FIRST HOMECOMING DAY HUGE SUCCESS IN EVERY RESPECT

Old Grads Return from Every Direction for Great Celebration

With an ideal Fall day, sunshine and clear skies, Creighton's Homecoming was all that could have been hoped for by the most optimistic of her well-wishers.

From east coast to west, and from north to south the alumni came to see what progress Creighton had undergone in the lapse of years. Surprise at the splendid advance made by their Alma Mater, in the past decade or two, was heard wherever a group of grads stopped for a short chat over the "old days."

At nine a. m. the registration opened with a bang and all morning the rush continued. Seven hundred and forty-two former students had passed through the library of the Administration building, up until 1:30 when registration closed. It is estimated that twice this number were back for the fun, since a large number of Homecomers did not reach Omaha until almost time for the game. Many of the Omaha alumni were able to attend the festivities only in the afternoon or evening, and hence did not have the opportunity to register.

Among the first to register were J. A. Devine, D.D.S., '09, of Cheyenne, Wyo., and John Ottis, A.B., '89, of St. Paul, Minn. Edward J. McGinn, who attended the Arts department from '78 to '80, was also on deck early.

Dr. Burke F. Gillespie, M.D., '16, who came from Kennicott, Alaska, holds the palm for distance traveled. The members of this class seem to have made the greatest effort to reach Omaha on November 18. Charles Beadles, another Medic of '16, resigned his position with the Red Cross in Vienna, Austria, so as to arrive in the states for Homecoming.

If you consider the greatest number of alumni coming from one town outside of Omaha, Greeley, Nebr., can claim the honor of sending the largest delegation. We counted eleven Greeley men in one group. Tom Lanigan, A.B., '09, who headed the delegation, says that there are fifty more strong Creighton boosters at Greeley, but that it wasn't deemed advisable to desert the town, so only part of them came to Omaha. Included in this group of Homecomers were A. J. O'Malley, J. H. O'Malley, T. W. Lanigan, J. M. Lanigan, E. J. Bowen, George Brannen, Dr. J. L. Doyle, Dr. M. M. Sullivan, Dr. M. Dowd, and A. F. Emery.

ANNOUNCE LEADERS IN ARTS CLASSES

Class leaders for the first quarter in the Arts College were announced this week. Michael Gleason led the Seniors and James Doyle the Juniors. The following won highest honors in the other classes: Sophomore Arts, James Smith and Joseph Dunlay; Sophomore B.S. in Medicine, Joseph Swoboda; Sophomore Pre-legal, Frank Custer; Freshman Arts Milton Abrahams; Freshman B.S. and Ph.B., Louis Wallace and Albert Morrissey; Freshman B.S. in Medicine, Clarence Moran; Freshman Arts-Medic, Logan Finnerty; Freshman Pre-legal, Joseph Pallat.

CREIGHTON TO MEET NEBRASKA WESLEYANS

Another North Central conference grid team travels to the Hilltop stadium this week to challenge the Blue's supremacy in the new loop. The Nebraska Wesleyan eleven, running next to Midland college in the state conference title race, will tackle Creighton Saturday.

It will be the third conference game on the Blue and White schedule. Two conference teams, Des Moines and South Dakota University, have already felt the winning smashes of our fighting team. With an equal burst of speed and spirit against the Wesleyans, the Lincoln outfit should be beaten.

And the Baldrige colony of gridmen has done no resting on laurels this week. The Hilltoppers jumped right into their preparatory grind for Saturday's mix with the same snap that has characterized their training sessions all season. No serious injuries are on the squad books, so the entire big string will be seen in action against the invading state team.

EMINENT SCIENTIST ADDRESSES MEDICS

On last Friday afternoon the students at the medical school were addressed by Dr. William Carpenter MacCarty of the Mayo Foundation, Rochester, Minn., who was here to appear before the Medical Alumni Association. Dr. MacCarty chose as his topic the "Making of a Doctor."

In the course of his talk he outlined the historical epochs in the development of our present day knowledge, and showed how they have influenced modern methods. Starting with the early superstitions of the primitive peoples, he brought his review down through the periods of Greek and Roman advances in anatomy, through the therapeutic practices of the middle ages and into the symptomatic period of what might be called modern work.

Further subdivisions of this latter period he classes as the microscopic age, when refinements in optical instruments made possible the strides taken in histology and embryology; and as the chemical age, in which period he considers we are now. He predicted that several more outstanding epochs would come in the due course of time, and listed them as the chemico-physical age, the biological age, and finally as the physical period at which time all vital phenomena can be explained by known physical laws.

