May Holiday Climaxed By Peony Dance

Arts, Commerce and Pharmacy will take a holiday May 7 and take over various parks throughout Omaha in a day of leisure. An active day of baseball, games, golf and picknicking has been planned. Law will take a holiday May 13.

Topping off the skip day activities is a Peony Park dance being sponsored by the Creighton Press club from 9:30 to 12:30. Music for the dance is being provided by Phil Caniglia and his orchestra and tickets are available at $1.00 per person from any Press club member.

Arts Day

Arts skip day will start with a baseball game at 11 a. m. in Riverview park between the faculty and seniors. The rest of the day will be spent at Riverview, 10th and Deer Park blvd., with ball games in the afternoon. Also games and contests between classes. Food will be served in the afternoon. Tickets are 50 cents and are on sale today by class officers.

A golf tournament will start at 8:30 a. m. There will be a race between two political candidates, James A. Hart and Vince Finnocchiaro, to see who can run the fastest. Other activities will include a three-legged race and spontaneous games.

Tickets are 50 cents and can be obtained from general chairman Tom Foye, class officers or from the Chamber of Commerce. A prize, two three-dollar steaks

A picnic dinner will be served to the "bums for a day."

Pharmacy Day

May 7 will also see the 26th annual Pharmacy day in progress at Miller park. Charles Piper, general chairman, president and treasurer of each class and members appointed at large by Dean Jarrett have been making plans for another successful Pharmacy (Continued on Page 3.)

Attention Students!

The bloodmobile will make a return trip to Creighton, Friday, May 16. Since Armed Forces week is May 11-17, a good turnout to donate blood is hoped for as Creighton's contribution. During the week flag bearers will present the colors at student masses and flags will be displayed in front of the administration building.

Legal Flickers

The pre-legal association showed movies of the Neuremberg trials at a recent meeting held in the dentistry school.

Marian Night To Be May 11

Marian night, the Sodalists' annual public tribute to the Blessed Virgin, will be held on World sodality day, Sunday, May 11.

Catholic students from all high schools and colleges in Omaha will participate in the program.

According to the schedule of the past years, the group will assemble on the Creighton campus at 7:45 p. m. The men from arts will meet on California street in front of Wareham hall; commerce students, 25th street at Wareham hall; medicine and dentistry, California street at Dowling hall; law and pharmacy, 25th street at Dowling hall; women students, on the driveway between St. John's church and the administration building; St. Mary's and Duchesne students, on the terrace walk west of the administration building entrance, and St. Catherine's and St. Joseph's nurses, on the terrace walk east of the administration building.

High school students will assemble west of St. John's church on California street.

The assembly will proceed from California to 24th st., across the north lawn, down the ramp and into the stadium reciting the rosary and singing hymns on the way.

In the stadium, the participants will form a stadium-wide circle around the altar. Robert Sprigg, D4, head of the sodality union, will give the address. Girls selected from the coed sodality will read the act of consecration. The ceremony will close with Solemn Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

Delwyn Negangast, A4, is general marshal for the evening. He will be assisted by Joseph Rooney, M1. John Tripeny, P4, will head the court of honor. Mike Printy, A4, is in charge of the service. The Rev. Martin Vaske, S.J., instructor in philosophy, will direct the musical part of the ceremony. John Winters, C4, is in charge of stadium preparations. The Rev. Francis Deglman, S.J., student counselor, is in general charge of all preparations. He will be assisted by the Rev. Vincent Decker, instructor in religion.

Relatives and friends of all the students have been invited to attend.

The program will begin at 1 p. m. in the auditorium. The ROTC band will play. The Very Rev. Carl M. Reinert, S. J., president of Creighton university, and Robert Muldoon, P4, president of the student board of governors will welcome the parents to Creighton. Orientation will be given by the Rev. Henry W. Linn, S. J., executive secretary to the president.

Following the welcome miniature maps of Creighton will be distributed and parents may tour the university. Students will be placed throughout the buildings to conduct the tours. Faculty members will be in their respective offices to meet the parents.

At 3 the women will be entertained with a style show in the gym followed by a tea. Mrs. Hamilton, dean of women, is in charge of the tea for the mothers.

A magic show by the Rev. Charles K. Hayden, S. J., dean of men, will entertain the fathers in the auditorium at 3 followed by a lecture on Atomic Energy. The fathers will then have a smoker in the downstairs of the gym.

Solemn Benediction, offered by Father Reinert, in St. John's church will climax Parents' day at Creighton.

Robert Reilly, publicity director for the event, has received affirmation from 500 parents who will attend. Jack Williams, registrar, is general chairman. Other members of the Parents' day committee are:

James A. Hart, associate director of economics, in charge of the smoker; Laurence H. Brown, assistant professor of sociology, in charge of faculty participation; and Mr. Edwin Puls, associate professor of speech, in charge of general refreshments.

E. C. Wilner Dies Suddenly

Edmond C. Wilner, 53, beanery and snackbar manager, died last Friday, April 24, at 6 a. m., at St. Joseph's hospital.

