S. D. STUDENTS ENTERTAINED AT LUNCHEON

Creighton Press Club Is Host to Journalism Group Thursday

HITCHCOCK SPEAKS

Twenty-seven journalism students, members of the Printonian club of South Dakota State college, were guests of the Creighton Press club and the Omaha Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon Thursday noon at the K. of C. club. The club is visiting Omaha on its third annual industrial tour.

Gilbert M. Hitchcock, former United States senator from Nebraska and publisher of the Omaha World-Herald, was the principal speaker. Frank Fogarty, representing the Omaha Chamber of Commerce, was toastmaster, and Floyd E. Walsh, dean of the Commerce college, introduced Mr. Hitchcock.

"Only Start in School"

Mr. Hitchcock spoke to the group on Journalism as a profession. "Some schools offer a two-year course in Journalism, others a four-year course. I have been in school forty-five years," he said. "If you look forward to Journalism as a profession you cannot hope to finish your education in school; you can only start there."

Discussing the rapid progress being made in the newspaper field, Mr. Hitchcock said: "In 1885 the newspaper was published primarily for the head of the family and contained mostly business and political news. Today the newspaper is a family paper, written to appeal to every member of the household."

"Has Great Possibilities"

Modern methods of newspaper production were discussed by the publisher, together with the business and advertising departments. Several of his own personal experiences as a newspaper man were related by Mr. Hitchcock.

"Journalism is a field with great possibilities and opportunities for the young man or woman," concluded the speaker.

Club Tours City

Following the luncheon, members of the Creighton Press club conducted a short tour of the city for the visitors.

The club membership of the South Dakota organization includes A. A. Applegate, E. Harding, G. Lynn Hollen, G. Y. Martin and G. A. Whipple, faculty members, and Merton Lippert, Fred Smith, Francis Johnson, Oscar Abel, Orville Baumgardner, Floyd Billington, Paul Boswell, Gladys Burandt, Robert Cropley, Chester Dickenson, Albert Evenson, Kristian Gilbertson, Merrill Herb, Charles Hushaw, Majorie Jencks, Luella Larson, Mildred Lee, Raymond McCawley, Leonard Rohrs, Keith Sanders, and Allan Smith.

STUDENTS USHER

Four Creighton students, Edwin Van Ackeren, Edward Stancyk, Frank Stanosheck, and Raymond Finnegan have been ushering and assisting with the arrangements at the series of lectures on Psychology given by Dr. Albert De Quevedo during the past week at the K. of C. club.

James M. McGrath, AB '24, LLB '26, is temporarily stationed in Chicago on government business. He is in the department of justice as a "trust-buster". James Barrett, ex-Commerce '27, is rental manager for Tukey and Sons company, in the First National Bank building in Omaha.

Stanley Cheff, LLB '27, is doing legal work for the receiver of the Peters Trust company in Omaha.

MOVIES TAKEN

Some of the color of Hollywood was present at the Junior-Senior Prom held tonight at the Fontenelle hotel, when moving pictures of the coronation ceremony were taken for the Paramount theatre and Universal News Reel.

The pictures will be shown during the coming week, according to L. H. Wasson, manager of the Paramount.

WYNNE HONORED AT GRID DINNER

Presented With Gift By His Former Football Men

At a banquet attended by seventy-five members of present and past football teams, members of the coaching staff, and alumni, Creighton's athletes bid farewell to C. A. "Chet" Wynne last night in the Paxton hotel, and welcomed Arthur R. Stark as new head football coach of the Blue-jays.

Prof. Charles Bongardt of the Law faculty and a member of the Creighton athletic board, who was toastmaster at the banquet, eulogized Wynne, and stressed the loss that will be felt by the university, by the athletic department, and by Wynne's many friends in Omaha when the former head coach leaves May 1 to take up his new duties at Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

In a farewell talk, Wynne expressed his regret at leaving Creighton, particularly the friends he had found in the university and on the football and track squads. "I know you will all like Mr. Stark," Wynne said, "and that everyone will give him the cooperation and confidence he deserves." Wynne thanked Athletic Director A. A. Schabinger especially, "for the past seven years of pleasant association, and for all the good he has done Creighton as head of its athletic department."

Rudy Tesar, co-captain of the 1930 squad, bid farewell to Wynne in the name of the players, declaring that "no one has ever seen a better-liked coach or a finer gentleman than Coach Wynne." Tesar presented Wynne with a traveling set consisting of a Gladstone bag and a hand-bag to match as a parting gift from the football squad.

