CREIGHTON UNIVERSITY is introducing its new Master of Arts in Liberal Studies (MALS) this spring semester. The first seminar offered will be "Understanding the World," led by Dr. Michael Lawler of the Theology Department (Thursdays 6:30-9 p.m.). MALS differs dramatically from other graduate programs. Seminar courses cut across the boundaries of traditional disciplines to explore topics from various perspectives. MALS courses encourage the development of a learning community of adults whose life experiences contribute to the inquiry. The program is directed at personal enrichment no less than at professional advancement. For more information, call the Graduate School (x2870), or one of the program directors: Dr. Greg Zacharias (x2520), Dr. Ron Simkins (x2504), or Dr. Jeanne Schuler (x2647), or by mals@creighton.edu.

THE UNIVERSITY'S Employee Assistance Program (EAP) provides help to employees and their eligible family members with a variety of personal issues including, but not limited to: marital and family problems, anxiety or depression, substance abuse and parenting issues. The EAP is a totally confidential service available 24 hours per day, seven days per week. For more information regarding the EAP, contact Human Resources at x2709.

EMPLOYEES ARE REMINDED that all contributions to any entity of the University must be recorded and acknowledged by the University's Development Office. Checks should be made payable to Creighton University. This is especially important now that the Internal Revenue Service requires taxpayers to produce receipts issued by the recipient for gifts of $250 or more. Only the Development Office is authorized to issue receipts on behalf of the University. If you need a supply of Gift Transmittal forms or have any questions, please contact Le Sebeck in Development at x2150.

UNIVERSITY POLICIES: President Michael Morrison, S.J., has approved and promulgated a new University Policy: Termination Rights of Non-Tenure-Track Faculty in Grant-Funded Positions (Policy #4.2.4.). If you would like to review this policy in its entirety, the Guide to Policies of Creighton University is located in offices listed on the Organizational Chart of the University and all three libraries.

MIDWEST STUDENT Medical Research Forum (MSMRF) Call for Judges: The MSMRF is being held Saturday, Feb.

MSMRF provides an opportunity for medical and graduate students from around the region to prepare abstracts of their original research and to present that work to faculty and peers. MSMRF depends on faculty from both Creighton and UNMC to review and critique abstracts prior to the Forum. Judges also are needed the day of the Forum for judging oral and poster presentations as well. Every effort will be made to match the subject matter of the abstract with the reviewer's area of interest. Questionnaires have been sent to reviewers from last year. If you have not received one, please contact Lora McCall, School of Medicine, x2187, and she will send or fax you one. If you have any questions, contact McCall.
