

Fochtman and Colfer Are Prom Rulers

Chancellor Jensen Reveals Law Student As King, Medic Co-ed As Queen of Junior-Senior Prom

Ceremonies Impressive As Board of Governors Participates in Exercises for First Time in History

QUEEN IS SISTER OF FORMER RULER

By Soren Munkhof

Another king and queen ascended to the throne of the Creighton Junior-Senior Prom as Lord High Chancellor Vernon Jensen presented the royal scepter to the new monarch at 10 o'clock this evening.

Thomas Colfer, Law senior, was crowned King Creighton XII before 600 loyal subjects. Helen Fochtman, Medical senior, was revealed as queen when she entered the courtroom shortly later with her personal attendants and guard of honor, and took her place on the throne beside King Colfer. Miss Fochtman is the sister of a former prom queen, Mary Fochtman.

Colfer is a member of Alpha Sigma Nu and Delta Theta Phi fraternities and of the dramatic club. He was president of his junior law class and played in the Bluejay Revue in 1932, the Only Girl in 1933 and the Red Mill in 1933. Miss Fochtman is a member of Chi Mu Kappa sorority.

After the coronation, the governors left the room and dancing started with a special royal dance for the princes and princesses. Dancing was resumed with couples paying homage to the royal couple throughout the evening.

Military Guard

The coronation ceremonies began with the entrance of the military guard followed by the Lord High Chancellor with his attendants and crown bearer. The members of the Board of Governors then entered and took their places on either side of the royal throne.

The royal princes marched in at the Chancellor's call to take their places in a semi-circle in front of the throne. The Chancellor identified the king by striking the Crown Prince on the shoulder with the scepter. The prince then took his place on the throne, assumed the royal robe and was crowned by the Chancellor. The princesses knelt in homage and then marched to the door of the throne room where they formed in four files. The princesses entered to take their places in front of the line of governors and the princes returned to their places in front of the throne.

Formed Two Files

A brilliant spotlight in the darkened room picked out the queen as she entered the room with her attendants. She marched to the throne where she was received by the king and took her place beside him on the throne.

The governors, princesses and princesses paid individual homage to the king and queen and marched to the door of the room. The governors left the room and the princesses and princesses formed two files between which the Chancellor and attendants left the room.

Dancing followed to the music of Jimmie Joy's band.

The princes who took part in the ceremonies were: Ed Hart and Gildo Cortese, arts; Keith Wilson and Ted Higgins, journalism; Elvin Terniss and Ed Arnold, commerce; Tom Colfer and Edward Birzer, law; George Ludes and Renaldo Menghini, dentistry; Clement Boehler and George Oliva, medicine, and Donald Selner and William Goodin, pharmacy.

The princesses were: Mary Martin, university college, and Mary Margaret Murphy, St. Catherine's, representing arts; Sheila Shirley, Duchesne, and Marie Mann, university college, representing commerce; Verone Gruenther, Duchesne, and Rose Jezewski, St. Joseph's, representing dentistry; Mary Ellen Leary, Duchesne, and Geraldine Thayer Folda, St. Joseph's, representing journalism; Virginia Mancuso, law, and Elizabeth Donahoe, Duchesne, representing law; Helen Elizabeth Fochtman, medicine, and Florence Gladys Wolff, St. Catherine's, representing medicine, and Catherine Kessler, St. Catherine's, and Mary Elaine Bass, pharmacy, representing pharmacy. Olga Lorraine Dyba, university college, was to have represented commerce but was forced to withdraw because of illness.

The governors taking part were: Frank Corrigan, senior, and Michael Brown, junior, arts; Jack Leary, senior, and Kenneth Dellamater, junior, commerce; Soren Munkhof, senior, and Herman Dippel, junior, journalism; Louis Grant, senior, and Hugh Danahy, junior, law; Vernon Jensen, senior, and James Troyer, junior, dentistry; Horace Shreck, senior, and W. Kiley Kovar, junior, medicine; and Louis Bass, senior, and Max Ireland, junior, pharmacy.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Gentleman and Dr. and Mrs. Adolph Sachs chaperoned the affair. The guests of honor were: the Rev. P. J. Mahan, S. J.; the Rev. William J. Corby, S. J.; the Rev. Thomas S. Bowdern, S. J.; the Rev. Joseph P. Zuercher, S. J.; the Rev. John Danahy, S. J.; the Rev. F. C. Degiman, S. J.; the Rev. John J. McInerney, S. J., and the Rev. George A. Degiman, S. J.

