Mass: 'a powerful way to start the new year'

By Rosemary Delaney

An estimated 900 people attended the Mass of the Holy Spirit Wednesday morning. Michele Albers, a member of the eight person planning committee, called the mass a "powerful way to begin the year."

Over 500 run for Make-A-Wish

By Christine Krenik
Creightonian Reporter

Over 500 runners participated in the fourth annual Make-A-Wish run, organized by the Creighton Medical Student Government and the Make-A-Wish Foundation of Nebraska, last Saturday in front of the Criss Health Sciences Building.

Kevin Baskin, a second-year medical student and one of four organizers for the event, said that number is over four times as high as last year's entrants in the 6.2 and two-mile races.

Baskin said the organizers didn't anticipate such a high number of entrants, which pushed the starting time of the race back 15 minutes to accommodate race day entries.

Tim Francis won the 6.2 mile race in a time of 32:39. Roy White finished second and Keith Baumert came in third.

Dave Walton won the two-mile event in a time of 11:49. Walton was followed by Joe Ayloub and Ed Hunter.

In the women's division, Nancy McCormack placed first in the two-mile race, followed by Jennifer Smith and Nancy Sanchez.

Judy Slaughter captured the crown in the 6.2 mile race in a time of 44:40. Bea Sides took second place and Kim Wahl finished third.

In the 40 and over division, Kevin

Gallagher led the men, followed by Mark Stageman and Gary Julin. Percy Madsen placed first in that division for the women, just in front of Percy Molden and Jane Crosby.

In the 18 and under age division, Mary Collignon placed first for the women. Dean Diggins came in first for the men, followed by Chad Otman and Dave Wells.

Two medical students, Mike Vlastos and Jeff Chivilicek ran from the Lincoln City County Building, 60 miles away, and crossed the finish line around 9:45 am. The two had started the night before and were followed by a van for safety.

All of the proceeds of the race go to the Make-A-Wish Foundation of Nebraska. The foundation grants wishes to children under 18 who have life-threatening illnesses.

Over $7,000 was raised, falling short of the $10,000 goal the organizers had hoped to reach. Baskin said the $7,000 is equivalent to two or three wishes. Last year, the race raised $2,500.

Craig Hofsheier, a Make-A-Wish child, was present at the race and awarded the trophies and medals. Hofsheier has Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy and was the 1986 Nebraska Poster Child and the 1987 Omaha Poster Child.

"You can't say enough about the Make-A-Wish Foundation," Hofsheier's mother said. "They allow the families to go on the trips and it is a first class operation all the way."

An estimated 900 people attended this year's Mass of the Holy Spirit at St. John's church Wednesday.

The mass is a tradition at all Jesuit schools in the nation, according to Michele Albers, a member of the eight person planning committee for the mass.

"We are trying to involve different people from the students, staff, and faculty," Albers said. She said students were involved in every aspect of the mass from the planning to the procession.

Albers said, "we are trying to get a sense of the Creighton community including the medical and dental students. The big focus of the mass was on the multiple gifts within the Creighton community."

"It is a powerful way to begin the year, by asking the Holy Spirit to bless everyone in their endeavors."

The hour and ten minute mass began with Albers and Kevin Stewart, a student, leading the procession. In the background, the choir sang "Glory to God" under the direction of Rev. Bernard Portz, S.J.

Following Albers and Stewart was the flame bearer, Paul Ahern. The flame is a symbol of the Holy Spirit.

Behind Ahern was a procession of 40 people, composed of members of the administration, faculty, and several students. All of them carried multi-colored banners. Thirty Jesuits from the Creighton community were also included in the procession.

The Jesuits wore new vestments this year, designed and built by student Tom Vaccaro. They were a brilliant white with a blazing red, symbolizing the Holy Spirit.

The mass was celebrated by university president Michael G. Morrison, S.J. The first reading was from the book of Acts and read by Dr. Michael Kelly from the counseling center. The second reading was from Corinthians and spoken by Julie Newlin.

The Gospel came from the book of John, and was read by Carl Morello. The homily was delivered by Rev. Michael Flecky, S.J.

In his homily, Flecky sympathized with the people gathered by saying that "in the midst of diversity, one thing we all share is the need for a parking space."

Flecky then brought his homily to a more spiritual level by stating that the "three points to living in God's light was reverence for our individual gifts; respect for others' gifts; and the generosity to make these gifts available to others."

Flecky then called the greatest sin against the Holy Spirit as "the sin of ingratitude for the gifts we are given and reproach for the gifts we are not given." Flecky said the second greatest sin is to make our gifts look better by putting down other's gifts."

The mass was closed by Father Morrison. The recession was led out by Albers and Stewart to the sound of "Lift Up Your Hearts."

Two-day event with guest speakers

Leadership conference open for all students; starts next Friday

The third annual Leadership Conference will take place Sept. 30 through Oct. 1.