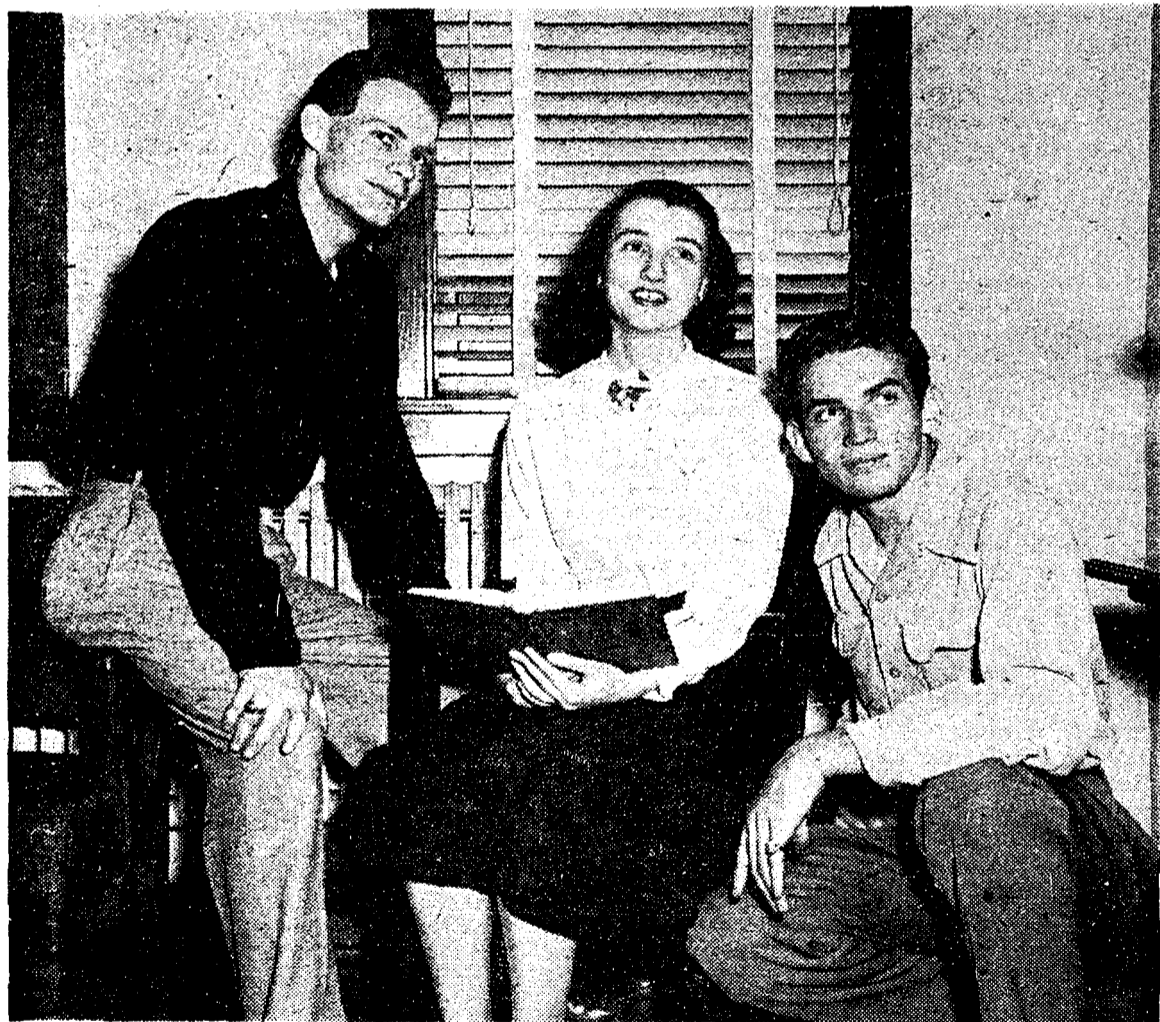

The heart attack that was fatal to Mr. Wilner was the first sign of any illness known of him by anyone. He was struck by the attack at 3 a. m. Friday morning and immediately taken to the hospital where he died three hours later.

The body was taken to the Hoffmann mortuary where it remained until Saturday. It was then sent to Chicago where his funeral was held Monday. His wife accompanied the body.

Mr. Wilner was manager for several other cafeterias of the Nation Wide food stores. He began his job as manager of the beanery and snack bar at Creighton January, 1951.

Temporarily, the beanery will be managed by Sam Hood of Nation Wide food stores of Chicago. His nephew, Al Hood, has been acting manager since Mr. Wilner's death.

Players Present

Owen Burkley, A4; Mary Haselton, A3, and Charles McFadden, A2 (left to right), have been cast in the leading roles of the Creighton Players forthcoming production of Paul Vincent Carroll's "Shadow and Substance," the director, Mr. Frank Andersen announced this week. The play will be given May 8, 9, and 10. Tickets will go on sale next week. The price is 50 cents for students and 75 cents general admission.

"Shadow and Substance" is considered to be one of the greatest plays in modern Irish literature. It concerns the spiritual awakening brought about in a proud and domineering priest when he realizes after the tragic death of a simple servant girl in his parish, that her visions he had refused to believe, were genuine.

The role of the priest, Canon Skerritt, is played by Owen Burkley. Mary Haselton is cast as the servant girl, Brigid, and Charles McFadden takes the part of O'Flingsley, the local schoolmaster.

Other members of the cast include Terry Kealey, A3; Ray McMahon, A4; Spyridon Meares, A1; Tom Morrison, C2; Beverly Conkling, A3; Pat Muldoon, A3, and John McGee, A4.

Father Norbert Lemke, S.J., faculty moderator of dramatics, expressed the hope that all Creighton students will attend the play. "Shadow and Substance" is more than a play with a religious theme," he said. It is great drama as well, and is the kind of theatre that Catholics everywhere should see.

The Student And The Press

The present generation of college students is generally more reluctant to discuss public question than other generations of college students have been. The students aren't ignorant of the questions, and they aren't indifferent. They hesitate to speak out because they fear association with others who agree with them.

That's the opinion of Phil Allen, former speech professor here at Creighton and presently newscaster and announcer at Omaha radio station KOIL.

Mr. Allen believes this hesitancy and fear to speak out hasn't been engendered by the students themselves, but has been forced on them by what he calls the abuses of the public press in the post war period.

By this he says he means the press' treatment of the McCarthy charges and corruption in the government. McCarthy, Allen believes, is sincere; but he uses a shotgun approach to a problem which, according to Allen, the FBI had handled decently and efficiently the years before.

The nation's press is predominantly Republican, Allen says, and he interprets the front page treatment of the McCarthy charges an attempt to divide and conquer the Democratic party. He believes it was an attempt to turn Democratic Catholic against Democrat Protestant, Democrat Catholic, because of the principles of their faith, would naturally shun anyone charged with pinkness or any of his associates, Allen says.

Allen contends that McCarthy, because of his methods, was finally dropped from the top policy making level of the Republican party. And McCarthy's decline marked the start of another campaign to split the Democratic party, Allen believes. That he says, was turning Protestants against the Irish Catholics by accusing the Irish of corruption. He points to Boyle, the Democratic national chairman, and Noonan, the tax collector, as the first examples. He says other non-Irish names didn't get the display.

Allen believes that this "persecution by the press—the rancor, intolerance and bitterness aroused on both sides, and the 'argumentum ad personem'—makes the students shy away from a stand on the public questions."

Mr. Allen explains that either the students get a natural revulsion to public figures from what they read in the papers or they themselves fear they will receive the same treatment. So, he says, they won't say what they think on the questions. They just say they won't think about it at all.

Needless to say, Mr. Allen is a Democrat.

Shadows And Substance

One of Creighton's players visited the newsroom the other day. He complained about the futility—or so it seemed to him—of publicizing college plays. Time and again, he said, he's seen high school plays draw a full house, no matter how trivial the play. But the students just don't support a college play, he says—so couldn't the Creightonian run an editorial to boost the coming play, "Shadows and Substance."

Well, we can see a few advantages the high schoolers have, despite the more mature and presumably more skillful actors and actresses of the collegians.

For one thing, most high school students don't go to plays because they are theater lovers. They go to see someone they know on the stage. And in a small school, where everybody knows everybody else, this is especially evident in the box office receipts. In college, it seems the players form cliques and consequently don't know as many people. We could be wrong.