He concluded his address by criticising present day methods of elementary and secondary education, which permitted men of lax intellectual habits to reach the universities for medical work. He proposed to remedy this condition by getting in touch with the student intending to study medicine at an earlier age.

The address proved very interesting throughout and was well received by the students.

MAY FORM CHESS CLUB

Students who wish to learn the game of chess, and those who can play it, should kindly notify E. B. Goodman of the Senior Law class. Organization into a chess club will follow if enough students are interested.

OVER TWO THOUSAND PEOPLE PRESENT AT HOMECOMING DANCE

Most Brilliant Affair of School Year

Over two thousand alumni and students, as well as their wives and sweethearts, were the guests of the Union at the Gym, Saturday night. The dance brought Creighton's first Homecoming day to a most successful close. By nine p. m. one glance at the crowd would easily convince anyone that every past and present Creighton man was there with bells on. Father McCormick, president of the University, welcomed the Alumni with a few short remarks. The silver loving cup was then presented to the Arts class of 1918. This class had the largest percentage of homecoming alumni, returning for the celebration. The cup was presented by Dr. Langdon. The Gym was very appropriately decorated with blue and white streamers, and much credit should be given to the Inter-fraternity Council for the excellent manner in which they carried out this difficult task. Spinharney's twelve-piece orchestra, made up exclusively of Creighton musicians, furnished the music for the occasion, and was very much enjoyed by all the dancers. The famous Keno Quartet entertained with a few favorite songs. Several staunch Unionists put on private numbers of their own. The success of the evening was largely due to the efforts of Julius Burger, general chairman of the dance.

ANNOUNCE R. O. T. C. APPOINTMENTS FOR YEAR AT REVIEW

At a regular battalion review last Friday, appointments and promotions for the Arts R. O. T. C. were announced. Edward S. Maloney was appointed Major of the battalion. Bernard H. Jacobberger, Gordon H. Hammill, John H. Walters, Francis E. Fitzgerald, John W. Kimball, and John B. Otte were given the rank of Captains. The following First Lieutenants were named: Lester E. Kramer, Laurence H. Brown, Paul Koehn, George Koehn, Felix Crowley, Julius A. Humphrey, Alvin H. Goeser, Lambert A. Hoch, Theodore Bluechel, and Herbert Lichtenberger.

The following were assigned Second Lieutenantcies: Logan T. Finnerty, Henry R. Dozier, Hubert Von Tersch, Darwin Bone, John P. Kelly, Lawrence Glynn, John Redden, Robert Kirlin, Henry Leermakers, Edward Bourbeau, Will B. Flanagan, and Odillo Suing. Addison V. Brandon was appointed color sergeant. The appointments were made by Major Hoffman, head of the unit.

As long as the weather permits, the battalion reviews will be held at 10:00 A. M. on Fridays. With the arrival of the last consignment of uniforms here, the entire unit is now fully equipped. This fact, coupled with the rapid improvement which is greatly in evidence, makes the reviews a spectacle well worth watching. Visitors are welcomed at all times.

C. U. GRAD ON MEDIC STAFF AT FT. CROOK

Recent changes in the personnel of the medical staff at Fort Crook have brought back to Omaha one of the old graduates of the Medical School, Major John W. Meehan, M.C., U. S. A. who has been transferred here from Fort Snelling, Minn., to take charge of the laboratory work at the local post.

Major Meehan was graduated in the class of 1908, and shortly afterwards entered the army. He has gone through successive promotions and, at the outbreak of the World War, was placed in command, as Lieutenant-Colonel, of the first Hospital Train sent to France for duty.

On his return to the States he was granted a year's leave, during which time he enrolled in the School of Public Health at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, and was granted his degree of Doctor of Public Health. The usual course for this degree in this new branch of medical work is two years, but Dr. Meehan's previous experience in Army Public Health Service was given consideration and his course reduced by one-half.

CREIGHTON ALUMNI ANSWER ROLL CALL

As a part of the Homecoming program, the old grad's crowded into the gym just before the Michigan Aggie game and answered the roll call of the University once more. Dr. F. J. Langdon acted as chairman of the meeting. First, "Mac" Baldrige gave a short address in which he outlined Creighton's new athletic policy. He also explained how the alumni could aid the University in an athletic way.

Father McCormick, President of the University, was the next speaker. He welcomed the alumni in a short address and told them of the expansion plans that the University now had in view.