Brian Rolf, who serves on the planning committee, said the purpose of the conference is to "give leadership experience to anyone who wants it."

Rolf said many organizations on campus are selective about who they choose, so only certain people are allowed to get leadership experience. Rolf said the result is that those same people get chosen for other leadership positions because of their experience.

Rolf said the leadership conference breaks that cycle.

The main goal of the conference is to get all students involved. Anyone interested can come.

The conference starts on Friday afternoon with community service projects throughout Omaha.

From there, the participants will go to Calvin Crest Camp near Fremont for a welcome, a reflection and a fun activity.

Saturday's activities will consist of a number of seminars. The seminars this year are on two levels. Established leaders will attend different seminars than the emerging leaders. Rolf said this makes the conference "more directly oriented to the students' needs."

The conference will close with an "issues and answers" forum. Possible speakers include Rick McAuliffe, associate director of Public Safety, Dr. John Cernech, vice president for student services, and Dr. Ronald Slepitz, assistant vice president for student services, Bob Kerrey, former Nebraska governor and a candidate for the Senate, Dick Jeffres from Team 1 Ford and Curt Retliff, director of public relations for the Omaha Community Playhouse.

"Besides practical experience, a lot of communication takes place," Rolf said. "It is an opportunity to break down the barriers between the colleges and make contacts with different people."

Denise Cradik, director of programming, said the conference will be a beneficial experience for all who attend.

"It will help not only through college life, but it is also a great way to network and meet other students around campus," she said.

The cost of the conference is $7 and students can sign up in the programming office. The deadline is Monday, Sept. 26.

The conference is being sponsored by CUBAC, Art Senate, R.O.T.C., East and West Quad Council, RHA and SBG.

Teeter-a-thon Friday

The fountain area in front of St. John's Church will be the site of a 48-hour non-stop teeter-a-thon beginning at noon Friday, Sept. 30. Delta Upsilon fraternity, 5-year sponsor of the fund-raising event, will provide the personnel, with assistance from their Little Sisters auxiliary.

Brian Patterson, event coordinator, said 25-30 students are expected to participate.

This year's DU Teeter-a-Thon will also include an off-campus site at a Hy-Vee Food Store in Ralston. With the expanded operation, plus expected corporate donations, Patterson projects that $2,000 will be raised, this year compared to last year's $600. The hours for the Hy-Vee location are: 12-6 p.m., Friday, Sept. 30, and 10 a.m.-6 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 1.

The main beneficiary of the fund raising event will be The Villages, a group of foster homes with headquarters in Wichita, Kan. The Villages are Delta Upsilon's internationally designated charity. A portion of the funds generated by this year's DU Teeter-a-thon will go to the Omaha Chapter of the Nebraska Diabetes Foundation.

Dental students initiated into honor society

Eight students at the Creighton School of Dentistry were initiated in to the Epsilon Chapter of Omicron Kappa Upsilon Honorary Dental Society.

According to Dr. Bogats, professor of Removable Prosthodontics and secretary-treasurer of the chapter, students are chosen because of their scholarship, positive character traits and potential abilities for future professional growth and leadership.

Students must rank in the upper 20 percent of their class and only 12 percent can be elected.

"This is usually eight or nine students who are the cream of the crop," Dr. Bogats said.

The new members are Larry Cacchilti of Yakima, Wash.; Bart Christiansen of Meeteetse, Wyo.; Phillip Harwood of North Ridge, Calif.; Rodney Hillam of Idaho Falls, Idaho; Virginia Hughson-Otte of Canoga Park, Calif.; Joseph Novak of Broomfield, Colo.; Eric Tidwell of Nephi, Utah; and Lyle Yanagihara of Wahiawa, Hawaii.

New location for Student Health but same services

By Cheryll Galvin
Reporter

AIDS, eating disorders and alcoholism are just a few of the health-related issues covered in health education programs offered by Student Health Services.

In addition to offering a wide range of health education programs and an abundance of materials, student health can also perform routine laboratory tests, such as blood count and throat culture, allergy injections, minor surgery and annual physicals.

The department seeks to provide preventive health service and early treatment of illness and injury to reduce the need for more comprehensive treatment and lost class time at a later date.

Last January, the department relocated to its present location at 2530 Cuming Street in the Kellom Heights Shopping Center. Its previous office space in the St. Joseph Health Profession Center was taken by the cardiology department, necessitating the move.

"There are some good aspects to our new location as well as some trade-offs," director Virginia Moore said. "We're more visible to the students and there is parking. The shuttle service comes here also. There have been some concerns from the faculty and staff but no complaints from the students."

The seven department members include a physician, a physician's assistant, several nurse-practitioners, as well as medical assistants and secretaries. An alcohol counselor is also on staff. After-hours care is provided by an on-call health aide through Public Safety and any emergencies are provided by St. Joseph Hospital.

