Library ground-breaking is scheduled for June 2

When completed, Creighton's new library will look very similar to this photograph of an artist's sketch, according to the Leo A. Daly Co., architects. A representative of the firm said that there are no actual construction blueprints as yet. This sketch was made from preliminary plans.

He said that the finished building will not have a "penthouse" as pictured, that there "might be minor changes," but that otherwise this is how the new library will look.

Civil War origins—

Library survives fires, floods, students and profs in 80 years

By SISTER PASCHALA, O.P.
Staff Reporter

The history of Creighton's library is an exciting mixture of rare books, fires, floods, students and teachers.

Carlyle wrote, "The true university of these days is a collection of books." Creighton University's first collection of books began as a result of the Civil War. The Jesuit Fathers had a college in Bardstown, Ky., which was broken up during the war. Creighton bought the books and transported them to Omaha to start the university's first authentic library.

In 1886 at the Inter-state Exposition held in Omaha, Creighton had the most outstanding display of rare and valuable books.

At that time, the library boasted of 6,000 volumes including some 15th, 16th, and 17th century books. In the collection were curious styles of type, paper, and binding.

There were books in Latin, Greek, Hebrew, Chinese and Indian. Some books were fine specimens of painstaking hand illuminations, spidery etchings, or delicate engravings.

Today Creighton has 109 thousand books. The oldest one is dated 1478 A. D. It is "Notes on the Bible" by De Syra and is bound in thick oak.

Hand illustrated letters

It is one of the first books from the press of the famous Koelkoff of Lubeck but the capital letters are hand illustrated by some forgotten monk.

The library includes 28 volumes by the famous Jesuit philosopher, Suarez. These were published in Lyons between 1600 and 1653.

A later book is "Instructions for Sundays" written in French by St. Francis de Sales in 1732.

The original Creighton library was located in what is now the southeast corner of the reading room. The stacks were added in 1919. The area of the present first floor stacks was used for office

President estimates ready for use by January, 1961

The last step from dream to reality will be taken Tuesday, June 2, when ground is broken for the new million-dollar Creighton University Library.

The ground-breaking date, announced this week by the Very Rev. Carl M. Reinert, S.J., university president, has been eagerly awaited by Creighton faculty, alumni and students since the drive for the new library began October, 1956.

University officials timed the public announcement to coincide with National Library Week.

Father Reinert estimated that the library will be ready for use by students the second semester of the 1960-61 school year.

To be located on California Street between St. John's Church and the Law School, the structure will be of classic simplicity. It will be the focal point of the campus, tied into the surrounding area by a series of terraces.

According to Director of Libraries the Rev. James P. Kramper, S.J., the main entrance to the new library will face west and will be in direct line with the sidewalk that now borders the north entrances to the Law and Dentistry buildings. In the original master plan the library was scheduled to face south with the main entrance on California St.

Built for expansion

The west entrance to the new library will lead into the second, or main level of the building. The third level will be a reading room balcony overlooking the lobby and central check-out desk.

The new building is planned for easy future expansion to double its original book capacity. It will be capable of housing 250,000 volumes and have a seating capacity for 500 students. Planned future expansion will give an ultimate capacity of 500,000 volumes and room for 1,200 students.

The "open stack" system will be used, whereby the student selects his own books.

Total area of the new library will be 45,000 square feet on three levels. The building will be of reinforced concrete and will be air conditioned throughout.

The exterior expresses classic simplicity in alternating panels of marble and precast sun screen. The screen, in addition to adding a dignified texture to the library facade, performs the difficult function of diffusing and filtering light into work and reading areas.

The existing law library will continue to function as a separate facility.

Razing begins

Father Reinert said that razing of either the old auditorium or the temporary huts east of the law building will begin June 2.

Cash pledges for construction of the building came from faculty, alumni, many parents of students, and friends of the university.

Leo A. Daly Co., architects, are in charge of designing the building. No definite date has yet been set for construction bids.

Declare platforms—

6 throw hats in ring for board positions

By JOAN GRANEY

Staff reporter

Four Arts and two Business Administration sophomores have begun campaigning for offices on the Student Board of Governors.

They are LeRoy Foreman, Jim Brady, Pat Ryan, Jim Phelan from Arts, and Bus Ad students Mike Daeges and Tom Dowd.

Although primary elections will be held in all schools Monday, April 20, other schools reported no office-seekers were campaigning up to Wednesday this week.

Foreman, who is treasurer of the Men's Arts Sodality, is also active in the Jaytalkers. He is employed part time at Securities Acceptance Corp.

Foreman stated his platform as follows:

"If elected, I do not intend to be a 'yes man' for the administration, nor do I intend to lead the student body in open rebellion against any and all authority.

"I will strive to the best of my ability to preserve the legitimate interests of the students, and at the same time, I will respect the authority of the administration in those areas where properly has jurisdiction.

"In this manner I would hope to quell the growing attitudes of either rebellion or apathetic submission among the students and bring about a spirit of mutual interest and cooperation between the students and the administration."

Represent student interests

Brady, who is vice president of Jaytalkers, is also a member of the rifle team.

Commenting on his platform, Brady said:

"I will do my best to represent the students of Creighton and to further their interests in every way possible.

"I will accept all suggestions to improve student standing on this campus.

"I will lend assistance to all students who wish to initiate action on any student issue:

1. By explaining their rights to them.
2. By presenting their ideas to the board for action.
3. By directing their efforts towards the most profitable channels of procedure.