Fr. Bowdern Speaks To Prep Mothers

The Rev. Thomas S. Bowdern, S. J., dean of the graduate school and university college, gave a speech on "Jesus Education" Wednesday at 3 p. m. to the Creighton Prep Mothers' club. Father Bowdern will speak again on "Education and Culture" at the American Legion hall at 8:30 p. m. February 13.

"In the Minority"

In sympathy with the Union Board representatives of the other two undergraduate schools on the hill, the representatives of the college of commerce are withdrawing from the Board of Governors in view of present conditions.

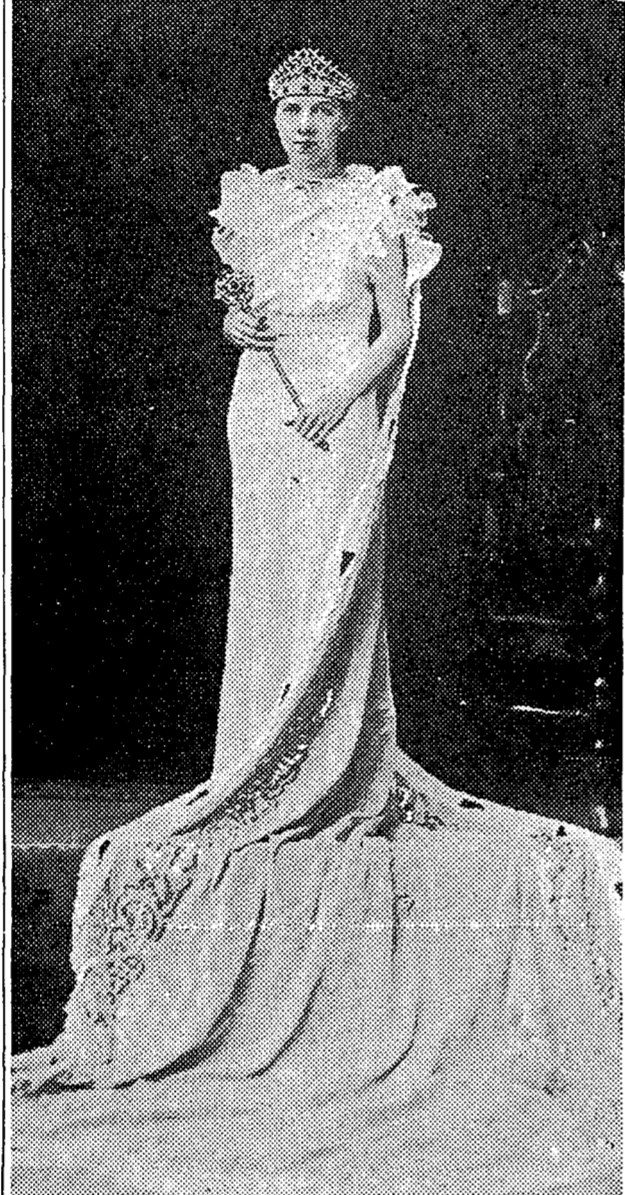

It is the policy of the professional schools acknowledged by their own representatives on the board to stick together and control student activities through the board. The undergraduate colleges are in the minority on the board and consequently do not have a fair chance in governing student affairs.

Our withdrawal is in protest of an ill which cannot be corrected under present arrangements and conditions.

Two New Creighton Monarchs Named to Rule Over Blue Board Members From Commerce, Arts, Journalism, Quit in Body

Thomas Colfer, law senior, was crowned King Creighton XII at the annual Junior-Senior Prom tonight. Helen Fochtman, medic senior, was revealed as his queen and took her place upon the throne to rule over her loyal subjects as the climax to the coronation ceremonies.

The rulers were picked from among the 14 princes and princesses named to represent the seven major departments in the royal court. They were chosen by the board in a hotly contested election Monday.

Colfer is a member of Alpha Sigma Nu and Delta Theta Phi fraternities and was president of his junior law class. He is also a member of the Dramatic club and played in the Bluejay Revue in 1932, and the Only Girl and the Red Mill in 1933.

NOTICE

There will be an important meeting for the purpose of outlining plans for the intramural debate tournament on Feb. 11 in the administration building. Two representatives from each fraternity and organization on the campus are expected to attend.

Staff Meeting

The Creightonian staff will meet Monday at 3 in the newsroom. A new staff will be appointed.

"Dominance"

In view of the conditions existing on the board of governors, I firmly believe that it is the duty of men who truly represent the student body to do their share in abolishing a student government which does not represent the body which it is supposed to serve.