With the advent of the fall and winter seasons, Moore said students should be aware of some health problems that accompany the changing temperatures.

"We see a lot of mononucleosis because students are living in a communal setting and viruses spread easily," Moore said. "Colds are on the increase and students should try to build up their immune systems, get plenty of rest and exercise, and maintain good eating habits."

Moore said stress is a health problem that the group sees in its patients on an everyday basis.

"Students should try to reduce their stress levels by putting themselves in positive situations and developing healthy habits," she said. "Situations become overly stressful when you become overcommitted."

Full-time students can utilize the department's offerings by calling 280-2735 for an appointment between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. On Saturday, students can call between 9 and 11:30 a.m.

Dr. Donald Yoder speaking at the College Hour Lecture Series.

Yoder analyzes political speeches

"There is a direct correlation in the image (Mario) Cuomo suggested four years ago with (Jesse Jackson's image of) the shining city on the hill," Dr. Donald Yoder, said during his speech, "Analyzing Political Speeches: Strategies of Identification and Division." The speech was presented as part of the College Hour Lecture Series.

Yoder said that in Cuomo's 1984 Keynote address to the Democratic National Convention and in Jackson's 1988 address both used the image of destitute people going beyond the expected and succeeding. He said this illustrates Burke's theory of Identification and Differentiation which says if people try to identify with one group they will end up dividing themselves from another.

The image both Cuomo and Jackson used can cause problems because it separates people and speaks to only one group.

"A lot of people can identify but many say, 'I'm not like that. What can you do for me?'"

Possibly in an attempt to appeal to a broader group, Yoder said that Michael Dukakis and other Democrats have used a new image that appeals to the working class.

"They have abandoned appeals to minorities to go more towards the middle class," he said.

George Bush and the Republicans, on the other hand, Yoder said, use an image of people who are already successful and do not have to move up. Republicans say we are on the hill already and just need to keep it working.

Yoder said that watching the candidates and looking at their images and who they are appealing to will show a disparity among Republicans, Democrats and Jesse Jackson.

APA announces contest

The American Poetry Association is offering a trip for two to Hawaii as its new grand prize in the poetry contest.

In addition to the trip, the first prize winner also receives $1,000. In all, $11,000 worth of prizes will be given to 152 winners.

The contest is open to poets of all ages, but Robert Nelson, publisher for the association, said "students have been winners in all our contests." He said he urges students to enter the contest now because they may be too busy with exams later.

Poets may send up to five poems, no more than 20 lines each, with their name and address on each page to American Poetry Association, Dept. CU-74, 250 Potrero St., P.O. Box 1803, Santa Cruz, Calif., 95061.

Each poem will be judged on originality and sincerity. All poems in the contest will also be considered for publication.

The American Poetry Association has sponsored 27 such contests in the past six years and has awarded $101,000 to 27 winning poets.

Poems must be postmarked by Dec. 31 to be eligible to win. Prizes will be awarded by Feb. 28, 1989.

NCAA ruling not fit for a dog

By Kevin Sarver
Creightonian
Editor

You never think it can happen to you.

When the NCAA announced that the Creighton athletic program would be placed in a "restricted category" for not having enough participants in enough swimming and golf events, I took it like an aspirin the size of a bowling ball.

What the almighty, strong-armed NCAA is telling the athletic program is simple: you didn't have enough in 1987-88, so all of the programs can't compete in post-season NCAA tournaments in 1988-89.

"But wait a minute," the small curly-haired poodle with a bow in its hair said. "We are making a good faith effort to resurrect the situation. Those programs now have scholarships like other programs at Creighton do. We should have no problems whatsoever in the future."

"That's not good enough," the rough, construction worker-like built dog catcher said. "That's the rules and the probationary year is history. So in you go with all of the mutts, German shepherds and Great Danes of college athletics."

That's right, Creighton athletics is in the news again. The program didn't have enough golfers and swimmers. Does this mean our gun-slinging athletic department will be forced to join the Southwest Conference, where we'd fit in nicely with the true bandits of college athletics?

"But wait a minute," the poodle replied again. "Your sending me into the same cage with dogs who give recruits cars, money, furs and houses for their parents if they sign on the dotted line?"

"Don't back talk to the dog catcher," another innocent cocker spaniel says to the poodle. "Don't make any waves or he'll have you shot first."

"That's right," the dog catcher grunts.

"But what if people get the wrong idea about why we were placed in that restricted category?" the poodle says to the cocker spaniel. "What if people around the country don't get a chance to hear the whole story and just take it for granted that the small dogs in the world, like you and me, can be just as rotten as the big dogs when actually, what we did, was send our pups to the classrooms instead of the swimming pool?"

"I know what you mean," the cocker spaniel replied. "Is it fair? No. Is it the rule? Yes."

Four years ago, if this had happened, and it could have, it wouldn't have hurt the program as bad. Only one team, the Lady Jay softball team, had a real shot of getting to NCAA post-season play anyway.