"I will cooperate with the administration of Creighton insofar as it does not violate the rights of the students.

"I will accept all the duties of this office with the realization that it is an office recognized by Nebraska state law, and being so recognized, is not just another student office."

The third campaigner, Pat Ryan, is a veteran, member of Iota Kappa Epsilon, and active in Xavier Forum.

He is employed as a proctor in Wareham Hall.

Ryan had this to say about his platform:

"From my inherent love for government on all levels, I will try to represent the Arts college in a conscientious, honest and fair manner.

"I can say unequivocally that my intention for seeking membership on the Student Board is genuine.

"As for my character, I can sincerely say that I always try to maintain integrity and fairness in dealing with people.

"The recent meeting of the members of the Corporation was certainly a sad performance, for the lack of attendance inhibited any worthy progress.

"Consequently, in order to improve the participation of all students in this important meeting, I propose the following:

1. An amendment to Article X, section 2, thereby changing the number of members needed to constitute a quorum from fifty voting members to 85.
2. That a flexible date, scheduled for the month of April at this discretion of the Student Board, not conflicting with either quarter examinations or Easter vacation be included in this article.
3. That a proposal be included in this article stipulating that each year the chairman of the Corporation meeting notify by letter each dormitory director, club and organizations urging them to participate in the meeting.

Attendance at board meetings

"In addition to the third proposal explained above, I will try to encourage greater participation by students concerning regular board meetings in order to stimulate greater interest.

"My secondary objective is to give the students who board on campus better representation concerning the food served by Nationwide Food Service.

"It is extremely difficult for new students in the dorms to become acquainted with their Omaha associates, let alone a board member.

"Last semester, on my own, I contacted every reliable source, from the president down, in order to improve what I felt was a second rate job. I feel that my efforts were not in vain.

"I, therefore, if elected, will try to acquaint myself with the dorm students and present worthy complaints to the Student Board.

"With the anticipated formidable basketball schedule for next

Coeds get gym teacher

The statement appearing in last week's issue of the Creightonian that the co-eds' gym class is taught by the boys' coach is not true.

The co-eds have had their own gym teacher since February. She is the former director of all physical education programs in Omaha public schools, according to Mrs. Maurine Hamilton, Dean of Women, and The Rev. Virgil Roach, S.J., Dean of the Arts College. However, the new instructor does not want publicity and that is why no announcement was made, according to Mrs. Maureen Hamilton, dean of women.

season, I will personally endeavor to instill the necessity of greater school spirit.

"My attention with the board's backing, will be directed toward the fraternities and sororities by promoting various competitive events which would accompany the big games.

"This act would certainly increase school spirit." Interested in promoting intermural basketball at Creighton, Jim Phelan is also a member of Iota Kappa Epsilon, Pasteur Club and sodality.

Besides his regular school activities, Phelan works as an orderly at St. Joseph's Hospital.

He stated that as yet he had not formulated his platform.

Running in Bus Ad

Business Administration sophomore Tom Dowd, a member of the Communications Arts Club, Delta Sigma Pi, the ROTC drill team, and past president of the freshman class, said that he would have the "student's interests at heart."

Bus Ad sophomore and Delta Sigma Pi member Mike Daeges, running on the same slate with Dowd, said both are for improving student voice in student affairs.

Primary elections for Student Board of Governors will be held on Monday, April 20, in all schools and colleges in the university.

Seven clubs enter Creighton Capers

Seven organizations have entered acts in the Creighton Capers, Alpha Psi Omega president John Fogarty, Arts 4th year, said this week.

They are Theta Phi Alpha, Theta Upsilon, Alpha Sigma Alpha, Delta Sigma Pi, Wareham Hall, Mary Hall and the student National Association.

Entries from three other clubs are still pending, Fogarty said.

The Capers will be presented May 8 at 8:15 p. m. in the Auditorium.

Originally scheduled for March 13, the date was extended to allow more organizations to participate.

Harry Langdon, former director of chorus and dramatics at Creighton, and Mrs. Dudley Sauve will judge the acts.

Fogarty said that the general rehearsal will be held in the basement of St. John's Church, April 19 at 7 p. m.

Mental health is topic for psychology seminar

Mental health in the United States will be discussed by Robert Fulton, Arts 3rd year, at the next meeting of the Creighton University Psychology Seminar.

The meeting will be in the Administration Building Sunday, April 19, beginning at 7:30 p. m.

Comp scheduled

The comprehensive examinations for the College of Business Administration will be held on Tuesday, April 21, from 8 a. m. to noon.

The exams for the College of Arts Sciences will be on Thursday, April 23.

Sodality has 4,000 books

"Books, books, books." So goes the plea from the Sodality Union for their Book Fair to be held on April 20, 21, 22 in the Rose Room on the first floor of the Fontenelle Hotel.

The Fair will be open from noon until 9 p. m. on each of the three days.

The selection of an estimated 4,000 books will include novels, textbooks, classics, detective stories, and paperbacks of every kind. As compared with other years, there are fewer textbooks contributed. This is attributed to the fact that students can now resell their books to the Book Store.

Books sold for 25c to 50c

Books will be sold for a nominal price. The majority will be priced from 25c to 50c. For those interested in "who-done-its", hard-cover detective stories will be sold at the flat rate of a quarter apiece.

Phonograph records will also be featured this year. New LP's will be sold for half price. There are numerous, 78's that will be priced at a penny apiece.