About box office receipts—the admission charge to a high school play is usually very reasonable. That's not to say that admission charge to Creighton's plays is exorbitant.

Another high school advantage: a large part of the audience is the fond parents of the players. And many high schools play that angle by stuffing in as many players as they logically can, and sometimes more. With not so many families here, the collegians are at a disadvantage.

One thing the Creighton players might try to do is build up among the students the reputation and prestige of the plays. Make them a big event. Let the students know how much they are missing by not attending.

Are the plays getting the proper publicity? You probably noted in this issue the story of the coming play. But do you remember who's in it, what the plot is, when it is, and the admission charge?

Without some of the parents and friends to attend, the College players must depend on the play itself and the actors to draw the audience.

Creighton offers experienced college players. All other cast members have appeared in other Creighton plays.

Francis Anderson of the English department is the director. Mr. Anderson recently played the lead role in an Omaha playhouse play written in blank verse. While this doesn't prove his directing ability, it certainly indicates an enthusiastic interest in acting. And the Creighton players assure that Mr. Anderson is a capable director and he has spent

Spring Song

Spring is here. It's the most enjoyable time of the year. The evenings and nights are pleasantly cool, and only bird calls break the still of the early morning. A little later the warm sun beams from a clear blue sky. And a breeze runs like cool fingers through your hair. You can almost taste the fragrance of cherry blossoms in the air. In the past few weeks, the world has turned green—the trees shoot out leaves and on the ground a green grass carpet sways invitingly with the wind. But there's a metaphoric snake in this hypothetical garden. Gliding swiftly and unnoticed by many the final tests are coming upon us. In just about four weeks, starting May 26th, the year ends, tests begin. Will you be ready?

Enjoy yourself—but it's later than you think.

Student Counselor

By Rev. Francis G. Deglman, S. J.

The month of May is dedicated to the Blessed Virgin. To elevate man's thoughts to heavenly things, Mother Church has her ecclesiastical year with its seasons of Advent, Christmas, Lent, Easter, Pentecost, her calendar of feast days and commemorations of the angels and the saints, and also the dedication of the months connected intimately with the popular devotions of the peoples.

Thus May is Mary's month. The May devotion in its present form of daily pious practices in the parishes and schools and homes as an incentive to greater personal love of the Blessed Mother is the oldest instance of a devotion extending over an entire month.

It originated at Rome in the Roman college of the Society of Jesus about two centuries after the Sodality of the Blessed Virgin had formed in the same college to spread and intensify the age-long devotion to Mary among its students. To counteract infidelity and immorality among students Father Latomia made a vow to devote the month of May to Mary.

From Rome the practice spread to the other Jesuit colleges in the world and thence to nearly every church in the Latin rite. Mary's month found a ready response in the hearts of old and young among all classes.

At Creighton it is a tradition as old as the school. "Marian Night," the impressive annual public tribute to the great Mother of God on the second Sunday of May, World Sodality Day, by all Catholic high school and college and university students of Omaha has for more than two decades become the climax of this genuine love of the Blessed Mother.

Mutual education, in a large sense of the word, is one of the great and incessant occupations of human society, carried on aptly with set purpose, and partly not. One generation forms another; and the existing generation is ever acting and reacting upon itself in the persons of its individual members.—Newman.

Some races are like children, and require a despot to nurse, and feed, and dress them, to give them pocket money, and take them out for airings. Others, more manly, prefer to be rid of the trouble of their affairs, and use their Ruler as their mere manager and man of business.—Newman.

The life of man is absolutely dependent upon personal effort, and equally dependent upon the help of Divine Grace. All the effort is vain without the Grace of God, and the Grace of God is powerless without the cooperation of the will of man.—B. W. Maturin.

many extra hours work in preparation of the play with them.

The plots of the plays may be the thing that is keeping attendance down. The plots chosen for the Creighton players are no doubt chosen to appeal to a college audience. Is it a mistake?

Something Borrowed Nothing New

By Grimace & Bury II

At an author's tea: "You write? What a coincidence! I read!"

Women's styles may change but their designs remain the same.

Grimace says the secret of his charm is that, "I often quote myself. In adds spice to my conversation."

Movie actress: "Now, let's talk about you. What did YOU think of my picture?"

A speaker who does not strike oil in ten minutes should quit boring.

When a sailor complained about a sore throat, his doctor asked, "Have you tried gargling with salt water?"

"You're asking me—who's been torpedoed three times?"

"I saw you the other day at the corner of 25th and California winking at the girls."

"I wasn't winking. That's a windy corner and something got in my eye."

"She got in your car, too."

Grimace's definition of the week: Psychologist: a man, who, when a good looking girl enters the room, watches everybody else.

Sue: "I wonder if Jack loves me?"

Mabel: "Of course he does, dear. Why should he make you an exception?"

Girl answering telephone: "Marie isn't in just now. This is her 111 pound, five-foot-three, blonde, blue-eyed sister."

A flirt is a woman who believes that's every man for herself.

In an army hospital one nurse warned another: "These are the dangerous cases. They're almost well!"

Moron jokes seem to be cropping up all over the campus. Maybe it's proximity. Maybe not. Whatever it is, here's a few of the latest:

Dijahear about the little moron that was sitting on the curb with a knife and a piece of bread, waiting for the traffic jam.

Dijahear about the little moron that took hay to bed with him so he could feed his nightmare?

Dijahear about the little moron who got on the street car but didn't drop in his money, cause his name was crime, and crime doesn't pay?

Didjahear about the little moron who took the streetcar home, his mother made him take it back.

The Cure For Communism— RELIGION

The virtues of religion and its righteous practice are the finest judiciary on the face of the earth. It is far in advance of state judiciary, for many overwhelming reasons.

The laws of the state only provide a means for the punishment of a crime if the criminal can be known and proven guilty, but they are no safeguard against secret crime. But the religious judiciary, if it is practiced instead of only professed and believed, cultivates the mind. It raised the intellect above crime, to be upheld by a love of righteousness, which purifies the mind of all criminality, instead of scaring a culprit into silence as a state code does.

Thus when any religion or creed is practiced openly and good-naturedly, just through natural goodness, it becomes a virtue above reproach.

How cruel, then, it is for a parent to allow a child to be taught by anyone who is actuated by prejudice or bigotry! How necessary it is that they who expound should have the knowledge, not a mere belief, before they teach. How fortunate are we at Creighton to have instructors who are the best educated in their field and who, moreover, can give us the moral guidance so lacking in secular universities.

Knowledge and truth are justice and mercy; but self-satisfied ignorance seeks to hide all, whether true or not, which differs from their own fanaticism. Need I mention such names as Paul M. Blanchard and others who, mistaken though they be, sow the seeds of a greater danger than they are themselves?