Basketball coach Tony Barone still had players on the team named Goldberg and Johansen. Baseball coach Jim Hendry was telling everyone that he would, and has, bring the program to the top of the conference instead of getting its faced wiped on by other people's feet.

Lady Jay basketball coach Bruce Rasmussen had Connie Yori, but the program wasn't considered a threat on a national basis.

But now, things are different. Rasmussen's team is probably in a rebuilding year, but people have said that for the nine years he's been here. He's surprised people before and it could happen again.

Hendry, well, he lost a ton of experience but his case with the NCAA selection committee for last year's injustice is well documented. He has already proved his team could be there.

Barone is in a make or break year for his program. Fortunately, his squad is probably the most talented outside of Wichita State, who has a ton of experience coming back this season.

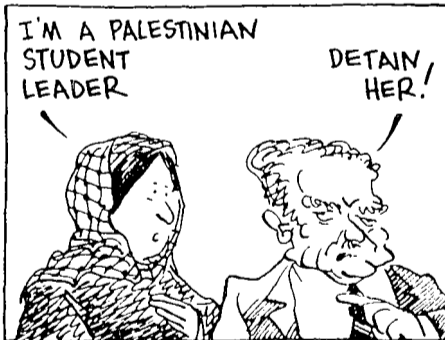

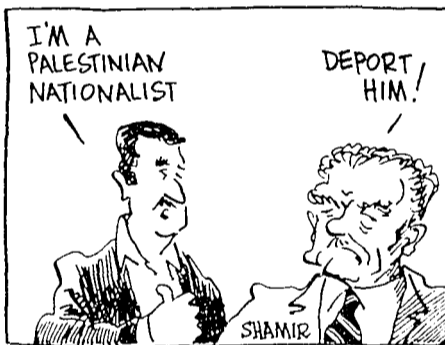

The softball program has been in the Top 20 at the end of every season for the past, well it seems like, 40 years.

If Creighton doesn't win the appeal case they plan to make in January, all of those teams will be snuffed for a ridiculous reason. If that happens, I have the feeling the programs will have to start over from scratch, in terms of getting the respect and notoriety they were well on their way of achieving.

So what happens in a couple of years when a golfer wants to bypass a meet so he can study for a test? Does the coach beat him with a sand wedge until he gets back in the van? Or does he hope the dog catcher has changed his ways over the years and helps the student-athlete?

Bark twice if you believe the last one.

The dog catcher's wagon is silent. Every dog knows the wrath of the NCAA.

The Reagan Democrat By Art Buchwald

Almost everyone is predicting a very close presidential election result, maybe 48 percent for Bush and 48 percent for Dukakis, with the remaining Reagan Democrats deciding the outcome.

With this in mind, both sides are trying to win over the undecided voters.

Freddy Dumstart, who is listed in both the Dukakis and Bush computers as one of the key "don't know" voters, is therefore receiving tremendous attention from each camp.

Three of Dukakis' people called on Dumstart the other day.

"What do you want with me?" Freddy asked.

"We are appealing to all the Reagan Democrats to come home," one of the Dukakis men said. "We wish you to know how much we love you and what you personally mean to the governor and his dear wife, Kitty."

"That's nice to hear, but I still haven't made up my mind about whom I'm going to vote for," Dumstart said.

"Can the governor take you to dinner at an extremely good ethnic restaurant and explain his position on agricultural price supports?"

"I have already eaten at a good ethnic restaurant with the Bush people and am not really interested in that particular issue."

"Then maybe you would like to attend a night football game in Texas with Lloyd Bentsen while he tells you what a squire Sen. Quayle really is. Fred, we want you on our team now."

"You're barking up the wrong tree, gentlemen. I am not going to make up my mind this early in the game."

"Why not?"

"Because as soon as I announce how I intend to vote, no one will take me to dinner anymore. Look at the millions of voters already lined up for Dukakis. You know that you have them in your pocket, so you don't even care if they exist or not. All your time and energy is devoted to people like me who are still on the fence."

"Would you consider a tour of Boston Harbor in the governor's pollution-free launch. Surely that would be a wonderful way for you and your family to get to know him."

"I'm not giving in. Many years back I voted the straight Democratic ticket and LBJ wouldn't even accept my calls. Then eight years ago I announced that I was an Independent and rather than vote along party lines, I would choose the best man for the job. That decision changed my life. The pollsters called me the most sought-after person in the presidential elections."

One of Dukakis' people said, "I think you exaggerate your own importance. We couldn't care less if you voted for our candidate or not. How would you like to be Secretary of the Treasury?"

Freddy answered, "The Bush people offered me the head of the CIA."

"They have no intention of delivering on that, Mr. Dumstart. We're not just asking you to give us your vote without proof that you would be backing the right man. Gov. Dukakis is prepared to show you a slide presentation on the miracles he has performed for the state of Massachusetts."