In view of the absolute dominance and control of the board by the representatives from the professional schools I do not believe that the board should continue. In addition, I do not feel that the Union is necessary to the well-being of the student body.

The functions of the Union officer can and should be handled by that manager under the direct supervision of the dean of men. The prom, which is the only other important function of the board, could be better handled by a specially chosen prom committee. As to a central student governing body, it would be best to include the entire university in such a group and to give the women students an equal representation.

Under these conditions, I feel that I can best serve the student body by resigning.

SOREN MUNKHOF,
Journalism.

The Union Dies

The resignation of the six Union Board members leaves the university without a student governing body.

While the sympathies of the Creightonian are decidedly with the six members and the students of the three schools, we wish to point out the urgent need for the immediate organization of some provisional student government group.

It is our belief that the Students Union has been abolished by this move on the part of the six. If the board continues with its present membership it is obviously not representative of the whole university. It is therefore necessary that some move be made within the next few days.

It is hardly probable that the board powers given the board of governors will be granted to another student group by the University authorities in view of the failure of the board to handle its own affairs.

In order that the student body may have a voice in the formation of a new set-up we suggest that class meetings be held in all departments for the purpose of electing representatives to an all-university meeting under the direction of the dean of men where plans may be discussed.

Dr. Clayton Gives Talk to Caduceans

Members of the Caducean society Thursday night heard the late dean of the school of medicine, Dr. H. von W. Schulte, praised as "the greatest cultured gentleman in Omaha."

The speaker was Dr. Frederick W. Clayton of All Saints church, who spoke on the subject, "The Religion of Culture to the Physician." About 50 members of the society and their guests attended.

"No man, however learned," Dr. Clayton said, "can be called a cultured man if there remains an unbridged gap between his learning and his life."

"Only Solution"

In view of the existing discord of the Board of Governors, I feel that the only feasible solution of this most unfortunate situation is the withdrawal of the representatives of the undergraduate departments. As a result, please accept my resignation to take effect at once. . . . I am of the firm opinion that the board should be reorganized.

KENNETH DELLAMATER, Commerce.

Takes Classes

The classes of Dr. Leo R. Kennedy, professor of education who is ill at St. Joseph's hospital, will be taken by the Rev. Thomas S. Bowdern, S. J.

"Discriminated"

As senior representative of the students in the college of arts and sciences I wish to express the sentiments of those men whom I, as a governor of the Students Union represent.

From the year 1922 when the Union was founded until the present the arts college has never received due recognition or support from the board of governors.

This organization is supposed to be the moulding factor in uniting the interests of the student body and, therefore, since the school which I represent has been repeatedly discriminated against, it is my belief that the board has defeated the purpose of the Union.

It is for this reason that I tender my resignation from the Board of Governors.

Symposium Sponsored by Phi Rho Sigma Will Be Held at Medical Arts

Seven Members of Faculty to Speak; All Medical Students Invited

Phi Rho Sigma, national medical fraternity, will sponsor a symposium on the subject of "Hypertension" next Thursday evening in the auditorium of the Medical Arts building. Emery Bordeau, M 4, president of the fraternity, is in charge of arrangements.

Seven members of the faculty of the medical school will speak on some phase of the topic. This is planned to be merely the first in a series of such affairs.

Invitations to the symposium have been extended to all faculty members, medical and pre-medical students of the university. Fred C. Mackenbrock and Louis D. James, M 4, will assist Bordeau in making arrangements.

"Failed Purpose"

Since the Board of Governors has continually discriminated against one college I consider that the board has failed in its purpose.

The royalty chosen from the arts college has always been equal to the royalty representing other schools. Yet, because of prejudice and greed the representatives of the professional schools have more than once resorted to political bartering to prevent the selection of the logical candidate of the entire student body.

I am convinced that I am acting in accord with the sentiments of the students of the college of arts and sciences. I feel it would be an injustice to the student body of the arts school to continue as junior representative on the Union board in its present condition. I withdraw my membership from the Students Union board of governors.

PROM ELECTIONS BRING DECISION

By Keith Wilson

Six members of the Students Union board of governors resigned at 10:30 tonight.

Protesting that a coalition of the four professional schools: pharmacy, dentistry, law and medicine, dominated the board and that it was useless to continue as members, the six handed their resignation to Vernon Jensen, president of the board.

The Students Union board of governors, for 11 years Creighton's student governing body, became a union of the four professional schools tonight with the defection of arts, commerce and journalism.