Then starting with the Arts class of '22, the class numbers were read in turn; the members of the respective classes standing when their class was called. With a few exceptions, there was someone present from each class. Bursts of applause were heard whenever an unusually large group responded. At this time the old grads probably had a little more reverence for their Alma Mater than they had, when they answered the roll in their student days.

The crowd burst into applause when five men answered to the class of '78-'79. These were Creighton's first sons, brimming with spirit and enthusiasm after forty-four years.

Immediately after the roll call, the meeting was adjourned; the crowd filing out to the athletic field to see the game.

The Friars, a student club recently organized for the purpose of promoting social activity, will give the second of their winter series of dances at the Hyland Dancing Academy, Saturday evening, December 5.

The Friars are a "pan-department" club, so every Creighton student will be welcomed at their dancing parties. "Joe" Kerigan is president of the club. Spinharney's orchestra will play.

GRID SQUAD OF '22 TO BE ONE OF BEST IN HISTORY OF C. U.

Freshman Team Developing Splendid Offensive and Defensive

"The pride of the Hilltop fans" is the way the sport page of a local daily recently referred to the Freshman football squad which is under the tutelage of "Tip" Long and Tom Berry, former varsity stars. And after watching the Frosh scrimmaging with the heavier and more experienced varsity team no one will deny that the epithet is well merited. Under the expert coaching of Coaches Berry and Long the Freshmen are developing a driving offensive and a more or less leak-proof defensive that give the varsity no end of trouble in the nightly scrimmages.

All-State Men in Backfield

The Freshman team, which is the first in the history of the institution, boasts of a number of stars who should help to make the 1923 varsity eleven one of the strongest in several years. Ed Hickey, formerly of Trinity College, is piloting the team in a way that recalls "Tip" Long in his palmiest days. Ben Tryba, all-state halfback from Columbus, Nebr., bids fair to clinch a position on the varsity of '23 with speed and aggressiveness. Paul Fitzgibbon another all-state halfback from Sioux Falls, S. D., will furnish the opposition plenty of worry with his bullet-like passes and his elusive open field running. John Bertoglio, a burly fullback inherited from Culver Military Academy, hits the line like a battering-ram and is probably the strongest defensive player on the squad. Flynn, Lundt, and Lour are alternating with Tryba and Fitzgibbon at the halfback positions and performing like seasoned veterans.

Linemen Show Promise

Hodgson, popular selection for all-state center last year when he played with Omaha Tech, is registered in the Hilltop institution and plays the pivot position for the yearlings. The guard positions are a fruitful subject for discussion between Cusack, Anderson and Welch, all of whom are of varsity caliber. Mullaney and Carroll are the tackles on Coach Berry's million dollar line, and fully live up to their reputation as a pair of fighting Irishmen. The Doyle brothers from Neola, Iowa, Allen and Brennan are having a hot, four-cornered fight for the guardianship of the wing positions. Paul Leahy, a cousin of the renowned Gene and the inheritor of all his football ability, demonstrates his versatility by see-sawing back and forth from end to center.

'23 Prospects Good

Add to this list the eminent names of "Ike" Mahoney and Henry Luepke, ex-varsity stars who will be eligible to play again next year, and the pigskin prospects for '23 take on an inviting aspect.

BLUE GRID STARS OF YEARS GONE BY MEET ONCE AGAIN

At the northern end of the barbecue, a meeting that did not appear on the regular Homecoming schedule was called to order. No chairman was necessary; for wasn't Billie Callaghan, who came all the way from Dallas, Texas, with his wife, to be present at the Homecoming, on hand to call signals? And by the way, Callaghan, who was both captain and quarterback in '04, is rated as the headiest quarter and best open field runner, ever playing under the "Blue and White."

William Rooney, LL.B., '09, played an end on the team which Callaghan captained. Instead of snagging passes, he swapped stories of the days when Creighton played her games at the Vinton street park. He is now vice-president of the largest bank in Chadron, Nebr.

V. E. (Vernie) Lamphier, M.D., '04, also attended this reunion. He played right tackle on the '04 team. Art Cullen of Omaha was the fourth member of this lively group. As left half, he lugged the ball many times at Billy's orders, but Saturday he did some of the calling.

The Creightonian is indebted to the Rev. W. P. Whelan, S.J., for the following incident which occurred at the game with Drake in '04.

"We were playing Drake, so two of the Medics, Dick Ivens and Newell purchased a snow-white gander. To each wing they attached fifteen yards of blue and white ribbon, three inches in width.