Feasting the mind on indolent prejudices, such men kindle the fire for the victim at the stake to suffer in time to come, and they themselves know it not. Yet the follies they infuse may break into violence in the future. The wrongs of the present are enough to elicit all the combined power of moral advocates to eradicate; and in so-doing, they will have no time for religious quarrels.

The cause which called the Christian teachers into politics in the Revolutionary war was small and weak when compared with the wrongs of today. The causes which brought Christ to denounce the oppression and robbery of His time were weak, when compared with the oppression and robbery of today.

The worst form of cruelty ever imagined in the minds of men is the deprivation of freedom. Communism is today practicing this persecution in ever-increasing areas. The time is not far off when it will be considered a divine duty to condemn the cruelties practiced, and a holy cause to enact merciful laws for suffering humanity.

God will do His part! Will you do yours?

John O'Neill

Those small reversals of our daily habits which, viewed as mortifications, would seem so petty, have their value if they jolt us, ever so little, out of the comfortable rut our lives have grown into. Some lessening there must be of minor distractions and dissolutions, if our consciences are to have their spring-cleaning.—Ronald Knox

Vic Janowicz, an All-American last year as offensive star of Ohio State, dislikes the two-platoon system. He wants to play defense, too. Texas Christian grid coach L. R. He became assistant news manager in 1942. He joined Creighton university's faculty as a journalism instructor in 1940.

Mr. Munkhof was active in experimental television work carried on by WOW at Creighton, and when the station went into television actively he joined its staff.

Mr. Mazzie also took part in WOW's experimental television work while a student at Creighton and after working for the station part-time he joined the staff upon his graduation.

Mr. Mazzie, who received a Bachelor of Science degree, was active in speech and dramatics on the Hilltop campus. He also served as president of the Creighton players and was general manager of the campus radio station KOCU.

Over the Hill

Seniors, arise! You just think that yesterday was eventful. Four hours of comprehensive examinations, a BMI conference and a bigger than ever May day dance are liable to come all in any day. Why, I bet that two-thirds of the class found the day so relaxing that they made a special effort to go surf-riding after it was all over. But that's O. K.—Skoge likes the overtime.

Of course, now that the fountain pens are worn to stubs and ink supplies are at the point of replenishment, the outlook is not especially soothing. Oral combs are yet to come—and then finals, the various year-end activities, graduation ceremonies and, finally, job-hunting. By that time, everyone will be wishing they were freshmen again—they never had it so good.

Two dances stand out among those various activities yet to come. The first will be the skip day dance, sponsored by an organization composed of journalistically ambitious students. The point that makes this event outstanding is its position. Attendance will be an ideal way to top off a day of fun, picnics, games and forgetting (for a time) the call of the classroom.

The second is the Tri-Lang dance, which is bidding for its place among the top of the year. The French, German and Spanish clubs are proving that language need not be a barrier by co-operating in the event. Everybody should go, member or not, for the confusion arising out of the combined "auf wiederseh'n's," "au revoir's" and "adios's" at the end should keep it going until the latest hours.

And getting back to "skip day," as it is called, a proposal might be offered. What better opportunity is there for students from the various schools, departments and the like to get acquainted? Wouldn't it be nice if the entire student body and faculty could arrange it so that the day could be made one huge, gala affair? At least it is food for thought.

Oh, and another thing—three-to-one it rains that day. And on this happy note, we bring to a close this week's episode, and promise to see you over the hill again next time.

Primary Elections Scheduled May 5

The election for the Board of Governors for next year was discussed at a meeting of the board on April 28, at 7:30 p. m., in the Creighton university news-room.

The particulars of the election for the arts college are that they will elect two representatives, one junior and one sophomore. The elections will be held at the same time. The students will vote on two ballots each containing three sophomore and junior candidates.

The final meeting of the board will be held May 14 at the Spare-time cafe. The new members of the board will be invited and election of officers for next year will be held.

Eugene Stormberg Prefect Of Sodality

New sodality officers for the next year in the dental sodality are: prefect, Eugene Stormberg, D3; vice-prefect, Charles Meyers, D3; and secretary-treasurer, William Peltzer, D3.

Elections of the officers took place at a meeting held Wednesday, April 28, in the dental lounge.

Students Hear Poetry Talk

Creighton was honored last week with the appearance of Paul Engle, well known lecturer and writer.

Mr. Engle, instructor at the University of Iowa, spoke to Creighton students in the moot court of the law building Friday, April 25, at 3 p. m., on the subject, "Poetry in the Modern World."

Mr. Engle believes that a poet's poetry comes from what he experiences in life. The poet, contrary to some beliefs, is not detached from life, but instead, feels and relates actual happenings. The more a poet lives, the fuller his life and the more varied and rich will be his writing.

After the lecture a dinner was held in his honor at the 11 Worth grill where further questions and a discussion of the lecture was carried.

Those attending the dinner were Mr. Engle, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Nossen, Janet Sigler, president of the Pleiad club, under whose authorship Mr. Engle appeared; Pat Dunleavy, program chairman for the club; Rosie O'Meara, publicity director; Virginia Vilm and Joe Mogab.

The following day the group attended the Writers convention at Grinnell, Ia.

Fr. Kelley Named To NCEA Post

The Rev. William F. Kelley, S.J., dean of arts college, has been elected by the executive committee of the National Catholic Educational association to the committee on membership in the department of colleges and universities.

It will be his duty to visit those institutions who wish to be affiliated with the NCEA and to examine their curriculum in the light of the standards of the organization.

His activities during this month include; speaking before the Rotary club in Plattsmouth, Neb., April 29 on the subject of "Self-Reform before World Reform"; and speaking at the initiation of the Marquette council of the Knights of Columbus in Sioux Falls, So. Dak., on "Importance of Leadership," on Sunday, April 27.

Father Kelley will give the commencement address to the graduating students at Earling, Ia., May 11.

On May 25, he will also give the address at the Imogene, Ia, commencement.

Woe Be to the Lowly Student After Pa and Ma Make a Tour

At last reports the response to the president's invitation to Parents Day was overwhelming.

But let's take a look at Parents Day from the viewpoint of that down trodden individual who is the victim of lectures, term papers, tests and reading another chapter for the next hour.

The student may feel that when his parents return from their tour of the university that they will have high praise, for his college reputation. But wait brother—just wait. Yes, wait until your father returns home and tells you how Dr. B. just happened to remember you and that he thought you could raise that Carinology grade to a B if you would only study harder. Another pet phrase on the home front after the big day will probably be: I think you have been a little unfair in your criticism of your professors, they're fine people, maybe if you would start studying, etc., etc., etc."

Yes, wait until your parents hear of over cuts and other little incidents that are never mentioned at home.

A good example would be X. He has a respectful quality point average of C. He gets along well with his fellow students and occasionally, on a nice spring day, he likes to "take off" with the boys.