For the convenience of the customers, bags will be furnished to facilitate carrying the books.

Project of Sodality

The Book Fair is a project of the Sodality Union, in which Sodality members from St. Joseph's Hospital, St. Catherine's Hospital, St. Mary's College, Duchesne College, Mercy Hospital, and every college of Creighton University cooperate.

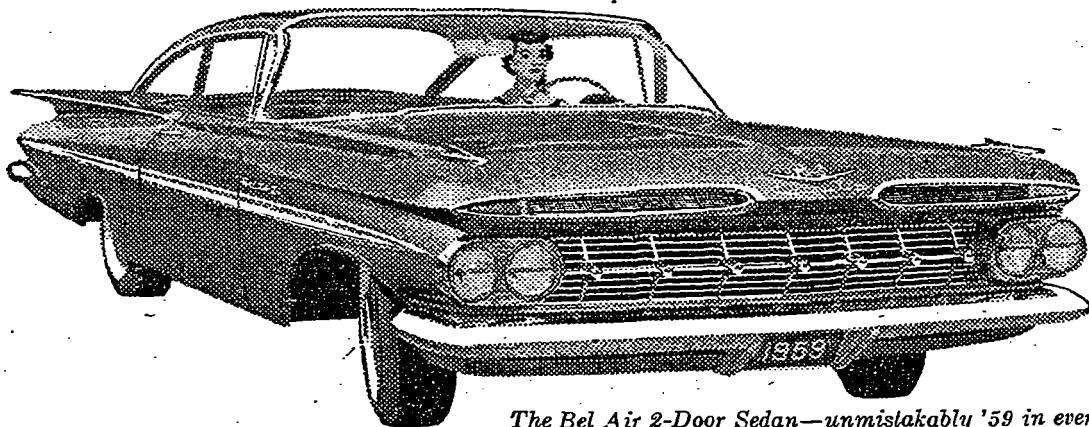

Profits from the Fair will be given to the Good Shepherd Sisters. These nuns operate a home for underprivileged girls.

Anyone that has any books or records that they wish to donate are asked to either leave them in Parlor A in the Administration Building or to call the switchboard. The operator will take the name and address and someone from the Business Administration Sodality will pick the books up.

space and reading room. In 1931 some high school rooms were converted into the present reading room.

The Rev. William Kinsella, S.J., was the first custodian of the books. He was followed by Francis Fitzgerald.

The first woman librarian was Miss Alberta Brown. She was succeeded by Mrs. Lucille Reynolds.

Fire and flood

In 1928 Miss Mary Hunt began her career as Creighton librarian. She has seen the library function in spite of limited stack space and cramped reading quarters; in spite of fire and flood.

The first library fire was in 1943. It was the last day of exams in May.

The ceiling of the present reading room was tin in those days. Miss Hunt said a student came to her with a piece of tin in his hand and said "This piece of tin just fell on me and it's hot."

Miss Hunt said she called the fire department. There were flames licking out of the ceiling where defective wiring had started a fire.

Miss Hunt recalled that the fire department was there in three minutes but by that time the student veterans had removed all the reference books.

No books were damaged but they were transferred to the church basement until the library was repaired.

Fire mixed with business

In the midst of the moving operations, a diligent student insisted on returning a book and checking out a reference. Miss Hunt filed the outgoing card in her left apron pocket and the incoming card in her right pocket. Business as usual!

Floods were not infrequent. The chemistry department used to be located above the library. Sometimes the sinks overflowed and water dripped down into the library.

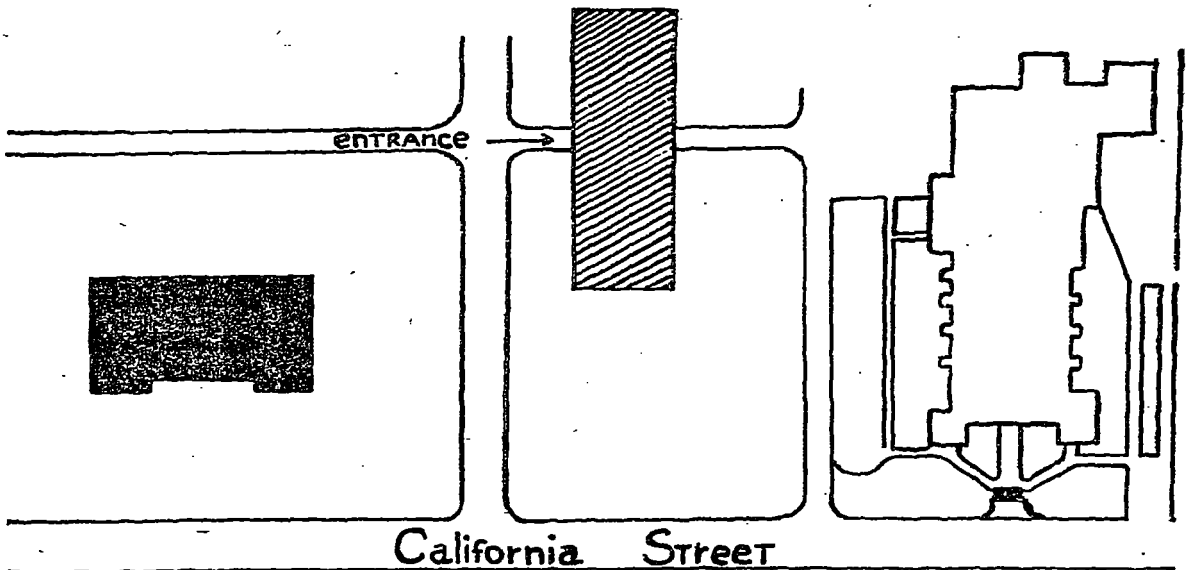

A second fire occurred three years ago. This time it was caused by the drapes catching in an electric fan. It was quickly put out with just a small amount of damage done.