Arthur Stark was given an ovation by the squad, and in response said: "I know that I have a difficult task ahead of me. Among all the football coaches in the country, I regard Wynne as among the four best. I know that I cannot fill his shoes, but with your cooperation and support I will do my best, and do all that I can to put a real football team on the field next fall."

Athletic Director Schabinger, who concluded the program of speakers, declared that "in the seven years Wynne and I have been plugging together, we have built up a bond of understanding and friendship such as possibly does not exist between any two other men in the athletic field. When Stark refers to Wynne as one of the four best coaches in the country, I forget all about the other three. I wish Chet the best of everything, and I know that he will always receive it."

The banquet was given by a group of members of the Creighton alumni association. Arrangements were made by Harry Burkley, Jr., a graduate of the Arts college.

Edward W. Algee, LLB '29, is now with the Pacific Indemnity company at Los Angeles. With him in the same company are Reginald Bauder, LLB '26, and Harold J. Collins, LLB '25. Algee has applied to take the California state bar examination, which will be held in April.

R. B. Morrissey, LLB '29, is now practicing law at Gillette, Wyo.

DEBATE TEAM MAKES PLANS FOR BANQUET

Keys to Be Presented to Graduating Men on Thursday

TO NAME CAPTAIN

After completing one of the most successful seasons ever enjoyed by a Creighton team, the varsity debating squad will give a banquet for the graduating members of the group at the Knights of Columbus club at 6:30 p. m. on the evening of May 1.

Features of the banquet will be the presentation of keys to Emmet Blaes, Law junior, John Steinbaugh, Arts sophomore and Lawrence Krell, and the election of a new captain for the next season to succeed Ephraim Marks retiring head of the squad. The three men to be presented keys will receive them as virtue of their participation in two major debates during the last season.

Faculty Guests

The evening's entertainment is in charge of Emmet Blaes and John Dugan, manager for the 1929-30 season, and will include speeches by various members of the squad and faculty representatives. Those who will be present include the entire varsity and freshman squads with the Rev. Joseph C. Flynn, S. J., dean of the Arts college, the Rev. William H. Agnew, S. J., president of the University and the Rev. Charles M. Ryan, S. J., faculty moderator for the squad as faculty guests.

The graduating members of the group who will be especially honored, are Lawrence Krell, Gerald Vasak and Louis Lipp, all members of the senior Law class. "It is the intention of the debaters to make this an annual occurrence hereafter. We feel that the graduating men should receive some special recognition for their debating work of the year," said Marks.

Name Lettermen

Lettermen for the past season include: Lyle O'Rourke, Elmer Ogren, John Dugan, Louis Lipp, James Fitzgerald, Gerald Vasak, Bernard Martin, Ben Kazlofsky and Ephraim Marks.

The schedule for the Creighton team for the past season included eighteen of the strongest teams of the country and took the Creighton squad on several long tours. Beginning with Oxford on Nov. 22 the schedule was as follows:

Nov. 22—Oxford university; Jan. 7—University of Missouri; Jan. 8—St. Louis university; Jan. 9—Washington university; Jan. 11—Kansas Aggies; Feb. 2—University of Missouri; Feb. 14—Marquette university; Feb. 28—Iowa State college; Mar. 5—North Dakota university; Mar. 10—Iowa State college; Mar. 11—University of Iowa; Mar. 12—Coe College; Mar. 13—Northwestern university; Mar. 14—Princeton university; Mar. 15—Loyola university; Mar. 19—Detroit university; Mar. 28—Coe College; Apr. 9—Harvard university; Apr. 22—University of Nebraska.

UNIVERSITY FIGHT CARD IS SUCCESS

Milwaukee, Wis., April 22. — Pleased with the success of the first all-university student fight weeks ago, Marquette university athletic authorities have sanctioned a second card to be held in the Marquette gymnasium, Friday night, May 2, as one of the entertainment features in connection with the eighth annual Marquette high school relay carnival the following day.

Coach Curtis Brown of the Blue and Gold boxing squad is matching youngsters for the May 2 program, and will feature several boys who shone in the other card held last month.

She Didn't Raise Her Boy to Be a Bounder
(A Historical Novel in a Couple of Words)

It was the last day of May, 1302. Throughout the breadth, width, length and depth of Scotland, the peasant folk were gathering in bludgeons. A bludgeon formed in Glasgow, that broke several windows and set fire to the only house in the place. Governor Thompson, Eddie Polo, Lena Towerpisa and myself were called in to put an end to the disturbances immediately. I lead the nine of spades, my partner trumped it and the game broke up with much girlish laughter.