Then one fine day X came down to breakfast. His parents informed him of an invitation from the president of the university to attend a parents day program.

The effect on X is instantaneous. He breaks out in a cold sweat. The reflection in his coffee turns into the face of a leering dean telling his father about all the discussions that he and X have had in the office. His Corn Poppies become millions of absence card with those "sure fire" excuses. His roken egg reminds him of the probable condition of his body and privileges when his father returns from Creighton.

In a stupor X staggers away from the table. His stomach is doing cartwheels. He picks up his books from force of habit. On the bus he meets friend Y and quickly judges from Y's coloring that he too has parents who plan to attend the program.

In class X pays attention with a man-killing effort. He almost knocks himself out getting his hand up first. He has smiled at so many faculty members that he can't get his facial features back to normal. At the end of the day his head is spitting from worry of all the mistakes that he might have made during the day.

Upon arriving home X hurries through his meal, races to his room and begins pouring over his books. Now it is his parents turn. They can't believe that their son might be studying. Their X hasn't been this quiet since he was hit by a car. After 2 hours the suspense has become unbearable. Timidly they approach his door. A shaft of light creeps across the floor. They place their ears against the piece of walnut that separates them from their son. What they hear astounds them. X is memorizing definitions. He is studying. Joyously they return to the living room hoping that at last theirs is a son who wishes to get more than just "something" out of his education.

After a week of this mental torture X is afraid to open his eyes for fear that he will bleed to death. His head wurs with thousands of definitions. He prays fanatically that when his parents return from Creighton that his life will continue along a normal path, but who knows—who knows?

CU Readies Diamond Jubilee Celebration For Next Year

"Plans for the celebration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of Creighton university are being made," said Robert T. Reilly, director of public relations.

In these past 75 years Creighton has developed from a college of liberal arts and sciences to a university with schools of commerce, law, dentistry, medicine and pharmacy.

A bequest made in the will of Mrs. Mary Lucretia Creighton marked the beginning of the university. The executors of the will were directed to purchase a site and erect a building in which a college was to be established and maintained. The college was to be named after her deceased husband.

On Sept. 2, 1871, the Right Rev. James O'Connor, D. D., first bishop of Omaha, who had been named trustee by Mrs. Creighton, invited the Jesuits to conduct Creighton college and classes began Sept. 2, 1878. A corporation was formed Aug. 14, 1879, and Bishop O'Connor surrendered what remained of the trust to the Creighton university.

A college of liberal arts and sciences for women students was established in 1923.

In 1921 the building of the new university group was begun. First unit to be completed was the law building, erected on the northeast corner of 26th and California streets. The second unit was the dental building, located on the northwest corner of the same streets.

In the fall of 1949 a new chemistry building was opened for classes in all courses in chemistry. The building is located north of the dental building.

Three temporary buildings or "Huts," were constructed in 1946.

They house the radio and speech studio and provide badly needed classroom space.

Rated as a model structure of its kind and housing the basketball court, swimming pool, and headquarters of the Reserve Officer's Training corps is the gymnasium. Located in the center of the campus is the stadium with a seating capacity of 15,000. It serves as a drill ground for the ROTC, a football field and track.

The university also contains a college chapel, an auditorium, three dormitories, a snack bar and a cafeteria.

Located at 14th and Davenport streets is the school of medicine and the college of pharmacy. These buildings contain their offices, library, lecture rooms, laboratories, bookstore, the university dispensary, the clinic and the offices of the Student Health service.

The university publishes the following:

The weekly Creightonian, a student newspaper edited and managed by the students; the Creighton university bulletin, pertinent information concerning the various schools; the Blue Jay, official year-book of the university.

The Creighton Alumnus, official publication of the University Alumni association; the Journal of the Creighton University School of Medicine, published tri-annually by the medical faculty; the Pharma Jay, publishing the latest trends in pharmacy, and the Time Clock, news sheet for the Creighton Institute of Industrial Relations.

Fraternities, sororities, honorary societies, and numerous campus organizations add to the all-around education that Creighton gives its students.

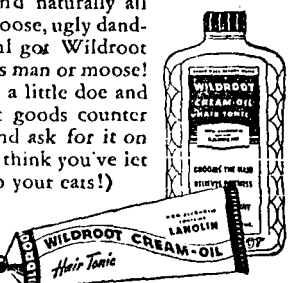

J. Paul Sheedy* Switched to Wildroot Cream-Oil Because He Flunked The Finger-Nail Test

"YOUR HAIR looks as though it's been in the rein, deer," a campus Caribou told Sheedy. "If you want to horn in on the sororities, it might behoof a man of your ilk to try Wildroot Cream-Oil, America's Favorite Hair Tonic. Contains soothing Lanolin. Non-alcoholic. Grooms hair neatly and naturally all day long. Relieves annoying dryness. Removes moose, ugly dandruff. Helps you pass the Finger-Nail Test!" Paul got Wildroot Cream-Oil and now no girl wonders whether he's man or moose! If your moose is cooked by unruly hair, collect a little doe and take a taxi-dermist to the nearest drug or toilet goods counter for a bottle or tube of Wildroot Cream-Oil. And ask for it on your hair at the barber shop so your deer won't think you've let herd down. (What she'll say will be moose-ic to your cats!)

CU Initiated Into Midwest League

SOUTH DAKOTA STAR, CIMPL, HOPEFUL PROSPECT FOR C.U.

Baseball has finally shifted into high gear on the Hilltop after having been rained out in the first five games scheduled.

Although the Bluejay varsity has split its first two games, their performance on the field is still below the par of their abilities.

Since the start of baseball practice Coach Subby Salerno has lost three of his eight returning regulars which dealt a heavy blow to the Bluejay's hopes.

One place where experience is sorely missed is on the pitching staff. Don Cimpl is the only remaining member of last year's mound crew. His appearances on the mound last year were few and brief but he gained his seasoning under fire while playing legion ball in South Dakota.

Legion Experience

Don attended Trinity high school in Sioux City, Ia., for three years where he played under John Tolan, who is now teaching at Boys Town. He transferred to Heelen high in Sioux City and ended his high school baseball career under Father Francis Conway.

During the summers Cimpl took part in the Junior Legion, and more recently the Tabor, S. D., semi-pro team programs.

This 5 foot 11 inch 170 lb. hurler, whose favorite pitch is a curve ball, has compiled quite a record and reputation in the South Dakota hardball circles. Since he started playing ball Don has pitched three no-hit games. In his senior year in high school he threw a no-hit no-run game against Wintamore, Ia., in a nine inning stint, with Heelen finally winning 2-0.

Tourney Standout

The next important accomplishment was stretched over a three game Junior Legion district tournament in which Don pitched one no hitter, struck out 48 opposing batsmen and hit one home run.