"The procession began during the intermission between halves, with Ivens and Newell on the flanks. Another Medic led the procession, scattering corn ahead of the drake. They had encircled half the field, when a humane officer rudely put a stop to the show."

We might also add that Father Whelan was faculty director of athletics at that time. He says that Art Cullen had the only pair of football shoes on the team, that were complete mates, and they had been used by a player of the previous year.

Dr. James Pendergrast of Steiner, Nebr., and Tom Lanigan of Greeley were two other former satellites who got together for a few moments. Jim and Tom pitched for Creighton, the year we took Nebraska to a double cleaning. We wonder if they will be back on March 3rd for that famous basketball game.

Vestor Scutt, Law, '23, has found a new way for Unionists to get rid of all their cares and worries. Vestor says, "Just walk to the center of the Douglas Street bridge, and then turn north."

LAW ALUMNAE COME BACK TO CREIGHTON

If a friend of yours rushed in breathlessly with an invitation to interview two of the fair sex at one time, what would you do? A Creightonian reporter had just that experience last Saturday morning.

They were Creighton grads, LL.B., '18, if you please, and they had come back for their first visit since leaving school. Sitting on a bench near the Observatory, watching the last group of alumni and students lining up for their plate-full of "Doc" Frye's viands, were Miss Mona H. Cowell, and Miss Gladys J. Shamp. The reporter recalled the fact that these same young women were seen entering the Auditorium, while the Creighton Circus was in progress. His first query dealt with the circus. Both Alumnae expressed appreciation of the talent displayed.

"What do you think of the Homecoming?" asked the reporter, who seemed over-flowing with questions.

"We think it is a wonderful idea," replied Miss Cowell, as Miss Shamp added her indorsement. "You know, neither of us have been back to Creighton since we graduated, and it certainly seems good to return."

They did not have to be asked their opinions concerning the new Law building. Comparing it with "the dark, dingy place where we attended," was the point they stressed. "I almost wish that I had my law course to take over again, now that you have such a splendid building," said Miss Shamp.

Before the interview was completed, Judge Fitzgerald, who by the way is an Arts alumnus, walked up for a brief chat with his former students. He, too, was glad to be back on the campus. When asked by the young women, if he was still teaching in the Law school, he replied in the negative, explaining that he enjoyed that work but could not find the time.

Miss Shamp, when asked if she was following the legal profession, laughingly replied that she was doing some probate work, mixed in with a lot of curb-stone opinions. Miss Cowell is actively engaged in Drama League work.

MEDIC ALUMNI HOLD IMPORTANT MEETING

The recent meeting of the John A. Creighton Medical School Alumni Association, held last week in conjunction with the Homecoming celebration, is considered by all as one of the most highly successful of the annual gatherings of this society.

Over two hundred members were in attendance at the clinics, lectures, and entertainments provided for them. The meetings were opened by Dr. Lucian Stark, Hartington, Nebr., the president, and were continued under the direction of Dr. J. B. Schlier of this city, vice-president, when Dr. Stark was called home by the death of his father.

At the Thursday morning clinic at St. Joseph's Hospital Dr. J. M. Schramek presented a case osteomyelitis in the femur due to infection of the tonsils. Dr. B. M. Riley then conducted a clinic in general medicine and was followed by Dr. A. F. Tyler, who lectured on deep x-ray therapy. Later Dr. Newell Jones held a clinic in pediatrics.

At the same time a series of clinics were in progress at the Paxton Memorial Hospital. Dr. J. E. Pulver presented a case of "Fracture of the Second Lumbar Vertebrae." Dr. G. E. Neuhaus read a paper on "Acute Brain Injuries," and was followed by Dr. John Holst, who presented a case of "Chronic Dacryocystitis."

Further clinics were held Friday morning by Drs. McMartin, Sachs, and Russem, and this part of the program was concluded by Dr. J. W. Duncan who presented fifteen cases of fractures, showing various forms in different stages of repair.

The first evening session was devoted to the presentation of eight reels of films, showing the more common major operations in surgery, gynecology, and obstetrics, and Friday evening the Association was addressed by Dr. William Carpenter MacCarty of the Mayo Foundation, Rochester, Minn., on the "Relation of Gastric Ulcer to Gastric Cancer." Dr. MacCarty's talk was considered the high point on the entire program and was very well received.