Book collections

Miss Hunt said the library has some excellent collections. Among them are the archives of Arthur Mullen, a well-known Omaha politician, and a complete set of "The Dublin Review" dating from volume I published in 1826. There are only two complete sets of this journal in the United States.

The Very Rev. Carl M. Reinert, S.J., university president, said, "It is hard to know just what we do have. Some of our books are stored in three different attics."

The new library is one of his fondest dreams. "I know we'll get other valuable collections donated to the library as soon as we get the space," he said.

This rough sketch by a Creightonian artist gives the proximate position of the new library in relation to the surrounding campus according to information from university officials and representatives of the

Pharmacy seniors discover secret of business on tour

By JEANNE LUCKETT
Staff reporter

No, the Pharmacy School seniors didn't discover a magic formula or a secret super-atomic pill. But for some reason, now they are all anxious to graduate and start their own drug store on the corner.

Their eyes glow as they visualize their happy little thriving business. The satisfied customers swarm through the aisles, seeing the colorful displays and being convinced that they really need this licorice-flavored toothpaste or those new cigarette-less filter tips.

The happy, dirty faced little children buy candy and gum with the money they make on returning soft drink bottles. The panting dogs and baby buggies parked outside advertise to the neighborhood that this drug store is the best on the block. And so the door is nearly knocked off its hinges with the onslaught of contented customers.

Drug store secrets

The seniors learned some secrets of the drug store business on the senior tour through McKesson & Robbins, Inc., Tuesday, April 14. One of the highlights of the day was a movie in which the tourists discovered some "tricks of the trade."

For example, do you know that when you walk into a drug store, it is not hard to predict which path you will take through the aisles? The people at McKesson & Robbins says that when you walk into a drug store you are not very original.

A man usually follows the same beaten path of other men before him—probably to the lunch counter or the pipe and cigar department. And women make a B-line to the cosmetic counter by way of the reducing pill section. And children, by nature, run for the toys and candy.

Charting customer's course

By charting the route of every customer that comes to the store, the druggist will end up with a very confusing map, but he will know just where to put his displays in strategic places to attract the most attention. He also can tell which aisles should be wide or narrow depending on the size of the customers which will pass through them.

Counters must be the right height too—just right for the seven-foot men, five-foot women and two-foot children. This is a problem—but the pharmacy seniors feel that they can lick it, somehow.

The seniors concluded their tour with a steak dinner at Angelo's restaurant—a fitting climax to tours and lectures.

John Kellogg wins cruise to Bermuda

"Creighton was responsible to a large extent for my winning," said John Kellogg, Business Administration 3rd year, about his winning a trip to Bermuda.

The trip was the first prize in a contest sponsored by Brandeis department store. All employees competed in procuring new charge account applications for Brandeis. Kellogg, having obtained 909 applications, was announced as the winner at an employees breakfast April 10.

"I am grateful to all the people at Creighton that I bothered; I ate lunch down in the Student Center for three or four weeks and talked to everyone that I could," remarked Kellogg.

Kellogg's parents will probably make the trip, which is scheduled for sometime this summer. They will fly from here to New York, tour New York City, and then cruise to Bermuda. After their arrival there, they will tour the island, he said.

Kellogg is an employe in Brandeis's credit department where he works an average 15 hours a week.

It's what's up front that counts

You can reproduce the experiment. It's easy as  $\pi$ . (Yes, you can do it in the bathtub.) Assuming that you have first visited your friendly tobacconist, simply light your first Winston and smoke it. Reasoning backwards, the discovery proceeds as follows: first, you will notice a delightful flavor, in the class of fresh coffee or of bread baking. Obviously, such flavor cannot come from the filter. Therefore, it's what's up front that counts: Winston's Filter-Blend. The tobaccos are selected for flavor and mildness, then specially processed for filter smoking. This extra step is the real difference between Winston and all other filter cigarettes. Besides, it's why Winston is America's best-selling filter cigarette.

"Eureka! Winston tastes good... like a cigarette should!"

Death and life

Like a criminal given the death sentence, the dark, dreary old Creighton Auditorium has stood nervously before the judge—several times. But like some convicted men, it has had the execution postponed—several times.

But now the judge has given his final word. No further reprieve will be granted. The execution date is set. The condemned auditorium, tired and broken, will be razed to make room for a new thing of strength and beauty.

The temporary buildings—the huts—will also be removed. From the ashes will rise—like the Phoenix—a modern structure of glass, concrete and steel, long hoped for by Creightonians past and present. The Creighton University Library will be erected on California Street, between St. John's Church and the Law Building.

On three levels, its 45,000 square feet of space will provide students with adequate reading and study areas, pleasant and well-lighted. The new building will house all of the library's thousands of volumes, making available to students those now stored in dusty attics because of lack of display shelves.

The new library will be the center of attraction on the Creighton campus—both physical and intellectual. The sleek, classic lines of the building will add to the physical beauty of the campus. The wealth of information contained within its walls will be the core of the university's intellectual life.

"The true university of these days is a collection of books," Thomas Carlyle said in the seventeenth century. His words are as true in the twentieth.