The action was taken when it became known that the election of Tom Colfer and Helen Fochtman as king and queen of the prom was a certainty and that the four professional schools had again elected their candidates.

Intense Activity

The six are: Frank Corrigan and Michael J. Brown, arts; Jack A. Leary and Kenneth Dellamater, commerce, and Soren H. Munkhof and Herman J. Dippel, journalism.

The resignations were the culmination of intense political activity on the campus in the past week. In the 11 years that the Union Board has been in existence the college of arts and science has never had a prom king from its department. In an effort to elect their candidate this year the arts members of the board tried to break into the coalition but their efforts were unsuccessful.

Four Officers Remain

The eight remaining members of the board include the four officers. Neither arts, commerce or journalism members were chairmen of important committees. Brown and Leary are the only resigning members who have served more than one semester on the board. Leary has served a year and a half; Brown was elected last spring.

The two journalism members and Corrigan were elected last October, Dellamater was elected only three weeks ago.

Commerce has fared better than arts in the matter of offices and prom royalty in past years. Last year's prom king was a commerce man as was the president of the board two years ago. At no time, however, was the commerce college considered a regular member of the professional school coalition.

The organization of the board does not permit recall of its members during their two year term; the relationship between students

"Impossible"

I believe that the Union board under the existing conditions cannot serve the student body of Creighton to its best advantage. The lineup of four professional schools makes it absolutely impossible for the three major undergraduate colleges to receive just recognition in matters handled by the board. I believe that the student body can best be served by the abolition of the board.

HERMAN DIPPEL,
Journalism.

and the board members has always been remote.

All six resigning members have expressed themselves as dissatisfied with the present arrangement of the board. The election of the king and queen has always been associated with politics and attempts to make the choice of king and queen rotate among the several professional schools have been unsuccessful in past years.

Student sentiment on the board is considered to be sharply divided although there is no means of checking it.

When it became rumored this evening that the six were contemplating resignation efforts were made to determine what its effects would be. Five of the six believe the board should be abolished; the sixth holds out for reorganization.

The fate of the board rests with the three schools, arts, commerce and journalism, which are understood to be strongly anti-union.

A spokesman for the six said Friday that the resignation was not the result of hasty decision. Numerous defeats suffered by the arts college together with the relative unimportance of all three departments as far as the board was concerned had caused them to contemplate such action.

The Students Union was founded in 1922 as the first student governing body. Within two years it had established the Union clubrooms, the Creightonian and the Bluejay. It later employed a full-time graduate manager to handle the business affairs of these three as well as the maintenance of an employment bureau.

Dr. Riley Speaks on "Ideals in the Professions"; 1100 Attend

FR. BOWDERN IN CHARGE

Forty-one degrees and certificates were awarded to 40 members of the graduating class at the third annual mid-year commencement exercises held in the university gymnasium yesterday.

Dr. Riley, dean of the school of medicine, speaking on "Ideals in the Professions", told the persons who attended the ceremonies that "perhaps the greatest intellect ever sent forth from Princeton university was lodged in a brain of little less than a monster, and Aaron Burr, might have been a power in land and have been crowned w.

immortality had his talents been rightly used, went down to his grave unwept, unhonored and unsung; his name well-nigh an anathema, his memory held up to obloquy, because while his mind was highly developed, somehow, his soul was warped.

The men who devised the system under which students now study were, perhaps, wiser than they dreamed of, said Dr. Riley. Far better the work than they dared hope for is the document outlining the educational procedure, which persists in actual practice in the main to this day.

"Upon it is based the theory that education is more than the mere imparting of knowledge—it is the development of mind and soul," he said. "It is neither an end in itself, nor merely a preparation for participation in civil life.

"Jesuit education," he continued, "rather envisages something beyond this, a preparation for participation in the Kingdom of God. It is this idea and this ideal which has made the Jesuit order what it is today and what it has been since the days of Ignatius Loyola—the greatest single force in the world in educational matters."

The Rev. Patrick J. Mahan, S. J., president of the university, who conferred the degrees and certificates, told the graduates that "it is easy to go to hell, not only in the other world, but also on this earth, because of the lack of a philosophy of life."

The Rev. Thomas S. Bowdern, S. J., was in charge of the exercises in which commissioned officers in the ROTC unit, the ROTC band and university orchestra participated.