This session was followed by a dinner and smoker at the Brandeis, during the course of which the Rev. John F. McCormick, president of the University, spoke on the "Ideals of the Medical Profession," and Dr. Herman von W. Schulte, dean of the Medical School, briefly pointed out the way in which the modern medical school differs from the older type.

In the election of officers, Dr. J. R. Dwyer was named president; Dr. G. W. Dishong, vice-president, and Dr. J. W. Duncan, secretary. The new officers for the coming year are thus all men from Omaha.

William Donahue, A.B., '08, LL.B., '11, former county attorney at Albion and Charles J. Thielen, LL.B., '11, of Humphrey, Nebr., were in Omaha on Saturday. Thielen was recently elected to the State Senate.

CRUSTACEAN DANCE

The Crustacea club held its first dancing party of the season in the Union ball room on Wednesday evening, November 15. About fifty couples attended this dance. The Senior class of the Arts department were guests of the Crustaceans. The club plans to give several more dances in the course of the school year.

Back in '78, '79, and '80 Creighton did not have graduating classes. This fact failed to dim the loyalty of the students of those days, and they hastened to answer the call of their Alma Mater when Homecoming invitations went forth from Creighton. Among the first students who came back were: H. V. Burklely, Sr., Edward A. Smith, Charles F. Frenzer, John M. Mullen, Edward S. Furay, Dr. T. R. Mullen, James P. Dugdale, E. J. McGinn, John T. Bolan, and Frank J. Ottis of St. Paul, Minn.

LOST—OVERCOAT BELT

A herring-colored overcoat belt was lost during the snake-dance at the Homecoming game. If found, please return to Joe Grace at Law school.

BEG PARDON, MR. PATTON

In our last issue under the head "Forensicity," we neglected to mention that Mr. Robert Patton won the debate in question. As this is the first debate Mr. Patton has won for some time, we are sorry to have made such a grave omission.

Frank Stuart, M.D., '08, returned to Creighton from Kansas City where he is now located. After completing his medical course, he began to practice his profession in New Jersey, later removing to Missouri. This was his first visit to Omaha since graduation.

Delta Theta Phi held open house on Sunday, the nineteenth, for alumni and active members. The recently initiated pledges turned out a hundred per cent. Many alumni, who were in Omaha for Homecoming, managed to find their way to the new home of the Delta.

Law '08 can boast of some Homecomers who came from a distance. Robert Stuart, LL.B., '08, who came from Pawhuska, Okla., and Joseph R. Sullivan from Casper, Wyo., are members of this class.

DELTS HOLD OPEN HOUSE FOR ALUMNI

Many Old Grads Present

Delta Sigma members were on hand during the Homecoming activities to see that none of the returning Delta alumni missed anything. Each member wore the Delta colors, blue and red, on his coat lapel. At six o'clock a four course dinner was served at the Delta Sigma house at which the alumni were guests. Unfortunately some of the alumni had already made other arrangements and could not attend. During the dinner, several solos by Mr. Sherry, and numbers by the Delta Sigma orchestra were enjoyed. The following alumni were present: Drs. King, Wallace, Murphy, Meyers, Hemphill, Dinlinder, Wonder, Slater, Prime, Sorensen, Spellman, Shaffer, Hunter, Runyan, Patton, Walsh, Bymer, Brennan, J. Cogan, E. Cogan, Parker, Sattler, and Beste, of Omaha; Thieson, Creighton, Nebr.; Kubitschek, Atkinson, Nebr.; Sullivan, Falls City, Nebr.; Mason, Leigh, Nebr.; and Rice, Lynch, Nebr.

The Union announces that it will give another big ball on Thanksgiving night. This affair will be comparable with the successful dances already given. As is the custom at Creighton it will be in honor of the Football team.

Indications point to the best-natured crowd yet assembled, for it is expected that Creighton will again be victorious in their contest with South Dakota State.

Admission is to be limited to Union members.

Lieutenant Norman Haverly returned for Homecoming. At present he is in charge of all recruiting in the Omaha district. In 1916 together with eight other men of his class, of whom Dr. Debacker who was also back for Homecoming was one, he enlisted as an officer in the Navy. After putting in two years at the Naval Station in San Domingo, he was transferred to the recruiting branch of the service.

HILLTOP GRIDSTERS WIN 9-0 VICTORY OVER WOLVERINES

Lew Lane Stars for C. U.