This last summer, while playing semi-pro ball, Cimpl compiled a 7-3 record while registering .288 at the plate.

"Cimpl compiled a 7-3 record while registering .288 at the plate."

In his first appearance on the mound this year, Don was touched for nine hits in 6 2/3 innings, which is not a true indication of his abilities. Maybe this bad start can be attributed to his recent arm injury, but he can be expected to do better in the future.

Cimpl is a sophomore in Commerce school. He is a better than average student, carrying slightly higher than a three point average.

Don's favorite pastime is a relaxing game of golf during his spare time, which turns up none too frequently. Another distinction which Don has, besides his baseball and golf talents, are the wonderful delicious tasting meats that he brings back occasionally from his father's meat packing plant in Yankton, S. Dak. His teammates are still waiting for the wiener roast he has promised to throw for them.

Coach Subby Salerno's flood working baseball team finally plugged a leak in the sky and got their 1952 baseball season underway.

Pat Nipp pitched brilliant ball as the Bluejays opened their season on the right foot. The result was a 12-5 Creighton victory.

The Hilltoppers started slow and found themselves behind 3-0 going into the second frame.

After the first inning the show was all Creightons as the team playing its first game in the newly organized Midwest Baseball league, shelled Midland pitcher Babe Penney from the mound.

When the barrage ceased the Blues had a 6-3 lead and were never in trouble after that.

Jim Knowles opened the second frame with a walk, Paul Gradoville followed with a line single and Bobby Meyer was safe on an error.

Buzz Stibbs and Pat Nipp failed to produce with the bases loaded, then things began to happen.

Jack McGraw drew a walk and the bases remained loaded. Jerry Mancuso, Ed Benak and Frank Gollon then came through when the chips were down. They produced three successive singles.

Two runs in the next inning brought the score to 8-3 as the Jay hitters refused to hit and fall back.

Single runs in the fourth and fifth innings added insurance to the victory. Midland failed to dent the offerings of Nipp during the same innings.

Two anticlimatic runs by both teams in the sixth frame ended the scoring.

Coach Subby Salerno said later that he was particularly pleased with the hitting power displayed by the team, he added however that the team fielding as a whole could stand some improvement.

Pat Nipp was tight in the clutches and had good support from the infield most of the time. Fielding was spotty at times, however.

The team will play two more games away from home before returning to open their home schedule against the Offutt Air Force team.

Creighton suffered its first setback of the season Tuesday at the hands of Dana college of Blair, Neb.

The Blues playing in the newly organized Midwest Baseball League, lost a 16-14 decision, in a game that featured power hitting and poor pitching.

The loss was the second in two years for the Jays who were playing without the services of Ed Benak who quit the team last week.

Three Bluejay pitchers paraded to the mound and were tagged for a total of 14 hits, 5 for extra bases. The same number of Dana hurlers were reached for 12 hits.

Jerry Mancuso led the parade of Hilltop hitters with two triples and a single. One of the blows would have easily gone for a home run but the stocky left fielder fell while rounding third and was tagged out at the plate.

Dana took an eight run lead early in the game but was forced to spurt in the late innings to overtake the Blues who had been slowly hammering away at the Viking lead. A four run seventh inning produced the winning margin.

Errors also hurt the Blues in their quest for victory number two. Five errors were committed by the usually reliable Jays.

Jack Scott, who yielded all Creighton runs on nine hits, more than made up for his spotty pitching performance by hammering out a home run and two singles in five times at bat.

The winning pitcher was Tom Christensen who relieved Scott in the fourth inning and yielded only three hits the rest of the way. His brother Ken finished the last inning, relieving Tom after one was out in the ninth.

Eight Bluejays combined their power to produce a seven run fifth inning. Mancuso's lusty triple featured the rally.

The losing pitcher was Don Cimpl who yielded 9 runs on the same number of hits after relieving Frank McCabe in the second frame.

Don Byers finished the game after coming to Cimpl's aid in the eighth.

No Standings Yet

Team standings for the new Midwest Baseball league have not yet been compiled.

The league which is in its initial season has suffered from cancellation of games due to rain and floods.

Creighton is batting 500 in the newly formed league with one win and one loss.

GRAB BAG

By Bill Fogarty

The Creighton gym, which has been used as a center for evacuees the past few weeks, is now open for student use. The gym facilities were loaned to the Red Cross during the flood emergency for housing the displaced persons.

TEE TIME

Play-off tryouts for the Creighton university golf team were held at Indian Hills golf course, April 26. Two returning lettermen, Jim Koley and Packy Lau, were hard pressed by two new hopefuls, Art Seigfried and Rich Bednar in the tussle for the first team positions. Competitive scores were as follows: Art Seigfried, P1, 76; Packy Lau, A8, 77 (two year letterman); Jim Koley, L1, 79 (one year letterman); Rich Bednar, A3, '80. Lau was voted team captain.

The following men gained alternate positions: Tom Hart, C4, Terry Slattery, A1, and Dick Konon, C1.

VET QUITS

Ed Benak, veteran Bluejay third baseman, and former South high star, has dropped from the varsity squad. He is the third of the eight lettermen from last year to quit the squad.

FOUL BALL

The first round of the double elimination softball tournament on the intra-mural front was cancelled due to conflicting schedules between varsity practice and the ball games.

In Monday night's attempt to get the tournament started, the Heartbreakers took a forfeit from the Delta Sigma Delta, and the Pre-Molars won by forfeit from the Delta Sigma Pi.

TENNIS ANYONE?

Creighton's 1952 tennis squad is preparing for its first match of the year with Omaha university at Dewey park on Friday, May 2.

If there are any racquetballers who still wish to try out for the team they may do so by challenging the number four man on the squad. The winner is eligible then for that position till next challenged.

Those on the squad are: 1, George Spruce; 2, Mike Beyhan; 3, Byron Wiley; and 4, Bud Valker.

SKIP DAY

We see where next May 7 is Skip Day. Also that there are a few scheduled softball games on the different picnics that day. Now we were wondering if a sort of tournament could be arranged among all of these teams with the winner gaining distinction of being Skip Day champions. These games could be run off in the early morning, allowing all participants to make it to their prospective picnics.

If interested why not drop in the news room and leave the name of your team and the time you'd like to play, and maybe this could be arranged. Please do this by Friday, May 2.

BUSY BOYS

The Creighton baseballers are taking on two more teams this week, the results of which will be in next week's paper.

Salerno's proteges travel to Lincoln, Wednesday, April 30, to play Nebraska Wesleyan. They then return to Omaha the following day to engage the Offutt Air Base team.

TEAM TRANSPORT

Creighton's baseball team has been traveling to their out of town games this year in a bus donated by Andrew Murphy and Sons.