Thompson said the best way to break up a bludgeon is to sniff camphor. Lena said she was a great hand at using hot water bottles. Eddie said that the Literary Digest poll showed the way the wind blows in the Big Drink question. I'd been feeling glum all day, it being Glum Monday, so I let Eddie have one on the kisser. He bawled like a kid for about six hours until I shot him.

I'm supposed to mention the Prom in here, somewhere. Proms are beautiful things. They preen their feathers and love their little ones, even as you and I. Once there was a Prom that lived next door. He was a crusty old Prom and we had great fun calling him "crusty old Prom". Once he got mad and threw a ham through our window but my father wouldn't let us eat it anyhow. Proms always keep their sunny side up. They teach a great moral lesson. Little Proms are cute and sometimes they sing.

Galaxy of Scintillating Beauties Glitter in Junior-Senior Prom

By Cholly Longpants

Just this very moment returned from the laundry with my matzof-front shirt and am simply all a-quiver with quirks and ticks. Sometimes I feel as if I could fly. I'm that alive with things that do.

The Prom, of course, is the Prom. There really isn't a good deal to say except that the affair climaxes the social season on the Hilltop. It is old in tradition, dating from the famous war cry of Sigmund II, "Prom! Prom! Pullaway, if you don't come I'll pull you away!"

It was decided the Prom to be formal because nothing lends an air of informality to anything so much as informal wear. The orchestra is imported because they need the money.

However, a huge crowd is on hand and everybody should enjoy themselves. The usual beautiful local girls are on hand with their lovely-smelling swains. Kindly report any difficulties, tonsilectomys, dead faints or whatever happens to the nearest ROTC laddy and forget about it!

Bon Soir!

VARIED CATALOGUE OF NEW BOOKS IN LIBRARY

The list of new books, catalogued in the University library, is a varied one, containing medical treatises, autobiographies, commerce journals, plays, and other books tended to meet the need and pleasure of students.

Samuel Crothe's new book, "Romance and Rise of the American Tropics", is a romantic history of the American tropics from the days of the Spanish conquistadores to the present, under the impetus of American capital and industry.

In the "Diagnosis of Health" Dr. W. R. P. Emerson issued a challenge to positive health to everyone. He shows the individual how to rate himself in intelligence, and health habits. Besides he provides some common sense rules for attaining the best physical fitness.

George Lies, BSC '29, is now with the A. B. Saunders Accounting firm in Wichita, Kas.

C. U. NEW ROYALTY

Above is Robert Clarey and Miss Mae Fisher, who were crowned king and queen of the eighth annual Junior-Senior Prom tonight in the main ballroom of the Fontenelle hotel. Clarey is a senior in the College of Commerce, and Miss Fisher will receive her degree in nursing from St. Joseph's hospital this spring.

"C" CLUB TO GIVE HARD TIME DANCE

Annual Lettermen's Party to Be Held in the Gym May 2

Although final plans have not yet been completed, the "C" club, sponsors of the "Hard Times" dance, are predicting a great success for their pet project, which is to be held May 2 in the gymnasium.

Prizes will be awarded to the best dressed couples. Guests will be "touched" for the customary "six-bits" at the gate. Tickets can be purchased from any "C" club member.

Overalls or gingham will be the formal dress for hoboes and hoboettes. No taxis or cars will be allowed. Horse- or mule-drawn vehicles will be permitted, and all jewelry exclusive of safety pins will be banned. Collegiate pipes will give way to the old corn cob, and bales of hay will produce the desired barn dance effect.

"Square dances and old time songs will be in order, along with the jazziest of jazz songs," according to Floyd M. "Flip" Rombo, one of the committeemen. "Plans are almost complete in regard to the selection of the Peonian for the orchestra."

Other features for the program have not as yet been worked out. It is expected that the "C" club will present a special novelty act during the evening.

Paul L. Martin, AB '00, former dean of the Law school, is chairman of the Omaha War Memorial association, which recently announced plans for a huge granite and bronze memorial to be erected on the Omaha court house lawn at a cost of $100,000.

Hugo R. Chaloupka, MD '11, is engaged in the practice of medicine at 1030 Bank of Italy building, Los Angeles.

THREE PROFESSORS TO LEAVE IN JUNE

Fransworth and Byrnes to Teach Elsewhere; Nolan Wins Fellowship

Two members of the biology department of the Arts college have resigned to take up other teaching positions, and one has been granted a year's leave of absence, and will study at Notre Dame, according to an announcement made Thursday, April 24, by the Rev. J. C. Flynn, S. J., dean of the Arts college.