By Gordon Richmond in Sunday World-Herald

Nineteen hundred pounds of fighting wildcats and the glittering golden tow of Lewman Lane, Blue and White field general supreme, crushed to death the victory aspirations of a brilliant gridiron team from Michigan Saturday afternoon at Creighton stadium, as the sturdy Aggie dreadnaught from the shores of Lansing's winding Cedar floundered and sunk before a thrilling bombardment by Creighton university's mighty football fleet.

The Michiganites were counted out 9 to 0. And it was "Lew" Lane, the south pawed boot king of the Hill-toppers, who registered every score—three beautiful goal kicks in the second and third quarters. The sure-footed Blue pilot's victory was shared by a wonderful eleven and the decree of the gridiron gods was well earned by a tenacious attack that will long be remembered by thousands who saw the Creighton triumph.

Seven thousand football fans, including a strong 2,000 returning grads, attended the Homecoming battle. And the battle which they saw was the greatest psychological victory ever scored by the Blue. It was not only a great game and victory, but a soul inspiring exhibition of fighting spirit against a team that never believed itself conquered until the last whistle blast echoed into oblivion.

Lightning fast barricade drives that gorged the Michigan wall, air-lane rushes that gained in dramatic succession, a defense that withstood bitter and grilling assaults, and an aerial defense in their secondary section that snuffed out more than one flash of field work by the emerald backed Wolverines, brought the Hill warriors their scoring opportunities and barred the Blue goal at every attack. Yet the invaders were not decisively outplayed. A general analysis of the two teams' comparative strengths would tell as brilliant a tale about the Wolverines' activity, which was concerted and dangerous at every moment. The White and Green possessed a whirlwind backfield that tore its way through a brace of yard decades in the first period in a way that jabbed the victory hopes of a nervous assemblage.

But the Blue machine suddenly gulped its famous "come-back" potion, historically poisonous to Hill invaders, and streaked into its real stride from that scoreless session on, returning every Aggie blow with an overbalancing reciprocal. Lane punted often and well. His mates followed every boot up with steadily perfect results. In that phase of the conflict could easily be detected the main cause of the victory.

One of those plays gave Lane his first chance to score, which he used, as he did the two others, to material advantage.

To the Michigan eleven's credit it may be said that their offense was a model of perfection. The Lansing backs slashed away at times with seemingly invincible strength, but Creighton's sub-wall protectors never failed and the entire Blue line repulsed the Aggie onslaught when the invaders approached the Blue and White cross-bar.

And Art Logan, Hilltop center, was not a small part of the bulwark of flesh that held the Michigan battalion at bay in the pinches. His judgment of desperate Wolverine passes in the dying minutes of the game popped more than one Michigan victory balloon.

Gayer was a veritable tiger on the Blue line. Captain Bendlage at the right flank bottled up Aggie end sweeps continually. A "knock-out" clip (which he sustained during the high tensioned action in the last half) failed to put the Hill leader out of the combat. Coach Baldrige's line regained its pedestal in the hall of gridiron fame last Saturday.

The Blue and White backfield was at its season's best. Harry Tevlin and "Tank" Manley, the terrible tandem lead-back combination of the Blue tribe, broke through the Green wall for gains that turned the tide our way in many crucial moments. And "Rudy" Yechout, even without the assistance of his famous pass arm, filled his "full" position in a far more than satisfactory manner.

CAPACITY CROWD AT CREIGHTON CIRCUS

A capacity crowd of undergraduates and happy homecomers packed the historic old University Auditorium last Saturday morning to witness the "Creighton Circus," the Student Union vaudeville which formally inaugurated the Homecoming Day celebration. The program was produced with all the sparkle and precision that marks professional bills. The careful preparations made by Bert Abts and his corps of capable assistants account for the fact that the circus proceeded without a hitch and went over with a bang.

By common consent the Dental and Arts stunts were acclaimed the headliners. The Artsmen led off with a twenty-minute skit called "Evolution," depicting Creighton in five different stages of her progress. The acting of Jacobberger, Hildinger, Green, Russell, and Cramberg, featured the Arts' presentation.

The Dental offering took the form of a psychic act with Kelly in the role of the "mighty mystiff" from the Orient and Armstrong as his fellow-faker. The "mighty mystiff's" faculties for delving into the occult were somewhat uncanny, albeit the hints dropped by his confederate Armstrong were at times too broad to escape the callowest Freshman there. It is whispered around that some went away under the impression that the "mystiff's" answers were not on the square.

The Law school was represented by the Keno Quartette, consisting of Messrs. Paynter, Maxwell, Young and Jordan. The Kenos recently made their professional debut at the World Theatre. The quality of their singing was attested when they were encored four times.