Present and future students of the university have many people to be grateful to: the present administration, for its organization of this phase in the long-range building program, those men for their time and effort expended in soliciting funds, and alumni and friends of the university for their generous financial contributions.

We offer our thanks.

School is laboratory

By Rev. J. Clement Ryan, S.J.
University Spiritual Director

The total experience acquired in higher education is the source material out of which the genuine student must choose the better stuff and put it to use that he may draw the greater profit and benefit to help him find himself to live the life that God prefers he should be living.

A certain amount of training, and who would presume that amount or the quality of it, is involved in the total experience incident to school life and that training embraces principally the flexing and the proper directing for judicious use the gifts and talents God has entrusted to each one.

After most of the balderdash about school is thrown into the place where it rightly belongs the vast expanse of the education system is nothing more than a huge laboratory in which the student is turned loose under direction to test and try and experiment with the various elements that make up the total ingredients of his life in the midst of which he is to be preparing himself to live among men.

Just as the laboratory class is composed of various kinds and tempers of students and a room is set aside and equipped with various apparatus of an endless variety and choice gadgets connected with the science, so too do we find in higher education various kinds of students engaged in wrestling with the multifarious situations of college life.

Some few learn, other burn or get burned; the book worm, the goon, the social lizard, the gossamer stooge, the play boy, the ne'er do weller, the vegetable, and the clown may find entrance, and in time fade away, but there is one place where a human metamorphosis can take place. So often when this miracle takes place it demands the use of the equivalent power that would split an atom, but it happens; it can be done.

We do at times see emerging from the confines of a school the wise student who has begun to use during his formative years the opportunities presented to him and who has begun to refrain deliberately from abusing those gifts that hinder and prevent him from living the full and worth while life not only for now, but for all eternity.

Monday Morning Editors

This column is reserved each week for the opinions and comments submitted by Creighton readers. Writers are requested to be as brief as possible and the Creightonian reserves the right to condense any letters.

None over 150 words in length will be considered for this column. If a letter is received which the editors deem of special importance or interest to the university or its students it will be published with other editorials on this page rather than as a letter to the editor.

Under no circumstances will anonymous letters be accepted. Nominis de plume will be permitted in certain cases and the writer's name will be held in confidence by the editorial page editor.

Letters must be sent or delivered to the News Room on the third floor of the Administration Building before 5 p. m. Tuesday to be considered for the following Friday's publication.

SIGN PAINTERS are interested people. In fact so interested in their subject they completely forget the world about them, including a rule or two they learned 'way back in Sister Matilda's spelling class. There must be one of these interested individuals on the campus. A large sign in the Student Center advertising the April 30-May 1 and 2 dramatic production gives him (or her) away: "The Boy Friend."

MEMBERS AND FRIENDS of the Explorers Club in Manhattan recently enjoyed a smorgasbord of roast caterpillar, barbecued Japanese snake, fried Japanese ant eggs, fried grasshoppers, stuffed squid in its own ink, pickled African honeybees, Bombay duck, roast seal flipper, hard-boiled quail eggs, salted whale skin, bits of reindeer steak and broiled Italian sparrows. Menus in the Student Center seem to lack this color.

QUALITY MUSIC fans in the Omaha area will be offered a more savory fare than the indigestible rock and roll heard on most other radio stations when KQAL begins full schedule broadcasting Sunday.

The new independent station, 94.3 megacycles on an FM receiver, devotes its entire programming schedule to classical music, light classics, chamber music and modern jazz.

Beginning Sunday, KQAL music will be aired from 6 p. m. to midnight Monday through Friday, and from noon to midnight Saturday and Sunday. Commercials will be limited, never interrupting any piece of music, even one as lengthy as an opera.

According to Jack L. Katz, owner and general manager, plans for the quality music station have been "in the works" since last December. He hopes for a full 18-hour broadcast day by next fall, Katz said. At present the staff consists of Katz, a traffic and continuity director, four announcers and two engineers.

Katz said a "fine arts guide" is being planned which will inform listeners of coming programs and comment on various musical works. He added that he and his staff would welcome any opinions or criticism of the new station's operation. Special musical requests would also be considered, he said. Any correspondence should be addressed to: Jack L. Katz, 1630 City National Bank Building, he said.

It's a challenge, men!

Dear Students:

For the benefit of those who are not aware of the history of the annual ball game between the faculty and the students I will fill in the details.

It has long been a tradition at Creighton that the annual Picnic Day the faculty meet students in a soft-ball game. For seven years in a row, the faculty had won this game with no strain or pain. Since this annual meeting was getting to be a rather ho-hum affair for the faculty, a spokesman for the faculty team published in these columns last year at this time a challenge to the students. The faculty wanted to know whether there were any ball players around Creighton; for seven years the faculty had had no evidence that there were.

Well, as you might expect, this challenge got the students riled up, and so many teams offered to play us on Picnic Day that the Intramural Athletic Committee had to step in to decide who would play the faculty. The committee authorized Chuck Maxwell to select an all-star team from the Intramural league. The faculty gulped a bit when they heard about this, but they were still confident that the old men could beat the best ball club the students could throw against them.

Last year rain fell the night before the picnic, continued to fall throughout the morning and well into the afternoon. The ball diamond at Riverside Park was a carpet of mud. Under such conditions any major-league contest would have been called off. But the students had blood in their eyes and were not to be put off. They discovered a grassy plot in another part of the park and insisted that the game go on. Although we didn't have all of our first team on hand, we did have enough to field a team. So we consented to go against the students.