Those who received degrees were:

Not "King for a Day"—Blue Monarch, "King for a Year"

By ROBERT E. SAVAGE

Jimmy Joy's orchestra may play "King for a Day," but Creighton royalty knows its king for a year. Once more the glad voices and loyal hands will be raised in pledging allegiance to King and Queen Creighton. Eleven times a true son of the Blue has been crowned ruler and the twelfth will soon don his regal crown.

The memory of Count John A. Creighton, deceased founder of the university, was honored in 1923 at the first prom, when he was named King Creighton I.

Miss Beatrice Sattler of Los Angeles, Calif., donned the ermine and wielded the sceptre alone in 1924. She was the first and last queen to hold full sway over Creighton.

Los Angeles Scores

Los Angeles was honored again in 1925 when Harold F. Collins and Rosemary Conlan, both of that city, took the throne and reigned throughout that prosperous year.

Omaha and Buffalo, N. Y., took the prize in '26 when the dominion of Creighton was reigned over by Anna Jeanne Beaton of this city and Thomas J. O'Brien of Buffalo.

King Cotton Represented

Newell Dougherty from 'way down in San Angelo, Texas, and Miss Beulah Edwards from down yonder in Winston-Salem, Carolina, were the king and queen of the House of Creighton, which by their reign payed honor to the land of King Cotton, in dear old '27.

The Golden West was represented by George Bolton of Butte, Montana, king, and his queen, Marion Buller of Salt Lake City, Utah. They controlled the actions of the Creighton sceptre in 1928. B. C. (Before Crash).

Omaha shone again but this time with Minneapolis, Minnesota, when courtiers acclaimed Margaret Talbert of this city, queen, and Frank Mork, king. Their royal highnesses ruled throughout that unforgettable year of 1929. D. C. (During Crash).

King Creighton VIII and his royal queen were Robert Clarey, Oskaloosa, Iowa, and Mae Fisher, Yukon, Oklahoma.

Nebraska Rules

The throne of the Blue was graced by their majesties, King Merle Hunt and Queen Olga Yoder in 1931. Hunt hailed from O'Neil, Nebraska, and Miss Yoder from Elm Creek, Nebraska.

Leonard H. Powers' brow was graced by the crown and the ermine robes graced the shoulders of Mary Fochtman, who were acclaimed king and queen respectively in 1932.

Lawrence Kearney wore the royal crown throughout 1933 and Felicia Randall graced the throne as queen.

Campus Comment

"I Speak for the Board"

Too often a multitude are swayed by the inconsistent, incoherent babble of one or two persons who have euphonic ideas, that they know how to run things for the best advantages of the whole school. Perhaps if these two had considered the school, rather than looking for a chance to try to show up the Student Board of Governors, all of this unjust and undue publicity would not have fallen on the two students and the school. Because there are 14 princesses from which to choose a queen, and someone starts the rumor that a certain one is to be selected, these illustrious men start a petition to prohibit it, "and" after getting many signatures to a hypothetical situation, they suddenly find that their efforts were all in vain, that "she had been withdrawn," they said. Not to be outdone, with their hypothetical pugnaciousness, they got the brilliant idea to turn the story over to the papers, resulting in an embarrassing situation for the student and his wife.

Now perhaps a few facts might not go amiss. The pharmacy member had told me nearly a week ago that his wife was not to be considered as a choice for queen; and still the instigators of the petition said her name was withdrawn after the petition had reached its height, and that the Board had decided to vote in accord with the student wants. The present Board, I believe, are capable of handling this in the proper routine of selecting a King and Queen without any authoritative advice from a couple of students. Had the offenders investigated more closely, and talked to the persons concerned, this publicity would not have followed. The board in its present administration has worked on behalf of the students interests and I know will continue to with their choice of King and Queen. As long as the founders of the petition have a media to work through, I believe that an apology should be publicly made to the two married students; because, 1. they started the petition on heresy; 2. they did not investigate thoroughly before pushing the petition; 3. they had published a statement which was not true, concerning her withdrawal; and that it placed her and her husband in a most unjust, embarrassing situation. As far as the board goes we do not stand invincible neither in this case are we defeated, because defeat cannot come to a situation that was never to occur.

I think I speak for the board in expressing our regrets for this to the two married students and also to the school who always suffers unjust criticism, when such a situation arises.

If these "pioneers" will look after their own affairs and do them properly, I'm sure the Student Board of Governors will handle their end of the deal in a much less cumbersome manner and in accord with the wishes of the faculty and students.

HORACE SHRECK.

(Editors Note: The six resigning members of the board said Friday that Shreck was not "speaking for the board" as far as they were concerned.)
