varsity club.

Duce announced that for the two coming matches with Omaha university, the Blue team would consist of the following men: Jim English, Dale Lee, Bill Schmitz, Irv Ziegman, and Al Kelly. The alternates will be Jim Eastman and Jerry Weirick.

Duce also announced that these five men won't necessarily be permanent team members, because any golfer in the university can challenge them for a berth in future collegiate competition.

Skip Days . . .

(Continued from Page 1.) "One O'clock Jump." Pharmacy and law have already outlined plans, and arts and commerce students will meet next week to make arrangements. "Pharmacy Day" will be held at Elmwood park. Journalists have chosen Carter Lake park as a tentative spot for a picnic. It's all quite vague and no one's sure of anything, but there will be a skip day, so "skip" the brain work, "scoop" up your old clothes and join the crowd in "just being bums."

HERESAY

Let's start out the koha with good news this week. Have any of you ever taken the time to count how many days there are left until school is out? Or until exams start, that is? There are just eleven days! Isn't that amazing? Say it is.

Seen at Peony Park

Many Creightonites were seen at Peony Park, both Saturday and Sunday nights. Some couples seen there were Bill Morgan and Maxlene Ford, Tom Muldoon and Marg Kocina, Tom and Donna Dunn, Chuck McDonald and DeLores Hayes, Rusty McDermott and Jane Hayes, Bob Wear and Franke Ryder, Ross Nisi and Olga Bavaresco, Subby Salerno and Dot Kudlacz, Patty Walters and Vincent Del Guidans, Ann Scannell and Leo Stewart, Earl Montgomery and Margaret St. Lawrence, Dutch Bomgardner and Jane Ann Skinner, Jim Flanagan and Bette Hill, Ray Shaddy and Ione Tarry, Jim Dodson and Mickey Giles.

Three Irishmen—Murphy, Malone and O'Brien—chased all the way over to Council Bluffs to go to a house party which was being held in Omaha. Sorta got your wires crossed, didn't you, fellas? Bill Granberg, what were you doing in the commerce coed cottage last Monday afternoon?

Song Dedication

If the 1490 Swing Club can do it, so can we—song dedication: "It's the Talk of the Town," for Joyce Zimmerman, sent in by Jerry Cavony. Yup, Joyce and Jerry called the whole thing off (no resemblance to any ears appearing in past issues of this paper). We're very sorry that the mistake was made in last week's column by calling Delta Sigs, Phi Deltas—won't you forgive us, please? Times are really moving fast. Bill Jurgensen has taken a sudden interest in Rosemary Lyons as his buddy, Mullaney, sits drooling by.

Picnic Time

Hazeldell was the center of a roaring picnic last Saturday night. Those attending were Tom Keefe, Ralph Bradley, Les Nash, and Ray Bradley. The majority being former Air Corps men, they thoroughly hashed over the late world conflict.

Our deepest regrets to Joe Miller. We sympathize, Joe, with anyone whose birthday results in acute gastritis.

Bob Frock and Jim Herbert have now officially hung their frat pins—they passed out cigars at the Delta Sig meeting Monday night.

Irresistible Type

What we would all like to know is how come Jim McCuekin is such a charming, admirable character—the irresistible type? If you would condescend, Jim, some of the male members of Creighton would like your advice.

Seen at Blackstone

Seen at the Blackstone hotel Saturday night were Pat Berigan and Bill Oelrich, Bev Vasto and Bob Frock. Staggering it were Joe Schmich, Joe Swenney, Dick Campbell, Dick Heider, and Bob Billig. The title of Man of the Year should go to Jim Bennet for his nobility of soul and firmness of ideal in dealing with his nefarious roommate.

Fair warning to the weaker sex! Charles Kerrick is again best by his neurosis. The cause is State National Boards. Charlie feels that he cannot consider his many female admirers until this, his greatest love, is past.

Dwaine Peetz has a new love. The only confusing thing is why he refuses to let anyone see her! What is the difficulty, Dwaine?

Question of the Week

The question of the week—"When is Dick Krill going to let down and give out with the facts?" Is it pride, Dick? Here is a bit of advice that may come in handy to some Creighton students—when writing love letters it might be well to begin with "My dear sweetheart and gentlemen of the jury." And so... even though this week-end is ahead and lots of things are happening... still...

son High school, attended the University of Wichita (Kans.). Mr. Quinley attended Sacred Heart High school in Salina and is a pre-medical student at Creighton university school of medicine. He spent six months with the Army in the Philippines.

Cardella And Cimino Betrothal Announced

The engagement of Miss Marion Ann Cardella, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Cardella, to Joseph Cimino, P. 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. Salvatore Cimino, was announced last week at a formal dance at the Paxton hotel.

Deluded Americans . . .