"I'd rather hear the dirt he has on Bush. George was over at the house last night and you can't believe what he told me about Dukakis' behavior when the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor on April Fool's Day. I'm one of those voters who always prefers the candidate who takes the low road."

"Look, it's your vote and you can do anything you want with it."

"Then why are you here?"

"To prevent you from making a fool of yourself. The country needs leadership as it has never needed it before. When you pull that lever all America will face either four years of pain or four years of low interest rates from sea to shining sea."

"I'll give you my answer on Election Day."

"It may be too late. We're holding a seat on the Supreme Court for you, but if you don't decide right away we'll have to give it to another fence-sitter from Hoboken, N.J."

SBG requests a freeze on remaining basketball seats

Because of the recent change in the seating arrangement for Bluejay basketball games, the Student Board of Governors has passed a resolution requesting, "a freeze on selling of the remaining side court basketball seats."

The resolution calls for the remaining side court seats to not be sold and instead returned to the students. The bill further called for a mid-season evaluation of the arrangement.

Bob Burgarino, president said the Board felt it was necessary to "make a stand so that future issues don't side step SBG."

Burgarino said he thinks the decision to move student seats did not "accurately represent student opinion or the opinions of the Board representatives and that students felt neglected in the decision making process.

"The resolution is a statement of opinion," Burgarino said. "A copy will be sent to Dr. Gerraughty (Vice President for Administration) who will review it, solicit others input and opinions and make a decision as to whether he feels it is a viable solution."

At mid-season it would be reviewed, Burgarino said.

"If it is ok then, great, if not, we would like some say in changing it back," he said.

The Board has also formed a temporary committee on parking.

"The committee has two jobs," Burgarino said. "The first is to find out who decides what is student parking, what is faculty. The second is to come up with some possible solutions to the problem as a whole."

Community service needs students

Sr. Muriel Cameron, director of Creighton's Community Service Program, says "the more the better" when it comes to students who want to get involved.

The program offers help to many different agencies in Omaha as well as arranging spring break service trips to 14 different locations in the United States.

The jobs for volunteers range from babysitting at the shelter for domestic violence to visiting with the elderly residents at Burt Towers or the O.E.A. Manor. The program also works with handicapped children at the Madonna School and also with the Special Olympics. Another frequent job is preparing and serving meals at Francis House or Anthony House.

The participants in the programs are all Creighton students as are the directors of the programs. Paul Dedinsky, Carmen Angel, Kevin Stewart, Sandra Young and Lisa Zimmerman serve as directors under the supervision of Sr. Cameron.

Community Services is still looking for anyone interested to join in and help. The amount of hours and specific times as well as the particular programs which students might want to work are very flexible. The numbers to call for anyone interested are 280-2754 or 280-2779.

ROTC offers students college courses with army training

Under the Army reserves officers' training corps programs, a student can go to his or her class and know what they're getting paid to learn.

The R.O.T.C. is a program that combines regular college courses with army training to produce people with the ability to become officers. Students can receive this training in two different ways.

The Army offers a traditional four-year program that combines R.O.T.C. courses and normal college work. It is divided into the basic course and the advanced course.

In the basic course, students are instructed in customs, military history, national defense and leadership development. Those students that exhibit potential to become officers, and who have met the necessary physical and academic standards, are eligible to enter the advanced course.

The advanced course continues the student's training with courses in management, tactics, and ethics. The cadets then attend an advanced camp which allows them to practice and apply the concepts which they have learned in the classroom.

There is also a two-year course designed for students who did not take R.O.T.C. during their first two years of school. To enter a two-year program, students must attend a six-week basic camp which teaches them fundamental techniques.

After successfully completing the camp, a student may be eligible for the advanced course.

The Army also offers several scholarships to the most outstanding student applicants. Each of these scholarships cover the cost of tuition and all textbook and student fees. The award also allows the student a $1,000 allowance per year.

For more information on the R.O.T.C. and its programs, contact the military science department at 280-2828.

Free lecture series starts Oct. 3; receives grant from foundation

Creighton's Honors Programs has received a grant from the GTE Foundation of Stamford, Conn., to help fund a major series of free public lectures.

Noted scholars will examine the impact of advances in genetics, organ transplantation and life support systems on ethics, values and American law.

The $3,800 grant comes to the program as part of the GTE Foundation's 1988-89 Lectureship Program Competition. Approximately 325 proposals were submitted and only 72 were selected for funding, according to Martha D. Kramer, manager of contribution programs for the foundation.

The lecture series, scheduled for the first four Mondays in October, is titled, "Technology, Values, and the Edges of Life."

The first lecture will be held Monday, Oct. 3 in the Student Center Ballroom at 7:30 pm. The speaker will be William J. Kimberling, Ph.D., director for the center of hereditary communication disorders at the Boys Town National Institute.