Mr. Murphy has long been an ardent Creighton sports fan. He has always supported all Creighton teams both from the high school and the university.

The driver of the bus is Subby Salerno who also coaches his passengers.

SAND TRAPPED!

The Bluejay golf team was defeated Tuesday afternoon in their triangular meet with Omaha and Drake universities. The Jaymen were turned back by the Indians, 11-1, who in turn defeated the Bulldogs, 9-3.

THE WAY I SEE IT

Spring is usually the season for baseball and other outdoor sports, but at Creighton, Spring is no barrier to basketball, a winter game.

Coach J. V. "Duce" Belford has been busy these past few weeks molding his team for next year.

All undergraduate veterans and members of this year's Freshman team have been working out nightly in the gym.

This is not the first season that Duce has held post season prac-

Sports Sidelights

By Bill Dunn

This week's edition to the sports page was prepared for you by the sports staff minus Vern Torczon, who, during the senior's comps, has been shifted to a different post to help fill the vacancies in the Creightonian editorial staff. (I can just hear Vern singing "Don't Blame Me" when all of the discontented readers besiege his desk come Friday morning.)

But things are looking brighter now, especially since my major league team has finally grown a new set of claws, and is beginning to dig in on the race for the pennant. Most likely the rest of you Detroit Tiger fans are feeling better too.

The brightest spotlight seems to be turned on the St. Louis Browns who are rolling along at a red hot pace. You must remember though, Rogers Hornsby has a handful of rookies that will find the pace a little rough, and the pressure getting stronger as the middle of the season rolls around. It's rather tough to revamp a team that finished last in the 1951 season, 46 games behind the world champion New York team, and make them a contender for the flag in the '52 season.

Paul Richards came as close to performing this feat as anyone so far when his White Sox led the American league to the halfway mark in last year's race. But those old time veteran Yankees of the Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig era showed again that they were not to be counted out, and so Richards' speedsters finished fourth.

As long as I've got a stranglehold on the sports column this week, I'll attempt to predict the final standings of the present fight for league honors and the World Series set next fall.

In the American league: 1) Boston; 2) & 3) White Sox or Browns; 4) Yanks (they've lost the last of the magical names from their line-up); 5) Detroit (as a fan I really believe they'll win the pennant); 6) Cleveland (no hitting in the clutches, Feller has already lost a one-hitter); 7) Washington and 8) Philadelphia (Connie's hopes are going to hit rock bottom this year, the Athletics will lose over 100 games.)

The Red Sox are about due. They have all the potentialities of a winner, which are: 300 hitters; a good pitching staff; experience; and the last huge factor—pennant hunger. Do you remember how Lou Boudreau, Bosox manager, brought the Cleveland Indians up to the top when the fans were howling for blood. Well, the situation is about the same, and the time is RIFE.

The National league is even tougher to pick than the Junior league. So in calling the first division group, I'm crossing my fingers and flipping a coin.

Here is my guess of the final standings of the Senior loop: 1) Brooklyn; 2) St. Louis (the biggest fight for the Cards will be with the Brownies—for customers); 3) Giants (they shouldn't have traded their fireball to the Red birds); 4) Cincinnati (this team is beginning to find itself, could prove a big surprise); 5) Boston; 6) Philadelphia (depends on how fast Curt Simmons shapes up); 7) Pittsburgh (I just had to get them out of the cellar) and 8) Chicago (I'm biased because the Cubs dropped me out of their baseball school last summer).

If my predictions come true I'll come back next year. Also, if the Yanks win again, I'll . . . No, I ate my own words last year.

times, last year his charges also took part in a similar routine.
Actually the sessions enable Duce to spot the weaknesses in his players and to remedy them before the start of next year's campaign.
It also gives the new members of the team a chance to work out into the pattern used by Mr. Belford. The molding of a group of rookies into the fold is a man size job and requires more time than is actually available during the fall.

and many others are also working out with the team.
The old adage that practice makes perfect should be proved with the coming of the fall season.
No one can say that the team didn't display heads up ball at times. With more practice it is hoped that these exhibitions will be more numerous with the coming season.
This writer can truthfully say that the basketball picture on the Hilltop will improve with this additional practice. Don't forget "plan now for the future."

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

Poor guy was submerged in a veritable sea of cigarette tests! He didn't know whether he should "blow"—or just jettison the whole job! But he fathomed the matter when he suddenly realized that cigarette mildness can't be judged in one quick spout! Millions of smokers have found, too, there's a thorough cigarette test!

It's the sensible test... the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as your steady smoke — on a day-after-day, pack-after-pack basis. No snap judgments! Once you've tried Camels in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), you'll see why...

After all the Mildness Tests...

Skip Day--Play Ball in A. M. Dance At Peony Ball In P. M.

By BERNIE BECKER

Ah—Skip Day at last. That long awaited day for all Creighton students is here, come Wednesday, May 7. So get out your sun tan lotion, old levis, sloppiest sweat shirt, ball and bat, various refreshments and go out for one of the really bang-up times of the school year.

After a tremendous time picnicking (with all its diversions) what could be better than to top off the festivities, including sun burns and aching backs at the Skip Day dance being sponsored by the Creighton Press club at Peony park, Wednesday night from 9:30 to 12:30. After a picnic, who wants to dress to the teeth? Well, we don't, so this thing is informal. Only thing is, fellows have to wear jackets, but there's no need for such things as ties, stuffed shirts, formals, heels, etc.

Another good deal about the

Coed Sodality

The coed sodality will meet Monday evening at 7:15 in the prep library. Instructions for Marian Night procedures will be announced.

At a recent meeting at the home of Salie O'Connor, C4, the sorority voted a new staff of officers for next year.

Peggy is now vice-president of the sorority. She is the second semester society editor of the Creightonian and holds active memberships in Alpha Psi Omega, national dramatic fraternity, the Creighton Players, the Press club, the Spanish club and the coed club.

A native of Kansas City, Mo., Peggy is a speech major with journalism and philosophy minors.

Others who will assume executive duties in the sorority are: Nancy Fogarty, A3, vice-president; Celia McGuire, A3, secretary; Pauline Slack, A3, treasurer; Mary Hazelton, A3, assistant treasurer; Anne Caldwell, A1, historian; Jacqueline Johnson, A2, registrar; and Maureen Brady, C1, ritualist.

Elected to the Pan-Hellenic council for next year are Kathleen Barry, C3, senior representative, and Doris Severin, A2, junior representative.

Nurses Pick Hard Time Dance Theme

In charge of refreshments were chairman Pat Malady, N2; Cathy Corboy, N2; Carol Chandlee, N1, and Pat Kessinger, N2.