(Continued from Page 1.) Barmine agrees with William L. White, one of the few outsiders who managed to travel around Russia recently and get an eyewitness report of actual conditions. Barmine reports that the standard of living is lower than was that of our poorest on WPA. Stalin, himself, and his commissars live in luxury, but the great majority of the people are in a wretched condition."

The author of "One Who Survived" excoriates purblind apologists for Russia like Joseph E. Davies and a host of commentators and broadcasters who defend everything that Stalin does. When one reads page after page of this well-documented book, listing the long roll of human beings sent to death, the double-crossings, the treacheries that this man has done guilty of, and then reads or listens to the silly twaddle of his blind defenders, one cannot help but think of Shakespeare's statement, "Oh judgment, thou hast fled to brutish beasts and men have lost their reason." In the opinion of Barmine, the Socialist experiment has visibly failed. Democracy is dead. Tyranny is enthroned.

Mrs. Markovitz Visits

Mary Jean Markovitz, C. 1, was visited by her mother over the week-end. Mrs. Markovitz was enroute to her home in Aberdeen, S. D., after a visit in Kansas City, Mo.

FASHION FLASHES

Tomorrow night is the big event! The Inter-Sorority dance, which is being held at the Fontenelle hotel, will start at 9 p.m. For the past few weeks, much talk has centered around this dance and the coeds have enthusiastically discussed the subject of formals.

Among those at the dance will be Donna Jean Gross in her formal, which has a black lace top, a round neckline, and cap sleeves. Her white net skirt is dotted with Kelly green. Pat Dwyer's sleeveless green and white taffeta formal has a sweetheart neckline and full skirt. Kathleen Ryder will model a rose colored plaid gown made of taffeta.

Jeanette Larson's off-the-shoulder formal has a yellow lace top with a peplum and a yellow skirt. Mary McQuade will be attired in a white dotted rayon formal. It is low-waisted and has a full skirt. Marilyn Fuhs' orchid formal is made from stardust organza. Barbara Downing will wear white eyelot. Her long-waisted dress has a sweetheart neckline and short sleeves.

A white net skirt and a white lace top with a peplum comprise Jean Cunningham's formal. It has a sweetheart neckline and dainty cap sleeves. With it she will wear a white lace hat and long, white, lace gloves. A black and white striped taffeta formal will be modeled by Che Haller. It will have a V-neck, cap sleeves, and a full skirt. Her black ribbon belt will terminate in streamers.

Virginia Shaddy's black faille sleeveless gown has a full skirt and sweetheart neckline. Mary Ann Ward has chosen a light blue net formal which has a round neckline and short puffed sleeves. Marge Lippold's off-the-shoulder formal is made of aqua lace. Dorothy Tobin's pale blue dress also has drop shoulders and a full skirt.

Mustard green, black, and white are the colors which comprise Rosie Morton's print formal. Somewhat Mexican in style, it has a round neckline, short sleeves, and pleated skirt. The midriff is of black velvet.

The pity of it all is that this Red menace of which Stalin is the personification is trying to capture the whole world so that everywhere over freedom's grave it may sing its diabolical requiem.

Liberal Arts Helps Develop Intellect, Fr. McCabe Asserts

"The educated man has a background in the liberal arts field and an intensive education in a specialized subject," the Very Rev. William H. McCabe, S.J., president of the university, said Monday.

"All men have common qualities—a brain and an intellect. Some men have special gifts. The American college plan, Father McCabe said, "is based on the development of the common qualities to form a background for use of a man's special gifts in a particular field."

Father McCabe pointed out that the engineer is now required to study literature and its allied subjects to a more extensive degree, because it develops the imagination and the creative processes of thought.

"By requiring all students to take a minimum of two years in the arts college before going into the professional and specialized fields, Creighton tries to develop the intellect and its means of expression," Father McCabe said.

'Share Alike'—Or My Brother Is Not My Keeper

The time for action was at hand. H-hour had arrived. Being an aggressive soul, I started to follow the plan of attack to the last letter. I did not shudder and I felt very sure of victory. Who was there to oppose me in my greatest hour?

Boldly I marched toward my objective. Only a few more steps to go and it would be mine, the only thing that would make my fondest dreams come true. Only "it" would open the door to success.

I knew the combination well and it worked perfectly at the right moment. The door opened and there before me was—"It" was gone? But where was it? Had it been stolen? Yes, that was the only feasible answer. But what was I to do? Without "it" all my dreams would vanish into the realm of "it might have been."

My moment was approaching and I was in the despair of defeat. Perhaps—no, it couldn't be! Without "it" I was lost, doomed never to hold my head high on Saturday night again. I would forever more be the forgotten man.

Alas and beware! Never wear the same size white shirt as your brother. Or do you like colors?