Kimberling's topic is "Genetics, Ethics and the Law." He graduated from Indiana University and joined the Creighton Medical School and Boys Town National Institute in 1980. He is a nationally-known authority in the field of genetic disorders.

A major purpose of the GTE Foundation Lectureship Program is to promote interaction between universities and their local communities in the discussion of issues related to science, technology, and human values.

Some finished and unfinished construction business

By Jim Haug
News Editor

From the scaffolds of the Ignatius House that overlook the campus to upper Brandeis where diners rub shoulders with construction workers, it is obvious that Creighton has a lot of unfinished business.

"A number of projects are behind schedule primarily because of the strike," said Dr. Robert Gerraughty, vice-president for administration, referring to the the Kiewit Construction Company's strike.

Unforeseen problems such as the strike and floods have slowed up construction in Brandeis and Hitchcock and the Athletic Fields, Gerraughty explained.

Hitchcock's installation of an elevator and remodeling should be done in two or three weeks, according to Bro. Frank Jelinek, S.J., Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds and Associate Vice President for Administration.

The construction in Brandeis should be completed in five weeks, he said.

Despite the circumstances, Gerraughty said, the construction "has gone fairly well" over all. The Ignatius House, he added, seems "to be progressing quite well." Brother Jelinek, S.J., said its completion date is December 20.

"The only project over budget, to my knowledge, is the Athletic Fields, which is slightly over budget due to the damage caused by flooding," Gerraughty said, which should be completed in two weeks according to Jelinek.

New projects are still in the formative stage, said Gerraughty, and it's too early to discuss them. "However one such project is to provide a new access from 23rd to 24th Street through the large parking lot," he added.

To alleviate parking, Gerraughty said, "We are adding a lot at 24th & California and trying to expand others where possible."

Entering his ninth year as Lady Jay coach

Rasmussen's program going well

By Kevin Sarver
Creightonian Editor

Ten years ago, Bruce Rasmussen was coaching girl's basketball at Bettendorf High School in Iowa. Today, he is one of the best women's basketball coaches on the college level.

Rasmussen has a career record of 130-98 as Lady Jay mentor. He has had three 20-win seasons and a string of six consecutive winning seasons going into this year's campaign. But, Rasmussen said, it didn't start out so well.

"When I came here, I thought I was looking at a couple of years and then either going back to the high school level or moving on," Rasmussen said. "I think my perception of Creighton then was of a stepping stone, not a place where people necessarily stayed at."

In his first two years, Creighton offered no athletic scholarships to women. He said the team was awful the first two years, but the team tried just as hard as the team does now.

"It wasn't necessarily the players' fault, it took me a couple of years to adjust to what style of play was involved and how to deal with college women basketball players.

"They did everything we asked but they just weren't Division I athletes and they were up against Division I athletes who were on scholarship."

Since then, players like Connie Yori, Tanya Warren and Pam Gradoville have made Lady Jay basketball more successful. Two years ago, the team went 23-7 and finished third in the National Invitational Tournament.

Rasmussen said much of the credit goes to the players and not to the coach.

"(We've gotten better because of) players and increased knowledge of college basketball," Rasmussen said. "Most of the time, the success the team has is in spite of the coach, not because of the coach. We have been more successful the last six years because of better players, I'm not sure I've done a better job."

With success comes opportunity, and Rasmussen has had offers to leave. Rasmussen said he has turned them down because of the real strong tie he has developed with Creighton.

"I really believe in the academics of the school and the atmosphere," he said. "We have a real quality product here with those two aspects and it is hard to find at other places."

Rasmussen

"A job is a quality job when you are working and dealing with quality people, and I feel that is the case here. I don't need the ego trip of saying that I'm at a Top 10 girl's basketball school in the nation."

"I think we can compete on a national basis. With the academics and quality people here, I think it's easy to sell this product."

Rasmussen said the toughest part of his job is being away from home. He and his wife Jill have two children, Megan, 3, and David, 1.

"Right now Lady Jay basketball is going to take place a lot in the evening. I don't see my family sometimes for major portions of the year. Other than that, I don't really mind any part of it."

This year, all of his players, except two, are freshmen and sophomores.

"This is definitely the year with the most question marks since I came," Rasmussen said. "I see a little bit more hunger this year. We have question marks at every position. I don't know if we have any anchor whatsoever. That's the first time in six years we haven't had one."

Bluejay Notebook

*Bluejay basketball coach Tony Barone is hitting the recruiting trail hard this week. Barone spent the early part of the week in Indianapolis and then left for Milwaukee, Wisc. Inside sources say Barone has his eye on a 6'9" power forward who has gone virtually unnoticed in the recruit ratings.

*The Bluejay baseball team is off to a 4-0 start in the fall season. Last weekend, the team got great pitching from the whole staff and defeated Waldorf Junior College, Allan County and Iowa Western. Freshmen infielders Dax Jones and Bobby Langer played exceptionally well, as did freshman pitcher/first baseman Scott Stahoviak.