We'd like to forget what happened last year, but the students won't let us. To put it mildly, we got slaughtered, 11-0. The students had outplayed us in every department. There were some ball players at Creighton after all. And we were glad that there were no students in the stands to witness our ignominious defeat.

This year we're out for revenge. We decided that this year we were going to get in shape for the game. We have entered a team in the Intramural league. Last Friday we won our first game, 11-3. I must admit that we didn't look too good in winning that game, but we'll get better, and by Picnic Day we'll be whistle-slick.

So once again I issue the challenge: ARE THERE ANY BALL PLAYERS OUT THERE?

Let's hope we get a sunny day his year. We want you to be there when we soundly trounce the students.

Sincerely yours,
Edward P. J. Corbett
Captain of the Faculty Team

Dean's note

To the Editor of The Creightonian:

It is interesting to see the great contrast shown in one issue of the paper.

Congratulations for an accurate, well-written, factual item on social work.

An article on the front page about girls' athletics is inaccurate. In the first place, we now have a woman gym teacher who is tops in her field. Also, roll is taken, and only a limited number of times allowed for non-participation in class. Quotes from anonymous persons may leave an untrue impression in people's minds, and I raise the question whether a school paper wishes to do that.

Miss Helen Girard, College Pan-Hellenic Council adviser at the University of Nebraska, was guest speaker. She outlined rushing techniques and rules of sororities in general. She pointed out that female fraternities have become the greatest youth movement as girls in sororities are preparing themselves for greater service to their school, community and country. Girls across the United States are placing more stress on scholarship, she said. In an effort to produce still greater leaders, Miss Girard said, the sororities are looking for the upper one-third of girls with high grades and they're getting them. The second greatest aspect of sorority life is the development of social etiquette.

The delegates from Alpha Sigma Alpha were Virginia Kuzelka, Arts 3rd year; Pat Baxter, A3. Theta Upsilon sent Marianne Gau, A1, and Ellen Olson, A3. Theta Phi Alpha representatives were Mrs. Ann Russell and Mrs. Ewing, adviser.

VIVE LE POPCORN!

The other day as I was walking down the street picking up tinfoil, (Marlboro, incidentally, has the best tinfoil, which is not surprising when you consider that they have the best cigarettes, which is not surprising when you consider that they take the best filters and put them together with the best tobacco and rush them to your tobacco counter, fresh and firm and loaded with smoking pleasure). The other day, I say, as I was walking down the street picking up tinfoil, (I have, incidentally, the second largest ball of tinfoil in our family. My brother Eleanor's is bigger—more than four miles in diameter—but, of course, he is taller than I). The other day, as I was saying, while walking down the street picking up tinfoil, I passed a campus and right beside it, a movie theatre which specialized in showing foreign films. Most campuses have foreign movie theatres close by, because foreign movies are full of culture, art, and esoterica, and where is culture more rife, art more rampant, and esoterica more endemic than on a campus?

Nowhere; that's where.

I hope you have all been taking advantage of your local foreign film theatre. Here you will find no simple-minded Hollywood products, marked by treacherous sentimentality and machine-made bravura. Here you will find life itself—in all its grimness, its poverty, its naked, raw passion!

Have you, for instance, seen the recent French import, Le Crayon de Mon Oncle ("The Kneecap"), a savage and uncoding promising story of a man named Claude, whose consuming ambition is to get a job as a meter reader with the Paris water department? But he is unable, alas, to afford the flashlight one needs for this position. His wife, Bon-Bon, sells her hair to a wigmaker and buys him a flashlight. Then, alas, Claude discovers that one also requires a leatherette bow tie. This time his two young daughters, Caramel and Nougat, sell their hair to a wigmaker. So now Claude has his leatherette bow tie, but now, alas, his flashlight battery is burned out and the whole family, alas, is bald.

Or have you seen the latest Italian masterpiece, La Donna Mobile (I Ache All Over), a heart-shattering tale of a boy and his dog? Malvolio, a Venetian lad of nine, loves his little dog with every fibre of his being. He has one great dream: to enter the dog in the annual Venetian dog show. But this, alas, requires an entrance fee, and Malvolio, alas, is penniless. However, he saves and scrimps and steals and finally gets enough together to enter the dog in the show. The dog, alas, comes in twenty-third. Malvolio sells him to a vivisectionist.

Or have you seen the new Japanese triumph, Kibutsi-Son (The Radish), a pulse-stirring historical romance about Yamoto, a poor farmer, and his daughter Ethel who are accosted by a warlord one morning on their way to market? The warlord cuts Yamoto in half with his samurai sword and runs off with Ethel. When Yamoto recovers, he seeks out Ethel's fiancé, Red Buttons, and together they find the warlord and kill him. But, alas, the warlord was also a sorcerer and he whimsically turned Ethel into a whooping crane. Loyal Red Buttons takes Ethel home where he feeds her fish heads for twenty years and keeps hoping she'll turn back into a woman. She never does. Alas.

J., spiritual adviser of Alpha Sig, presented the nosegay to Felix at the Alpha dinner.

TV show presents problems to ingenious C. U. students

Hair was the problem on the final program in the Abraham Lincoln Anniversary Series being presented by Creighton in cooperation with WOW-TV. The six-part series concludes with "Lincoln—President and Martyr" Saturday, April 18, at 4 p.m. on Channel 6.