Scarcely inferior to the renowned Kenos was the Medic quartette, composed of Severin, Spinharney, Long and Fitzsimmons, all of whom bear an enviable reputation in Creighton musical circles. The Medics also presented a clever monologue.

Just to add a dash of color to the show, the Pharmacy department presented their Blackfaced Four, a troupe of minstrels whose singing and jollity topped off the program in big-time style. R. Hirschman, H. Rutt, R. Lindley, and L. Fletcher were the Pharmacy's darky comedians.

CREIGHTON ELEVEN LEADS IN NORTH CENTRAL CIRCUIT

South Dakota State's battling Jackrabbits trampled Morningside in the dust Saturday in a game that ended with a 48 to 0 score, and bounded into second place in the North-Central conference race, being tied with North Dakota University.

Creighton's Blue warriors lead the conference, but in the coming two games will be pitted against the only other two contenders—Nebraska Wesleyan and the Jackrabbits.

Dakota State's stock as a championship team has leaped skyward with the complete trimming handed Morningside, the team that tied Des Moines University and Nebraska Wesleyan.

Creighton is conceded the game with Nebraska Wesleyan Saturday, and the Blue and White will conclude the season with the Turkey Day battle with the Jackrabbits.

Stock on the Hilltop gridiron rose with the defeat of the Michigan Aggies, but the dope has turned and doesn't favor the Blue to easily ride to a victory over the Jackrabbits.

Creighton battled four quarters with Des Moines and finally emerged victor. Then Morningside played Des Moines to a tie game, only to get completely swamped by the Jackrabbits. Such a combination gives South Dakota State a slight advantage over Creighton.

However, the Coyotes tied the Jackrabbits, in a game that ended 7 to 7, and the Blue and White galloped away with a victory over the Coyotes.

South Dakota State is a team that can be upset if the breaks of football are with the opposition. The Jackrabbits were defeated 16 to 6 by North Dakota, the team that was defeated by a touchdown by St. Thomas. North Dakota couldn't cross the St. Thomas goal line.

Creighton is a different team than the one which started out the season in the blue jerseys. There is more spirit by 100 per cent in every man than there was the day the red headed back from Marquette ran rings around them. In defeating the Michigan Aggies, the Blue squad proved it could hold, and Lew Lane came along with that educated toe of his and piled up the nine points.

The conference standings:

JUNIOR DENTS ADD NOVEL SUBJECT TO REGULAR SCHEDULE

The third year embryonic dental surgeons, fearing that the boisterous, elocutionary attempts of the uninformed, and the demoralizing effect of the caricatured bits of humor, concerning their esteemed profession, might possibly misconstrue the laity, forcing upon the same a minute suspicion that the noble gentlemen who bear the degree D.D.S. are "tooth carpenters" more or less, took an epoch-making stride by inserting a novel into their weekly schedule; namely, "The Study of Advanced Higher Art."

Regular classes will be held in the future whenever the professor of any old "ology" finds he is unable to arrive at the moment that his particular lecture should commence.

The present membership is extremely radical concerning their immediate environment while the class progresses, and for that reason completely alter the appearance of their class room, until it partakes of the soft tones and appealing hues of the ultra-modern movie theatre.

This act of metamorphosis is accomplished by pulling down the curtains and operating the projecting apparatus located in the rear of the room. The members are drastic in their opinion that the correct mental attitude with which their delicate subject must be approached cannot be attained unless they are immersed in this romantic atmosphere.

The subjects for study are by no means limited to one branch of the nobler arts. Indeed, the demonstrative material of which this class boasts, includes sketching, music, elocution and interpretative dancing; the highest ranking classman in each division being given the professorship. These geniuses have mastered the subject so thoroughly that they are able to recommend a new subdivision to the general classification, higher arts. This they would term "Concentration." They believe that the undivided attention of the audience contributes as much to the success of the artist as the latter does through his production.

During the music session the sextette waits the fancies of the willing youths into the "Land of Lotus Eaters."

The dancing master, who is extremely well versed in the art of jiggling, overwhelmed the spectators in his presentation of the very latest "Cookie-nibbler's" shuffle, which is soon to grip the rising generation.