D. Ivan Farnsworth, assistant professor of biology, will leave in June. He will teach at St. Louis university during the summer and in September will become professor of anatomy at the Nebraska Medical school in Omaha.

Professor Farnsworth has been a member of the faculty in the College of Arts for the past two years. He came to Creighton from St. Louis university, where he obtained his master's degree in 1928.

Leo M. Byrnes, instructor in biology during the past year, will become instructor in biology at the University of Detroit. He will enter upon his duties there in September.

Daniel P. Nolan, an assistant professor in chemistry, will enter Notre Dame university to study for his Ph. D. He received a Research Fellowship in chemistry for the year 1930-31. His leave of absence will begin at the close of this semester's work.

At Notre Dame he will work in the Engineering school, and teach undergraduates. He will major in physical research chemistry.

Among those taking the California bar examination are Edward Algee, LLB '29; James L. Bean, LLB '27; Daniel J. Powers, ex-Law '27, and Frank L. Custer, LLB '26.

KING CREIGHTON VIII AND CONSORT ARE INSTALLED AT EIGHTH JUNIOR PROM

Grand Fontenelle Ballroom Is Packed With Royal Subjects as Impressive Coronation Ceremony Is Carried Out

ART KASSELL TO PLAY TILL TWO A. M.

Behind the rows of royalty ranged before the vacant throne of the kingdom of Creighton, Lord High Chancellor Arthur Mullen, Jr., carried the sceptre of royalty at the Prom this evening. Behind one of the princes of the kingdom he stopped, and as he presented the sceptre to Robert Clarey, senior of the College of Commerce, the 600 loyal subjects present hailed King Creighton VIII.

Shortly afterward, the brilliant beams of the spotlights sought out Miss Mae Fisher as she entered the ballroom, and followed her as she was placed upon the throne of the queen. And once more the royalty for the annual Junior-Senior Prom had been honored.

To the tune of "King for a Day", played by Art Kassel and his Victor Recording orchestra from the Club Metropole in Chicago, dancing was resumed until 2:00 a. m. in the brilliantly lighted ballroom of the Fontenelle hotel.

Princesses at the Prom were the Misses Lenore Greteman, Lorene Lyhene, Bernadina Rourke, Mary Catherine Walsh, Josephine Prendergast, Mae Brogan, Irene Stafford, Irene Cooney, Gene Mari Vana, Catherine Monaghan and Martha Koenig. The princes chosen to represent the various departments of the University were: Hugh Higgins and Harry Whitaker from the College of Arts and Sciences; Clarey and James McNally from the College of Commerce, Finance and Journalism; John E. Courtney and William E. O'Grady from the School of Medicine; George Maloney and Clifford L. Chase from the College of Pharmacy; John H. McLoone, Jr., and Hawthorne Arey from the School of Law, and Leo J. Ripp and Louis H. Trautman from the College of Dentistry.

Ceremony Began at 10:30

The coronation ceremony began at 10:30 p. m. A gong was rung three times, and pages opened the doors through which the royal procession was to pass. Little ribbon girls formed lines to keep the crowd in check, and then a ballet of thirty girls, trained in the dancing studio of Miss Faust-Potts, presented a dance ballet to the strains of the "Merry Widow Waltz".

Flower girls for the coronation ceremony were Louise Jean Little and Catherine Ewing; the king's crown bearer was Jackie Stewart, and the queen's crown bearer was Loma Kemp.

The trumpeters were Walter Gannon and Kenneth Miller, and the door pages were Jean Marie Festner and Mary Schoder. Pages for the queen were Jean and Jane McNab, Catherine Moran and Mildred Nielson, and the ribbon bearers consisted of Fern Wilson, Dolores Ewing, Helen Roe, Marjorie Smith, Mary Elizabeth McDewett, Evelyn Liebke, Florence Karstedt, Annett Walker, Marjorie Schultz and Josephine Moscrop.

Queen Is Senior Nurse

Then Chancellor Mullen presented the sceptre to Clarey, who knelt to receive the crown. After the new ruler of the realm had ascended the throne, the crowd of spectators saw Miss Fisher, senior nurse at St. Joseph's hospital training school, advance in her queenly robes, receive the royal diadem from the hands of the king, and take her place on the throne as the latest of Creighton queens.