First came the problem of hair for Jean Baker, Arts second year. For the part of Mary Todd Lincoln, she needed dark hair. But she had bleached her hair for a role in "The Boy Friend," forthcoming Creighton Players production.

When no suitable wig could be found, prop men resorted to a dime store where a dark switch was located for $1.98. Under a period bonnet, the switch readily took shape as Mary Todd Lincoln's front locks. But the bonnet was small and left large expanse of bleached curls. Judy Lovchik, A2, came to the rescue with a detachable knob, which had proved too large for her bonnet. Crepe hair left over from Lincoln's beard filled in the remaining spots.

Lincoln's beard

The beard was another problem. In the role of Lincoln before his inauguration, Don Johnson, graduate student, had to appear without a beard for the recreation of the historical episode in which the artist Leonard Volk made a plaster cast of Lincoln's face.

Crepe hair in hair, alumnus Owen Burkley fashioned a beard on gauze before the program began. Then he deftly removed it for the beardless sequences and quickly whipped it back in place for Lincoln's first bearded appearance.

The hair problems were not exclusive to the Lincolns in the cast. For the reception scene after Lincoln's Second Inaugural, three escorts were needed who did not have crew-cuts. They were essentially found in George Hill, A1, Don Freeman, A2, and Hugh La Fontaine, A3. Their ladies were Georgette Magassy, A4, Judy Lovchik and Jo Lynn Askew, both A2.

Sideburns, yet

The artist Leonard Volk, played by Jerry Seybold, A3, also needed a full head of hair. For good measure he threw in sideburns. The plaster cast he showed of the beardless Lincoln was made in the office of Dr. John Gatewood, associate professor in surgery. His assistant, Miss Joan Benedict, who makes plaster casts to aid the doctor in plastic surgery, made the mask from a life-size bust of Lincoln.

Another faculty member who helped with the program was Gordon Bergquist, assistant professor of English. He was the off-camera voice reading a selection from Walt Whitman's "O Captain, My Captain."

The hairy and hairless problems were met with the assistance of script girl Mary Cain, A2, who was also make-up aid and wardrobe mistress. Narrator Bob Kelley, as link between past and present, was allowed to reveal his crew-cut untouched.

Biologists are accepted for graduate fellowships

Two Creighton biology students have been accepted for graduate work in their field following graduation this year.

Gerard S. Knight, Arts 4th year, has accepted a teaching fellowship from Dartmouth College in the department of biology. This appointment carries with it a stipend of $1,800.

Hans A. Aye, BA4, will enter graduate school at the University of Florida where he will study Oceanography while working for his advanced degrees.

Professor Brown speaks on Avignon

Lawrence H. Brown, director of the department of sociology, gave an illustrated lecture on the Papal Avignon Tuesday evening.

With the aid of slides taken by the Rev. M. Joseph Costelloe, S. J., assistant professor of classical languages, Professor Brown explained the architecture and function of the papal palace.

Professor Brown explained how the popes moved away from Rome and listed the interesting characteristics of the popes who lived there.

The lecture was sponsored by the Fine Arts Society.

Kupcek will tour Europe

Dr. Joseph R. Kupcek, assistant professor of modern languages, has been appointed leader of an education study group which will tour major European cities this summer.

Szmrecsanyi gets grant

Arts senior, Emery Szmrecsanyi, has received a tuition-free research assistantship in mathematics from Marquette University Milwaukee, Wis.

CU poet Michele Baker makes Atlantic Monthly top twenty

Arts sophomore Michele Baker has placed in the top twenty for poetry in the Atlantic Monthly Contest for College Students, according to Edward P. J. Corbett, associate professor of English.

Dr. Corbett said he has received advance notice that CU Poetess Baker has placed, but not how high on the list or which of the sixteen poems she submitted caught the judges' fancy. These will be disclosed when the official announcements are made in the June issue of the Atlantic, Dr. Corbett said.

Dr. Corbett pointed out that because he has received advance notice of Miss Baker's placement does not preclude the possibility that some of the short stories submitted by Creighton students (there were at least seven short-story entries from Creighton) will win an award too.

Two years ago Michael Sundermeier placed in the top twenty with his short story "Ecce Homo."

Student Board's Soundingboard

Board primaries slated

By JIM QUINN
Senior Member in Arts

Next Monday, all of the students of the university will have the opportunity to nominate candidates for the Student Board of Governors. You may ask why I use the word "nominate" rather than "elect."

Briefly, the primary election is merely a nomination in which you as a student will be telling the Rules Committee of the Board which sophomore students in your school are best qualified to be the representative from your school to the board.

The three students receiving the highest point total in the Schools of Dentistry, Medicine, Pharmacy and Law will be considered as the only candidates in the final election held in their respective school.

In the College of Arts and Sciences and in the School of Business Administration, the five students with the highest point totals will be nominees.

In considering which students that you will nominate Monday, it would be well to minimize the personality and popularity of the persons you are considering, and to judge them on their willingness to work for the school, their ability to perform promptly and efficiently when you ask them to, and their credibility as true representatives of your school.

To those people who are contemplating "running" for the board, I would certainly like to encourage you, and in the same breath to warn you. The board provides an enriching and gratifying experience which I would not have passed up for many things.

On the other hand, there is much work involved and if you feel that you cannot sacrifice quite a bit of time for the benefit of the university and student body, do not cheat your fellow-students out of the proper type of representation by making them believe that you will do the job, and then let the load fall on more willing shoulders after you are elected.