Special stress is placed on the gestures and postures by the professor of elocution, since by this means he is able to bring the individuality out of the stu-

ALL HAIL BARBECUE AS GREAT SUCCESS

When it comes to putting on a barbecue, Prof. Gillespie and "Doc" Frye deserve much credit as capable managers. Last Saturday a crowd, consisting of all the returned grads and most of the student body, was fed in a manner which could not be excelled for speed, dexterity, and complete satisfaction. Everything worked like a well-organized and smooth-running machine. The entire audience from the circus swarmed over the grounds within a period of ten minutes, and all were well taken care of in nearly as short a space of time.

The squad of volunteer "hash-slingers" had been carefully instructed, so that when the eight lines formed on their sides, there was no congestion or waste. Each was loaded down with piping hot beef sandwiches, doughnuts, pickles, and coffee, as he passed along the line.

Convenient benches were placed around the grounds, but these were soon filled so that many had to utilize the standing positions while eating. Probably more actual reunions took place at the barbecue than at any other time during the day. Everyone was there, and all a "Homecomer" had to do was to walk around the grounds and meet all his old friends. Little groups were gathered wherever there was room, and many slaps on the back or hearty greetings were exchanged, at the risk of spilling one's coffee.

dent—probably to remain so for the rest of his natural and unmarried life.

The professor of the oil and brush (linseed and scrub) emphasizes thorough training in appreciating the third dimension, so that the eye might function properly if called for on examination days.

The program for the year is proving both interesting and educational. Many lofty traits, aesthetic characteristics, and noble individualities are expected to be developed from this extraordinary method of instruction.

The members of this organization deeply regret that these marvelous opportunities cannot, for the present at least, be offered to other classes and departments of the university.

GIVE BANQUET FOR LAW SCHOOL ALUMNI

The banquet given by the College of Law at the Chamber of Commerce, Saturday, November 18th was attended by 125 alumni of the Law College besides the present students and faculty. Dean Martin, who presided, gave some very interesting remarks which were well received. He commented upon the large number of Creighton men who were chosen for public office in their respective communities. This statement was borne out by the audience when it was learned that Creighton men were elected to offices from the judge's bench down to Denny O'Brien, who was elected notary public from the south side. The Chamber of Commerce is to be congratulated upon the efficient and successful manner in which it handled this banquet, and in which it co-operated in making Homecoming, in general, a success.

GRADS HOLD SMOKER

The Union club rooms was the scene of a lively smoker last Saturday evening. The affair was planned for the benefit of the alumni and students, who did not care to dance. It is estimated that fully five hundred men were the guests of the Union. Two thousand cigars, two thousand cigarettes, and ten gallons of cider were consumed during the evening. Among the more prominent alumni to attend the smoker were Judges Day and Fitzgerald, Dean TePoel of the Law college, Dr. Hyland of the medical faculty, and many others. The Keno Quartet entertained with several songs. The smoker was in charge of the Alumni.

MR. LOUCKS TO WED

Homecoming Day carried a double significance for Mr. Elton C. Loucks, financial director of the Building and Endowment Fund campaign, as his engagement to Miss Myrne Gilchrist of this city was announced on that day. Miss Gilchrist formerly attended Hamilton college in Kentucky, and was a member of the Beta Sigma Omicron sorority at that institution. Mr. Loucks was formerly a resident of Portland, Oregon, coming to Omaha early this summer to assume his present position. He received his A.B. degree from Oregon University and finished his education in the Harvard University Graduate School of Business Administration. The marriage will take place next spring.

FRESHMAN LAW DANCE

Tuesday evening the Freshman Law class held an informal dancing party in the Union club rooms. About sixty members of the class, as well as many upperclassmen attended the dance.

PHARMACY ALUMNI RETURN

The College of Pharmacy was represented at the Homecoming celebration by about 100 alumni.

The class from '01 to '22, with few exceptions, were represented. Of the older alumni, the classes of '08 and '09 can boast of the greatest attendance. Although most of these men live in various parts of Nebraska, Kansas, and South Dakota were also well represented.

PROMINENT ALUMNUS SENDS GREETINGS

The following telegram was received by Fr. William Whelan from John J. Galligan, a prominent physician and surgeon of Salt Lake City. Dr. Galligan gained his A.B. degree at Georgetown in '08, and in '12 completed his professional course in Creighton Medical School. He was manager of the football team in 1911.

Regret exceedingly, inability to join Homecoming Day celebration. May I express my deep appreciation of this splendid movement. In hailing the slogan of victory "On Creighton," graduates may well be proud of the splendid progress of their Alma Mater. Future years will add new lustre to her achievements of the past.

Jack Galligan.