Then the royal command, "On with the Dance", gave the signal for the resumption of the dance. Clarey's home is in Oskaloosa, Ia., where he was prominent in high school dramatics and Hi-Y work. At Creighton he is a member of the Knights of the Bluejay, campus pep organization, and is active in the Spanish club, of which he held the vice-presidency last year. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Clarey.

The queen is the daughter of Mrs. Lucy Fisher of Yukon, Okla., and will receive her degree in nursing this year from St. Joseph's hospital. During her high school course she participated in dramatics and debating for four years. Following her graduation, she enrolled in the Northwestern University nurses' training school, where she spent one year, and then transferred to St. Joseph's. Last year she took part in the Bluejay Follies, and she has been active in student affairs at the St. Joseph's hospital nurses' home.

Pupils of Miss Potts who took part in the ballet were: Blane Ernst, Evelyn Ernest, Glen Krippehoff, Helen Carpenter, Jean Jennings, Margret Humbert, Edith Hansen, Peggy Liebke, Thelma Jensen, Clara McGaun, Dorothy Slake, Jane Thall, Pearl King, Mildred Browning, Molly Green, Nellie May Darling, Jane Lynch, Shirley Turner, Patricia Madden, Maxine Mueller, Martha Farley, Marjorie Lee Racco, Patsy Rigley, Elanore Rappier, Blaise Adair Farrell, Florence Smith, Ann Marshall and Alice Middleton.

Other officers chosen at the meeting Wednesday night to hold office in the national chapter were: Raymond Kane, senior warden; Robert Bunsold, junior warden; Leo Reynolds, treasurer; Edward Stancyk, scribe; Cliff Johnson, chancellor; Kermit Small, historian; Gerald Dugan, master of ceremonies; Kenneth Clancy, master of festivities; Edwin Van Ackeren, correspondent, and Floyd E. Walsh, dean of the Commerce college, chapter advisor.

Initiation of the local chapter into the national group will be May 24 at a formal banquet and dance.

Ten pledges will be initiated into the fraternity next week.

Carl Mattson, LLB '27, has joined the credit department of the Standard Oil Co. of Nebraska. He was formerly employed by Douglas County in charge of tax foreclosures.

Paul FitzGibbon, halfback extraordinary of the '24, '25, and '26 teams, is serving as senior interne in the Garfield Park hospital, Chicago.

BISHOP RUMMEL GIVES ADDRESS

Speaks to Commerce and Arts Students on Thursday

Stressing the need of student thought and morality, the Right Rev. Joseph F. Rummel, D. D., bishop of the Omaha diocese, addressed the combined student body of the Arts and Commerce colleges yesterday morning at an 8 o'clock assembly in St. John's church.

Bishop Rummel in the course of his address brought in the need of the place of the Catholic student leadership of the present day world, which has turned to material things rather than spiritual. In this connection the bishop said: "The world is looking to the educated Catholic students of today as the real social, industrial and moral leaders of tomorrow. You will be the backbone of the nation in the near future, and therefore it is necessary that you cultivate and uphold the true standards of real Christianity."

The speaker also brought in the place of Christianity in history, quoting events from the time of 62 A. D. to the present period. He compared the modern world and the time sixty years after the death of Christ when Jerusalem fell and the Apostles were suffering martyrdom for the cause of the Church.

The danger of the modern trend of thought in regard to followers of Judge Lindsey and Mrs. Sanjour, prime exponents of companionate marriage and birth control, were also brought out in the course of the address. "We are depending on you, as representatives of modern youth, to curtail these ideas that are undermining the morale of America," said the bishop.

Miss Catherine Louise Horan was married recently to Francis Wehrheim, DDS '28, in Plainview, Tex.

MATH CLUB HEARS CHEMISTRY TALK

Prof. J. J. Guenther Speaks to Group Wednesday Evening

J. J. Guenther, instructor of chemistry at Omaha Technical High school, and James Patrick O'Brien, Arts junior, were speakers on the program at the regular meeting of the Mathematics club held Wednesday evening, April 23, in room 336 of the Arts college.

Mr. Guenther, who spoke on "The Relation of Mathematics to Modern High School Chemistry", is a member of the senate on chemical education of the American Chemical society, and comes in contact with every new development in teaching of the physical sciences in secondary schools. In his talk, Mr. Guenther pointed out that the modern educationalist was overstepping his grounds when he sought to tell the science teacher what should be taught in science courses.

"The educationalist can only furnish us with a method, based on psychology; when he attempts to tell us what to teach, he is going too far," he said.

James Collins, who attended the college of Arts last year, is continuing his college work at the University of California at Los Angeles.