Thinclads split in two meets

Creighton's track team took its opener from Dana last week with a 77-53 win; then the Jays placed second in a triangular at Atchison, Kansas.

The Hilltoppers nearly ran away with the track events against Dana. Denny Dunning and Ed Hubbard picked up important wins and with Dunning and Hubbard running, the Jays won the mile relay handily.

Don Kapustka was down to the track in street clothes and won the shotput and discus. In throwing the shot, Kapustka let go a heave long enough to break the record he set for CU track last year.

At Atchison, in a triangular with St. Benedict's and Highland College, the Blues picked up six first place ribbons.

Dunning won the 220 and 440-yard sprints, Bobby Williams aced the two-mile run and Jim Delaney cleared the pole vault bar at 11 feet 4 inches for Creighton wins. Stan Fvicher and Cage Johnson joined Hubbard and Dunning to top the half-mile relays and Bob Conklin replaced Johnson as the Hilltoppers took a win in the 880 relays.

Wednesday night the track team traveled to the Midland relays.

Drill team edged by Omaha U group

The drill team from Omaha University edged the Creighton Honor Guard Tuesday in the 1st annual team match between the two schools.

The contest took place in the Hilltop stadium.

Three non-commissioned officers from the local marine recruiting station judged the groups on originality, precision, intricacy, appearance, military bearing and uniform.

Each team performed for eight minutes.

David L. Wiksell, Arts 2nd year, is the master sergeant of the Creighton Guard. Willard D. Preston, a junior, commands the OU troop.

Captain Charles C. Allison, assistant moderator of the troop, said that the judges described the contest as "extremely close" with just a couple of points separating the two schools.

Faculty cops debut

Making their debut in the intramural softball league the Faculty crushed the Tiawana Tippers, 11-3.

The faculty nine is pepping for the annual spring picnic in which the faculty tangles with the student team.

Zips powdered the Delta Sigs 17-1 in an Interfraternity league game with four of the dental students rapping three hits each.

Rebels bested the Monks, 14-9, in the last game for the week.

If teams want their scores published in the paper, the official score sheet must be returned to the head umpire after each game.

Prof pinsters have slow bowling week

It was a frigid night for the faculty bowlers Monday evening with only two 200 games in the lot. Don Beck took individual game honors with his 202, while Sgt. Harold Mathauser tossed a 200.

Beck registered high individual series with his 561 and Customers and Khaki Kids divided team honors. The Customers rolled a series of 1,915, while the Kids notched a 725 high team game.

Juggernauts took over private possession of first place with three wins over the Shop Lifters. Atomeers fell to second when they could accomplish only one win over the J-Braves.

Baseballers to play Wayne next outing

After getting their first taste of defeat Creighton's baseballers entertain Wayne State Teachers College Tuesday afternoon. It will be a Nebraska College Baseball Conference battle.

The defeat, the only one in four games, came Tuesday at the hands of Wesleyan, 18-17, in the conference. In last week's other appearance the Blues topped Dana, 18-3.

The two games left Creighton three wins and one loss in the NCBC, too.

Coach Duce Belford thinks his team should be all right after the first four games. "We might have had it easy," he said, "but the team is hustling and we should be pretty good with more improvement."

Belford thinks his worst weaknesses are at second and third bases. He said for Tuesday's game he may move George Kocsis from the outfield to third base and slip Lou Oswald, who has been bothered with arm trouble, into the outfield to third base and would move Jim Drahota or Mike Harrington to the outfield to replace Kocsis.

Wesleyan 18, Creighton 17

Baseballs were all over the park Tuesday as Creighton traveled to Wesleyan for the season's first defeat.

For the opening four innings the teams piled up 33 runs on a bad day for baseball. Duce Belford, CU coach, said it was so windy the pitchers were having control trouble, but the weather settled down after that period.

Creighton overcame a 17-16 deficit in the eighth inning on two singles and an error, but the winners came back with two singles and two sacrifices in the home half of the eighth.

Creighton 18, Dana 3

The Jays unloaded a 16-hit power attack to smother Dana Saturday. The win left the Blues riding atop the Nebraska College

Baseball Conference at three wins in that many tries.

Creighton started early, collecting three quickies in the first inning and adding two more in the third before Dana scored two counters in the bottom of the third. Ron Stangl gave the hosts two runs in that round and Duce Belford replaced Stangl with Tom Fretz who stayed on the hill until the eighth.

Bluejay stickers feasted on the deliveries of three Dana moundsmen, collecting three home runs and five doubles. Dan Daggeman, Bill Balak and Ron Wauer hit for the circuit and Daggeman added five runs-batted-in to his season total. Balak turned in a 4-for-8 effort at the plate to fatten his batting average.

Students top four records

Four records fell as student bowlers took the lanes Sunday.

Jim Belitz led the wholesale attack on the sticks with a 279 high game, breaking his own season record of 233. Jim also broke the high series standard with a 642.

Jay Harrington placed second to Belitz with a 250 game and Stan Batter mustered a 556 series.

Brad Gauss rolled a 532 series and joined Belitz and Batter to help Delta Sigma Delta fall two marks. The Delts' game of 957 and the 2,611 series are new team standards.

Sunday produced a lot of good games on the 40 Bowl Alleys. Eight students broke the 200 mark.

Sunday is the last day of student bowling for this season. The final three-game session is at noon. Next week secretary Jim Travnicek will announce the second semester's winner and the league's high individual average.