Lady Jay Notebook

*The Lady Jay softball team will be in Macomb, Ill., this weekend to play in the National Invitational Championship. The Coors sponsored event invites only the Top 20 teams from last year to compete.

*The softball team has seven returning players and seven new players on the 1988-89 roster.

*The Lady Jays finished last season 38-18 overall, 14th ranked in the country. After defeating Iowa State and Nebraska in the NCAA regionals, the Lady Jays fell twice to the Lady Huskers and missed out on the College World Series.

Lady Jays place third at Bethel

The Lady Jay tennis team placed third out of an eight-team field at the Bethel College Invitational in Newton, Kansas last weekend.

The tournament is the only match scheduled for either the Lady Jay or Bluejay tennis teams for the fall semester.

Valerie Graves, a freshman, did the best for the team, making it to the finals only to be defeated by Bethel's own Laurie Cusick.

Seniors Denise Zacher and Donna Glow, freshmen Janelle Schmidt and Connie Schmitt and sophomore Judy Richmeier advanced to the semi-finals before being defeated. Senior Lisa Lambert couldn't make the trip due to the MCAT examination.

"I was kind of surprised how well the team did, considering the fact that we haven't practiced at all," assistant tennis coach Peg Connor said. "We have only three people back from last year, but the new players picked up the slack very well."

Connor said the squad is waiting for an invitation to the Rolex Regional Championships in Wichita, Kansas as the only other possible fall tournament action.

Until then, Connor said, the Bluejays and Lady Jays will continue practicing to get ready for a full slate of competition in the spring.

Sophomore Bluejay guard Duan Cole suffered a thumb fracture in a pick-up game early last week and will be sidelined for four to six weeks, according to Bluejay coach Tony Barone.

Cole, who started three games last season, averaged 3.7 points per game while dishing out 57 assists in his first season. He was named to both the AP and UPI All-State teams as a senior at Harding High School in Ft. Wayne, Indiana.

Cole's thumb is in a soft cast, but he will be able to participate in pre-season conditioning and is expected to begin practice with the team on Oct. 15.

Cole is continuing to participate in the pick-up games even with the soft cast. He looks a little awkward, but he is still shooting the ball real well.

Top 10 shakeup: Top two fall

The top intramural softball teams are finding out how much parity is involved in this year's teams.

The pre-season number one and number two teams, Dens in Dente and Phi Psi I, have already been defeated. The new number one team, the SAE I's, are 3-0 but lost some key players to graduation and could be considered just another average team.

The Phi Psi I's, defending all-university champs, lost a ton of key players who incidentally make up the Dens in Dente squad.

Just a reminder that rainout games are being played today.

Lady Jay schedule released

The athletic department has announced the 1988-89 Lady Jay basketball schedule.

The schedule will feature 17 away games and 12 home contests, played at either the Civic Auditorium or the Creighton Gym. Three home contests will be part of doubleheaders with the Bluejays at the Civic.

The Lady Jays will begin action on the road November 27 in Ames, IA against Iowa State. The Lady Jays will then return home on November 30 to face cross-town rival University of Nebraska-Omaha in the Civic Auditorium.

Other non-conference opponents include the 1988 NIT champions DePaul University. The Lady Jays defeated the Lady Blue Demons last season 84-71. Also, the team will play Wisconsin-Green Bay, Bradley, Missouri, Kansas State, Kansas, Wichita State and Oklahoma State.

The High Country Athletic Conference season begins January 28 at home against New Mexico State.

Quote of the Week

"We've got a team full of runts."

-Lady Jay coach Bruce Rasmussen on having only two players over 5'11"

Jaybacker dollars invaluable

"We couldn't operate without them," assistant athletic director Carol Ketcham said. "Their dollars are very valuable to the operation of the athletic department."

Ketcham is describing the Jaybackers, a booster group of friends and alumni who support athletics through donations. The group was formed in 1966 and initially supported the men's basketball team. Now, the Jaybackers can earmark their donation for any specific sport.

Ketcham said the money is used for the athletic scholarship fund and for the overall operating costs of the expanding athletic department.

Last year, the Jaybackers had 758 members and a majority of them were from the Omaha metropolitan area. Currently, over 300 Jaybackers have renewed their membership for this year.

Ketcham said membership drives, which began four years ago, have been extremely successful in bringing in new Jaybackers and contribution records have been broken from the year before on each occasion.

A three-week long membership drive will begin Oct. 10. During the drives, a group of ten teams, made up of five or six members, go around the community selling memberships and season tickets. Ketcham said this one-on-one personal contact has contributed steadily

Bluejays vs. Nebraska in rugby

The rugby team will take an 0-2 record into today's contest against the University of Nebraska rugby club at N.P. Dodge Park.