Chairman Mary Rock, N2; Norma Pestotnik, N1; and Pat Ormsby, N1, composed the publicity committee.

Ticket arrangements were handled by chairman Frances Sullivan, N3; Nancy Hicks, N1; Jane Kennedy, N1, and Casy McLaughlin, N1.

Rita Ryan, N1, was in charge of music.

whole affair is that it's only $1 per person. This is one of those rare dances that no one can afford to miss. Tickets are available from any Press club member.

Phil Caniglia and his orchestra are furnishing the music. Phil is one of the really up and coming new bands and has played successful engagements in some of the major dance spots in this vicinity.

On top of presenting a bang-up time for everyone, this is another time for every Creightonite to show some of that much needed school spirit. The U has given us a day off—let's take a day off for ourselves and have a good time, but still support the old Alma Mater.

So kiddies, get out the picnic gear and your comfortable dancing loafers and it's parks and Peony for all Creighton Wednesday. With the music of Phil Caniglia still ringing in our ears after a tremendous day we'll all go home and "C. U. In Our Dreams."

A Sap's Fables

(first and last edition)

In spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to "..." and at Creighton all men's fancy turns to thoughts of the annual students' "skip" day (by proclamation of the deans will be May 7).

Pharmacy students will gather in Miller park for their annual picnic. We looked into our crystal ball as to predict the outcome of the annual tug of war between the freshmen and sophomores. It advised us to prognosticate that all contestants should wear life jackets. "Be sure and take those watches off fellows."

Riverview Busy Place

Riverview park has been chosen by arts students for their annual get-together. It was also the site last Saturday of the freshmen medical students for their picnic. Speaking of that great outing, we're told that the baseball game was suddenly interrupted as members of both teams chased the umpire (an erstwhile classmate) off the field. They had just realized that he was suffering from a combined handicap: being temporarily "blind" and calling the game according to Hoyle (who unfortunately didn't write much about baseball.) Thanks to the brilliant sunshine, freshmen med students were easily distinguished at school Monday by their bright complexions (not to mention their ach sacroiliacs—backs to we laymen).

Everybody Welcome

All students are invited to attend the skip day dance renewed by the journalism students after several year's lapse. The dance features no queen, no colonel, no crack drill squad—just a good opportunity for some dancing to make the end of a perfect day.

Feature attraction of the coming Tri-Lang dance will be the naming of the Marquis and Marquise. Style note for the evening is the announcement of Tom Schonig that he intends to wear the same brown suit he wore in the 12th grade. It will feature the matching tie with the original knot still intact.

We note that spring arrived on the campus simultaneously with a number of convertibles (we might add with the tops down) bearing Duchesne stickers.

Dinner-dances seem to be a seasonal thing. Commerce, pharmacy, law, medical and dental frats are slated to enjoy dining and gancing in the near future. Phi Rho Sigma, last Monday night, initiated the trend to such events among the med frats. It was also the occasion for the senior farwell and we understand that after hearing their more revealing eulogies read the seniors wished they could say, like the freshmen, that their bright complexions were due to the sunshine (instead of the moonshine and/or monkey-shines).

Death Valley Ahead

With all the social notes about dances and dinners and picnics and such, some people (i.e., deans, teachers, etc.) might think that students have forgotten the more serious side of their education. On the contrary, we will vouch for the number of seniors who, despairing after a preview of comprehensive questions, are explaining Creighton's new grading system to their parents. Underclassmen in the know are readily joining the new system's bandwagon, which is referred to as the Death Valley grades (all below C-level). And the F's, of course, mean final, which is good enough for us.

Hawaiian Club Names Pat Engler May Queen

Pat, a brown-eyed blonde, ascended the throne with her escort, Reynold Shirai, M2, to receive her crown of orchids from Benjamin Chock, P4.

The queen wore a gown of powder blue nylon net over taffeta. The shirred bodice was strapless and her bouffant skirt was highlighted by a deep net ruffle starting at the waist and extending to the hem of her dress. She wore a matching stole.

A freshman at St. Joseph's school of nursing, Pat hails from Stuart, Neb., and is active in the sodality and glee club.

Douglas Chang, A3, acted as master of ceremonies.

Entertainment was furnished by Fred Silva, A1; Hiram Kamaka, L4; Ken Young, A1; Don Serrao, C2; Anita Lee, P3; Ronald Ohtani, D1; Mary Ann Kiai, N1, and John Pernich, A1.

Coconut hats were presented as door prizes to every hundredth couple entering the ballroom. Orchid corsages were given to every lady, while her escort received an orange paper lei.

Candidates in the court of Misses Engler all wore carnation leis during the ceremony. They were presented with gift certificates for a pair of nylon hosiery. The queen received a string of pearls.

Candidates participating in the May Day ceremonies were: Mary Holland, SJ3; Kathleen Barry, C3; Margaret Brennan, A4; Mary Thompson, A2; Bernice Hayes, P4; Nancy Cannon, A2, and Betty Uhlik, SC3.

Honored guests at the dance included the deans of the various schools and colleges.

Its Be Kind To Parents Day Sunday At C. U. Tea, Smoker

How have you and your mother been getting along lately? hmmmmmmmmmm?

With your bad case of spring fever, does she still persistently ask you to help her with the housework? hmmmmmmmm?

Are you sorry for some of the things you've said when she interrupted your cramming for tests? hmmmmmm?

Well, we can solve your problems—all in one full swoop!

Make mother happy—bring her to the Parents' Day tea!

Yes, that's right; you should really try very hard to have her at Creighton for the festivities this Sunday afternoon.

You just may not realize how very much it would mean to her. Day after day, we see our campus, faculty and classrooms. But does she? I'll bet that she wonders some mornings (when the house is quiet after you've just flown out the door on the way to your eight o'clock) just what Creighton is like, what your professors are like and would just enjoy visiting your school for a day. All mothers like to really see what their daughters are doing because all mothers are interested in us offspring.

Sunday afternoon she will meet the faculty, your dean and the mothers of your friends. She will tour the campus and be royally entertained at a tea and style show. She will thoroughly enjoy the afternoon away from home but at your school home.

Creighton hasn't forgotten your father either! Think how pop would enjoy seeing the university, and attending a smoker especially conducted for the fathers of Creightonites. While you and your mother attend the tea, fathers and brothers will be hearing two interesting speakers at the smoker. One talk will be on the atomic bomb and the other, on television.

Instead of your usual Sunday afternoon ride, or just staying at home, get dad to quit working in the yard and mother to stop doing the dinner dishes—and bring them to Parents' Day!

The time is Sunday afternoon at 1 p. m. The place is the general meeting in the Auditorium. Smoker, tea and style show are on the program for the afternoon, along with a tour of the campus and opportunity to meet the faculty.

It will be Parents' Day at Creighton!