"It's going to be a real test for us," team director Colin Daly said. "We'd really like to see a good crowd out there to get us pumped up."

Daly said Nebraska has a strong team and he expects a rough game. Daly said a big crowd would give the team added confidence.

Last Sunday, the club fell to Iowa State in Ames, Iowa 18-12 in a hard-hitting game that left both teams banged up. Daly himself required stitches in his forehead after a collision with teammate Collin Maloney.

Daly said the team played well and got exceptional performances from Pat Dougherty and Mike Kennedy. Pat "Killer" Kilcullin and Greg Quille scored the two Creighton tries. An apparent game-tying score for the Creighton squad in the second quarter was called back on an illegal forward pass.

Daly said he is pleased with the team's progress.

"The team played well as a unit and we're getting better with each game," he said.

Bluejay golf team off to Kearney State

The Bluejay golf team, coming off an eighth place finish out of nine teams last weekend at Kearney State, travel to Pella, Iowa to take part in the Central College Invitational this weekend.

The Lady Jays have competed in four meets and two dual matches so far. Their next contest is next weekend in Wichita, Kan., for the Wichita State Shocker Fall Classic.

"We've had good interest from 20-25 men," coach Mike Marcil said. "We couldn't have them all make our first tournament, but they're getting to the range and hitting the ball as often as possible."

Marcil said the squad could be better if all of the outstanding golfers could play at the same time in tournaments. Marcil said exams and studying limit which golfers can play on certain weekends. He said there hasn't been any problem getting enough golfers to participate in the meets, as the NCAA Manual states.

At Kearney, freshmen Mike Stolarskyj (79, 84), Bart Squires (83, 82), and Kevin Heupel (96, 90) led the way for the Bluejays. Lone senior Joe Beecher shot a 91 and a 94, and sophomore Tom Turner a 96 and 108.

Fort Hays State won the event with a two-day score of 623. The Bluejays placed eighth with a 699.

The Lady Jays are led by Holly Sucha and have 11 golfers on the roster. Marcil said the squad never has less than five participates in the meets.

"Both teams have a good mix of senior leadership and freshmen and sophomore talent," Marcil said. "Although we haven't dominated thus far, there is evidence we could have a very good golfing program."

1988-89 Cheerleaders chosen

The 1988-89 cheerleading squad for Bluejay basketball has been chosen.

The two captains, senior Mark Stavros and sophomore Amie Deerberg, remain on the squad automatically because they were elected captains by last year's cheerleaders.

Other returning squad members include juniors Glenn Pekar, Charles Moriarty and Denise Gorham and sophomores Darin Brzakala and Christy Nicholson.

New squad members are sophomores Trish Phelan and Arnel Cruz and freshman Molly Finn.

Ed Hubbs, Sports and Activities Coordinator and sponsor for the cheerleaders, is pleased with the results of the tryouts.

"I know most of them because a lot are returning from last year," he said. "Personally, I like the group. They're good people."

Three workshops were held in the weeks before the tryouts to help participants prepare.

During the tryouts, participants were rated on such categories as voice, arm movement, height, form, smiles, difficulty and enthusiasm.

The judges were composed of Roger Earle, a former Bluejay cheerleader and several UNO cheerleaders.

Cross country off to a slow start

The cross country teams are in Lincoln for the Nebraska Wesleyan Invitational this weekend after finishing in last place last weekend at the Doane Invitational.

"I think this is the week where we'll show improvement in the times because we've been working hard in the last few weeks," coach Ed Hubbs said.

The Bluejays have been led by freshmen Greg Schmidt and Dan Kern. The Lady Jays premiere runner is also a Lady Jay basketball player, freshman Kathy Halligan.

'It's Raining' starts Oct. 5

By Sandy Bolam Drummond

If you have passed by the Performing Arts Center lately and thought the marquis looked like it hadn't been changed since last spring, you are wrong, but you are not crazy.

The performing arts department is preparing to do a revival of last spring's hit "It's Raining In My House" from Oct. 5-9.

According to Dr. Suzanne Dieckman, the department decided to perform the revival again because of the great responses they received from audiences last spring.

"Since it is the American premiere of this script, we are going to enter it in the American College Theatre Festival," Dieckman said.

Dieckman said she became interested in the play while she was on sabbatical in Brussels, teaching at the National Theatre Institute. While visiting a professional theatre there, Dieckman said they were rehearsing "It's Raining" under the direction of Pierre LaRoche, the original director.

"I was strongly influenced by his work because he was the original director, the one who brought this play to life," Dieckman said. "We have a connection with the theatre in Brussels. I feel it is part of an international exchange program.

"This is the first time this play has been presented here. We have the playwright, Paul Williams, and the composer of the original score coming to Omaha to work with us."

The only changes this year are the addition of a new cast member, Kevin Lawler, who will replace Judson Jones in the role of Herman. Jones is now a first-year medical student.
